Senate Unscathed

OTTAWA (CP) — "Well, we got through it without a bomb," remarked one senator following the reading Thursday in the Senate chamber of the speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament.

A source said that as well as an increased complement of Senate staff, eight plain-clothes police were seated in each of the two crowded galleries overlooking the floor of the chamber.

In Montreal the visitors' gallery of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges was closed to the public as a result of the kidnapping of James Cross.

Charles Neapole, president of the Montreal exchange, said: "The simple truth is that the floor traders have been through this once before (a bomb blast in 1969) and many of them are pretty jumpy."

Manifesto Aired

Deadline Past, No FLQ Word

CBC French telecaster reads manifesto

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the government's first concession to kidnappers of British diplomat James Richard Cross Thursday night, a midnight deadline for meeting other conditions set for his release went past without word from his abductors.

The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec had vowed to assassinate the 49-year-old trade commissioner unless its conditions were met by midnight.

The federal government Thursday night broadcast the FLQ's "political manifesto" on CBC French-language radio and television stations in Quebec province.

The broadcast was followed by a statement saying the manifesto was read "for humanitarian reasons" with a view "to save if possible the life of James Richard Cross."

* * *

CBC president George Davidson issued a statement saying the broadcast was made because it was in the public interest.

Meanwhile, Le Devoir reported in an Ottawa story that the federal government had partially acceded to a second FLQ demand — that police suspend their investigation.

The newspaper says that without making this public, federal authorities asked police to reduce to the minimum their inquiries and other investigations.

* * *

Cross is the British trade commissioner in Montreal, kidnapped Monday from his home. The Front de Liberation du Quebec, which has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, warned earlier that Cross would be executed if conditions set for his release were not met by midnight Thursday.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said following the broadcast he had "no comments to make."

FLQ Manifesto Demands End To 'Slavery'

MONTREAL (CP) — A political manifesto issued by the terrorist group claiming responsibility for the kidnapping of James Cross and read Thursday night over the CBC French-language television network calls for the freeing of an "enslaved society" in Quebec.

Full publication and broadcasting of the 1,400-word manifesto throughout Quebec was one of the ransom demands of the Front de Liberation du Quebec for the release of the British diplomat.

The 10-minute reading of the complete text at 7:30 p.m. PDT was done in a sober manner by Gaetan Montreuil, one of the French-language network's best-known announcers.

In its ransom demands, the FLQ had suggested that the text might be read by Claude-Jean Deverieux.

The manifesto said:

"The FLQ wants the total independence of Quebecers, reunited in a free society forever purged of its clique of voracious sharks, the patronizing big bosses and the lackeys who make Quebec their protected domain of cheap labor and unscrupulous exploitation."

* * *

The FLQ describes itself as "the answer to an aggression" which is spearheaded by almost every existing institution, including the Roman Catholic Church, in Quebec.

The manifesto refers to several labor, language and political disputes in the province.

The document also states that the FLQ had at one time considered throwing all its support behind the separatist Parti Quebecois, but this plan died when the PQ failed to win widespread electoral support last April 28.

* * *

"Consequently, the British parliamentary system is really finished, and the FLQ will never again allow itself to be distracted by the electoral crumbs the Anglo-Saxon capitalists throw into the Quebec barnyard every four years."

The document speaks of "100,000 worker-revolutionaries, organized and armed" in the coming year, a sneer at Premier Robert Bourassa's pledge to create 100,000 new jobs in Quebec by 1971.

"We are fed up, and so are more and more Quebecers, with a spineless government which makes 1,000-and-one somersaults to charm American millionaires while begging them to come and invest in Quebec . . ."

Fee-Hike Delay On Ballot

VERNON — B.C.'s doctors will decide by a referendum if they will have a one-year moratorium on fee increases, it was announced Thursday in Vernon.

Dr. J. W. Corbett of North Vancouver, newly-elected president of the B.C. Medical Association, said the decision on a referendum was made in a closed session Thursday morning.

* * *

The board of directors of the BCMA, he added, is recommending that members do not seek a fee increase from the provincial government, which administers the prepaid medical care plans in B.C.

The association ended its four-day annual convention here Thursday.

Corbett said the B.C. medical profession will study its schedule of fees to get rid of some inequities that exist in earnings in some specialties, including general practice.

* * *

He said the need for such adjustments became apparent earlier this year when the medical association started receiving detailed reports on earnings from the B.C. Medical Services Commission, the over-all agency for medicare in B.C.

Dealing with the five-year agreement the doctors signed with the government in 1965,

Plans for New Department Unveiled

Ottawa to Battle Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal government department will call the shots in future efforts to control pollution of air, water and soil.

The new environmental department will also have charge of federal fisheries and forestry responsibilities. Agriculture, at least in some of its aspects, will be a further concern.

Plans for the new department were unveiled in the throne speech at Thursday's opening of a new session of Parliament.

The program may become the responsibility of a cabinet minister with a new portfolio designation, although a final decision awaits the results of a study of the Senate science policy committee.

* * *

Treasury Board President Charles Drury is being touted as the man to head a cabinet science committee on a full-time basis, without dividing his time between scientific affairs and treasury board which controls spending.

Immediate speculation is that the new environment department will be headed by Jack Davis, the tough fisheries minister who has been outspoken in his concern about environment protection and renewable resource conservation.

* * *

The government served notice that legislation to deal with ocean and air pollution will be introduced. Both have been under preparation for some time and subject to a certain amount of public discussion.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson's department has been working on anti-pollution measures since last winter's major oil spill from the grounding of the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay in Nova Scotia.

Health Minister John Munro has said his department has a clean air act draft in preparation for this session.

Responsibility for water pollution in other respects rests with the department of energy, mines and resources under the Canada Water Act passed last summer.

The new agency will have at least a co-ordination and consolidation which were described in the throne speech as more pressing needs than any other step or steps.

Captains, Pilot Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two captains and a B.C. marine pilot were blamed by federal transport department counsel Thursday night for the Aug. 2 ferry-freighter collision in Active Pass in which three ferry passengers were killed.

The Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin sliced into the port side of the B.C. government ferry Queen of Victoria at noon in clear visibility in the narrow pass between two islands.

Commission counsel Norman Mullins, in his closing address to a federal commission of inquiry, recommended that the licence of Canadian pilot aboard the freighter, D. G. Crabbe, be suspended, that the certificate of competency of ferry captain R. J. Pollock be suspended and that Captain N. G. Khaustov of the Soviet ship be admonished or censured. He said the pilot was the most culpable.

Mullins said it was his opinion that Crabbe had made the gravest error of anybody involved. It arose out of Crabbe's handling of wireless communications.

Crabbe, he said, had signalled the Russian ship's approach to Active Pass using radio channels that the ferry could not receive.

"He knew very well," said Mullins, "that the ferries could not receive transmissions on channels six or 16; the fact was notorious among the pilots."

Specialists' Pullout: Little Effect

QUEBEC (CP) — The health department reported little change Thursday in occupancy of Quebec hospitals despite medical specialists' withdrawal of all but emergency services.

The specialists withdrew their services to support demands for changes in Quebec's medical care insurance plan.

Empty in Content, Stanfield Asserts

OTTAWA (CP) — With emphasis on the new decade and a "new age," Parliament began a new session Thursday and the traditional speech from the throne zeroed in on the environment, urban problems and the economically deprived.

Some of the pomp of the past was missing this time as Governor-General Michener, dressed in a dark suit, officially opened the third session of Canada's 28th Parliament. The throne speech, prepared by the government, concentrated on problems of the future.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was unimpressed with the speech.

Nobel Prize Offered to Russia's Solzhenitsyn

Life Creates Plot for Author

By HARRY TRIMBORN
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — Novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn said Thursday he will go to Sweden — if the Kremlin lets him — to personally accept the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature.

And therein lies the makings of a plot worthy of the talents of the 52-year-old mathematician and former artillery officer and inmate of Stalin's labor camps who is considered Russia's greatest living writer.

For the decision may trigger a repetition of the ferocious government propaganda attack that forced another Russian, Boris Pasternak, author of Doctor Zhivago, to decline the same prize in 1958.

* * *

Like Pasternak, who died in 1960, Solzhenitsyn has incurred the wrath of the Soviet government for his eloquent attacks against the policies and practices of the Kremlin.

In his first public comment on the prize awarded earlier Thursday by the Swedish academy, the author of A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich, declared:

"I am grateful for the decision (to award me the prize). I accept the prize. I intend to go and receive it personally on the traditional day (Dec. 10) insofar as this will depend on me."

Solzhenitsyn made the comments to a Scandinavian journalist who said he was given the writer's telephone number by friends.

* * *

"Consider me unreachable," he said. "I am not receiving any Western correspondents."

The Soviet press has made no comment on it yet — just as there was no immediate Soviet comment to Pasternak's selection 12 years ago. The propaganda campaign then was not launched until about a week after the announcement and continued unremittingly for three weeks until Pasternak changed his mind about accepting the prize.

In its attack 12 years ago, the Soviet government did not specifically prohibit Pasternak from going to Stockholm to collect his prize. That

Bolivian Unit Revolts

From Reuters-AP

LA PAZ — A 500-man regiment revolted Thursday against Bolivia's new left-wing president, Gen. Juan Jose Torres, only one day after he took power by defeating right-wing rebel troops.

The commander of the important Ingavi regiment based in La Paz announced his opposition to the government of Torres, formed Wednesday after a two-day conflict.

The rebel officer said he counted on support from general headquarters.

The right-wing commander, Col. Miguel Ayoroa, announced in a communique he will oppose Torres. He said he had the support of another La Paz garrison.

But Torres responded by saying he would not put up with any opposition.

Heads You Lose

YOU CAN'T help but have a very healthy respect for those young men who participate in the game of rugby—not Canadian football, but old-fashioned English rugger.

The behemoths who frequent pro football arm themselves with about 15 pounds of protective padding before sallying to the fray, but those rugger players throw on a jersey, jock, shorts and boots and they're ready to butt heads.

Admire their intestinal fortitude and the devil-may-care, slam-bang approach they bring to their sport, but wonder also about their sanity.

Last year a young rugger player died here as a result of a blood clot on a blood clot. In other words, it is possible he had suffered a previous head injury that went undetected.

A WELL-KNOWN Canadian neurosurgeon, himself a fine rugger player in his younger days, told me at the time that the lack of head protection in rugger is a major reason for such head injuries and that rugger should forget some of its heralded manliness by adopting protective head coverings.

He also said that many serious blows, blows that may not show up in trouble until years later, are taken by the players. Some are woozy for awhile, others have headaches for periods of time after being hit.

I once read that every time a person is knocked unconscious, a certain amount of bleeding takes place in the brain. Scar tissue forms and constant repetition results in a solid build-up of scar tissue and we have the so-called punch-drunk fighter, the guy walking on his heels and hearing imaginary bells.

Too many head blows from jolts on a rugger field can produce the same result and for this reason, I have to be in complete agreement with my medical informant. A good form of head protection should be made mandatory. The he-man image of the game wouldn't suffer all that much and a lot of young men would eliminate the risk of later-life head problems.

TAKE another aspect of sport while we're on the subject. Take the drug cult that has been flourishing under the cloak of sport for years. Not just in recent years when pot, speed and LSD mushroomed its sickening way into the youth scene, but back as far as the early Fifties.

I've seen it. I recall it vividly. The use of benzedrine pills—"bennies"—by football and hockey players. Some players would take to the field in a state of "high" that made them entirely different personages.

The idea was, and is, that players are able to sustain a greater all-out effort and to shake off the immediate effect of injury. Which, of course, is patent nonsense.

AND THAT "high" often lasted long past the final game whistle and brought on the next stage. The player would attempt to unwind, as it were, by resorting to sleeping tablets. It doesn't take any medical expert to realize the fight going on in the nervous system is far more dangerous to the man than almost anything that could happen to him on the field.

Today the use of bennies and other stimulants is widespread in sport. Football, hockey and soccer players use them as though they were relatively harmless aspirin. The Olympic Games have been infiltrated by the drug cult as well as athletes reach out for every possible aid in their quest for the prized and elusive gold medals.

In many instances the pills are given to the players by the trainers. The trainers must get them from medical people and believe me, there is never a shortage.

TEAM PHYSICIANS know the use of drugs is commonplace. I assume they conveniently turn their heads the other way to allow the practise to continue.

Sport has many noble attributes. It can do inestimable good for young people. But sport has a lot of cleaning up to accomplish. The use of drugs by athletes is a stupid, harmful cancer and it behooves the medical profession to look it straight in the eye and eliminate it.

Turning the head is not the answer.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Benefits Count Most

By G. D. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a prostate operation and they found cancer. Since then I have been taking a pill, diethylstilbesterol, but am having a lot of discomfort in the breast area, and the breasts have developed, too. Can anything be done?—L.S.

Discovery that diethylstilbesterol, a drug which acts much like the female hormone, estrogen, would suppress the growth of prostatic cancer was one of the great advances in cancer control.

However, some of the side effects are those you are experiencing — enlargement of the breasts and tenderness. Your doctor might be able to alter the dosage, but other than that there is nothing to be done. The benefits outweigh the side effects.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about the rare disease called acromegaly. Is there a cure for it?—B.C.

It's a disorder resulting from overactivity of the pituitary gland. It results in abnormal growth of various extremities — fingers and toes, as well as nose, jaw, tongue. It is, as you say, rare, but it has been studied extensively.

It is treated by surgery of the pituitary gland, and the techniques for this have been improved in recent years, but as you may well imagine, you will have to go to one of the big medical centres for such treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a man to catch a sex disease by kissing a woman, mouth to mouth? —B.W.

Possible, if conditions are just right — if the woman has an active infection (usually syphilis) and particularly if there is any open break or cut in the tissues of your mouth.

would have been too blatant. Rather, it centred its attack on the award itself, charging it was made for "political" rather than literary reasons to discredit the Soviet government.

Yet there is a possibility that the Soviet government may be only too eager for Solzhenitsyn to go to Sweden — as long as he does not return to Russia.

Shortly after his expulsion from the Soviet writers' union last November, the organization hinted it might be a good idea if the maverick writer left the country.

Observers here feel that if he will not be allowed to return, Solzhenitsyn may refuse to go.

He has repeatedly expressed his deep love of his country and his determination to remain in it, despite the bitter attacks against him.

In what may have been an attempt to head off possible Soviet charges that Solzhenitsyn's selection — like Pasternak's — was a "hostile political action," Dr. Kaol Gierow, permanent secretary of the Swedish academy, called the winner "a son of the Russian revolution who has never abandoned this spiritual paternity."

Solzhenitsyn rocketed to world-wide fame in November of 1962 when then Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev directed the literary magazine Novy Mir to publish Solzhenitsyn's Ivan Denisovich, a chilling, haunting narrative of an ordinary day in a Stalin labor camp. It was part of Khrushchev's "destalination" campaign.

A 1941 graduate in mathematics and physics from the University of Rostov, Solzhenitsyn achieved his masterwork, according to critics, in The Full Circle. The book is a biting portrayal of life in Russia in the 1940s after the war with concentric circles of hell — in the manner of Dante's Inferno — radiating out from Stalin.

His other major work is Cancer Ward, based on the author's struggle with cancer in which a hospital is represented as the microcosm of a sick world.

Search for Balloon Produces Little

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI) — An air-sea search for traces of the missing American balloon Free Life turned up nothing but bits of old fishing net and a skein of orange rope, search and rescue co-ordinators said Thursday.

Searching in 30-knot winds and high seas, the Coastguard cutter Bartlett covered an area where a chartered search plane had reported seeing colored objects.

Nixon Indochina Plan

Praise at Home But Viets Balk

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon's five-point Indochina peace plan received almost unanimous support here Thursday but raised only faint hopes of an early halt to the fighting.

U.S. officials were not surprised or dismayed by initial Communist denunciation of the plan. Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief delegate at the Paris peace talks, said the basic issues of the war should be settled before any ceasefire, such as proposed by the president, could be considered.

Most observers here believed Washington had expected the Communists to reject the president's proposals, made in a major television appearance Wednesday night, at least for the time being. This is regarded here as a standard Communist negotiating tactic.

Speaking in Savannah, Ga., en route to his Florida home for a weekend of rest, Nixon said he hoped the almost unanimous approval of his plan in the U.S. would be noted by Hanoi, which he said counted on dissension in America to force Washington's hand at the negotiating table.

The administration line in the wake of the president's address appeared to be that the country was again on the road to peace and that domestic differences over the war were beginning to heal.

The two party leaders of the Senate, Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said the Communists' cool reaction to the Nixon plan was to be expected and that they believed there was hope for serious negotiations leading to a settlement.

Mansfield joined Scott in playing down speculation that Nixon's speech had political overtones and was drafted with an eye to the Nov. 3 U.S. elections.

Egypt Will Launch Campaign For Israeli Censure in UN

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt will launch a major diplomatic offensive aimed at winning condemnation by the UN General Assembly of Israel for refusing to resume the Middle East peace talks.

In Jerusalem, meantime, Israel filed its 22nd complaint with the UN Truce Supervisory Organization against cease fire violations by Egypt of the 90-day cease-fire. Israel charged more SAM-2 and SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles had been moved into Egypt's side of the Suez Canal standstill zone. Soviets Thursday denied the charges.

'Facade' to Dodge Rules

Air Licences Lifted In Wake of Tragedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government lifted the licences Thursday of the company that owned the ill-fated Wichita State University charter plane and the firm that supplied the crew. It claimed their business arrangement apparently was a "facade" to duck air safety regulations.

Federal aviation administrator John Shaffer announced the action against Jack Richards, Inc., owner of the Martin 404 that crashed last Friday, and Golden Eagle Corp., which provided the crew. Both are Oklahoma City companies.

Shaffer told a news conference of the grounding of all 16 planes owned by Jack Richards, and the revocation of the air taxi certificate held by Golden Eagle, as questions about both operations mounted in the wake of the tragedy.

Worms Might Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists who investigated a Hawaiian "old wife's tale" about an ancient cancer treatment reported Thursday there is something in tropical sea worms that protects mice against at least one kind of tumor.

They did not propose sea worms be enlisted in the fight against human cancer, but they said the protective effect on mice of sea worm extracts, "considered together with their reputed ancient use in human cancer therapy, is a striking coincidence certainly worth further study."

Flight Took 10 Days

HALIFAX (CP) — Air Canada commemorated the 50th anniversary Wednesday of the first cross-Canada flight by giving passengers certificates which say in part:

"The journey was made through uncharted skies without radio or accurate weather information. It took 10 days and seven aircraft."

Gaglardi:

Taxpayers Abused Worse Than Poor

VANCOUVER (CP) — Taxpayers in British Columbia are more abused than welfare recipients, P. A. Gaglardi, the provincial minister responsible for welfare, said Wednesday.

Gaglardi was commenting on a proposal made in Ottawa earlier Wednesday by the National Welfare Council that an inquiry be launched into cases of failure to provide welfare assistance to those in need.

"As far as I am concerned, I think we have been far too lenient in welfare payments in B.C.," Gaglardi said.

The council has accused provinces and municipalities of excluding certain eligible categories of persons from receiving assistance under the Canada Assistance Plan, of which the federal government pays half.

Craft Lost Off Island

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States naval research and development centre, Pasadena, Calif., has put up a $5,000 reward for help leading to the recovery of an unmanned underwater craft missing off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The 12-foot-long, five-foot-by-five-foot controlled underwater research vehicle, Curv III, was seen last Sunday in heavy seas in the vicinity of Nootka Sound.

We shall overtake.

Big tough transport trucks tend to look down on small cars. Especially if the small car hasn't got the power to pass him on a two-lane highway.

Introducing the Toyota Corolla 1200 with "overtake".

We've added 13 more horsepower to an already powerful engine, giving us a grand total of 73. All the power and speed you need to overtake the biggest rigs is there. Top speed is over 90 mph, cruising speed is a smooth 75, and you still get up to 35 miles to the gallon.

The extra horsepower is another good reason why Corolla is considered to be the best all-around small car around.

But can the Corolla handle all that power?

You bet your bug it can. We realize that a car that can go has to be able to stop. For that, the Corolla has finned brakes and a dual circuit system.

Inside it hasn't changed a bit. Everything is standard except the radio and the fully automatic transmission. It comes with reclining bucket seats, a three speed heater, heavy duty 60 amp battery, a 1.3 horsepower starter motor, and white walls. The trunk is spacious for a small car, safety features are everywhere, and the price tag speaks for itself.

If you're beginning to think it's a pretty good car for the money, you're right it is. We could go on to tell you that it's a fun car to drive, but you really should drive it and discover that for yourself.

Disaster from Favoritism

IF DEFENCE MINISTER Donald Macdonald's fears are realized over the ballooning costs of the four helicopter destroyers now being built in Quebec, Ottawa could be facing another defence contract scandal which would make the Bonaventure incident appear insignificant in comparison.

Though Canadians will appreciate the dismay Mr. Macdonald experienced on making this "unhappy discovery" so shortly after taking over the defence department, it is to be hoped that they also recognize that the situation has largely been brought about by successive Liberal governments following a policy of awarding all major shipbuilding contracts to Quebec firms.

This policy of favoritism, initiated by the Pearson administration and slavishly followed by the Trudeau government, has had a disastrous effect on west coast shipyards in particular and the British Columbia economy in general.

The Pearson-Hellyer decision which so effectively cut out British Columbia yards was explained away on the grounds that west coast bids on government contracts for naval and other service vessels were not competitive with those submitted by east coast (Quebec) companies.

When complaints were justifiably lodged in Ottawa over this unfair, and largely false, premise, federal ministers and other Liberal Party spokesmen were quick to defend the government's new Quebec-oriented policy by telling B.C. shipbuilders that if they ever hoped to win another government contract they would have to get their prices down.

As recently as the last federal election Mr. David Anderson, then Liberal candidate and now member of Parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich, spent considerable time in telling local shipbuilders how to run their businesses if they wanted some Ottawa jobs.

Following the Trudeau election promise that B.C. shipyards would be awarded a contract to build a $6,000,0000 replacement for the old Estevan coast guard ship, Mr. Anderson said: "I am delighted. The yards should take this construction as a challenge. It is up to the companies and unions to grasp the opportunity. (They) should modify their plants to be competitive with eastern yards."

Unhappily for Mr. Anderson and sadly for the local shipyards the challenge was never accepted because the promise was never kept. Other promises by the Trudeau government suffered the same fate, such as the conversion job for three destroyer escorts and the $3,000,000-plus refitting contract for HMCS Gatineau.

Local protests over the cancelling out of these pledges were once again shrugged off by Ottawa. Mr. Anderson accused local shipyards of being "childish" and told them to stop their "wailing" and sharpen their pencils.

But all this is in the past. What Canadians should now concern themselves with is what has happened since then and what is happening today.

What has happened on the west coast is that one major B.C. shipyard has been forced to close down and at least two others are in a position that can only be described as precarious. Employment at one mainland firm and its Vancouver Island subsidiary has been reduced to almost one-quarter of its normal full-time strength.

What has happened in the east is that the much vaunted Quebec shipyards — the eastern companies which were held up as such a shining example for west coast firms — have come up with the shocking Bonaventure incident and now the even bigger and better one involving the helicopter destroyers.

It is interesting to note that the west coast bid for this same contract named a price of $45,000,000 per ship but was turned down in favor of a Quebec bid rumored to be less than $30,000,000 a vessel. The guess is now that the Quebec price will ultimately be in excess of $75,000,000 for each helicopter destroyer. Which makes the overspending of $5,000,000 of the taxpayers' money on the Bonaventure refit look like peanuts.

With such revealing examples before it, is it too much to expect the Ottawa government to reconsider its policy and once again offer British Columbia shipyards a chance to compete? If it does not the national economy will suffer and the shipbuilding industry on the west coast will disappear.

All Hope Is Not Lost

HOPE HAS BEEN EXPRESSED in some quarters, including the White House, that in spite of the quick condemnation of President Nixon's peace formula for Southeast Asia by both Hanoi and the Viet Cong, the communist side may have second thoughts. After they have made their propaganda pitch of contemptuous rejection, the communists are expected to agree to a discussion of the five-point plan at the Paris negotiation table. They have said as much already, which is a concession of a sort.

It can be expected they will seize upon President Nixon's apparent offer to negotiate "an agreed timetable" for complete United States withdrawal from South Vietnam and without any condition of a pull-back by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The Viet Cong spokesman, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, maintains that before any sort of cease-fire can be discussed what she calls "basic issues" must first be settled.

It is by no means certain what these may be. But one of them is a tacit admission of the righteousness of the communist cause, no doubt, which would imply United States aggression. Somehow a way must be found around such an obstacle to meaningful dialogue.

But in spite of Mrs. Binh's refusal to entertain the president's proposals at this point it will be recalled that the Viet Cong-Hanoi delegation itself offered to talk about a cease-fire on terms of their own. The terms, of course, were not acceptable because they would have meant a virtual surrender of the Saigon administration.

Now, if the two sides can find a satisfactory basis, each giving way a little to effect a compromise, perhaps the delegates can finally negotiate a cease-fire they all profess to want.

From that beginning might come a happy ending.

Even if the communists really doubt President Nixon's sincerity in this instance, they will find it hard to convince uncommitted people of their own good intentions if they refuse this offer to put an end to the killing and to exchange prisoners of war. They ought to test the president's veracity, at least.

Common sense and humanity would suggest that no harm could come from a "stand still" cease-fire and a prisoner exchange. But somehow the meaning of such words seems to have been lost on the battlefield.

"If they don't act pretty quick, they won't need to bother about other pollutions."

Ottawa Comment

Robin Hood Approach to Security

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

IN quick succession, the Economic Council of Canada, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and the Senate committee on banking, trade and commerce have told the Trudeau administration to stop chasing politically-attractive but economically-unsound theories and concentrate on designing measures that would encourage and promote economic growth.

Though dealing with different aspects of government policy (welfare, unemployment insurance and taxation) the Economic Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Senate committee arrived at the same conclusion. The key to the problems of unemployment, poverty, equality of opportunity and better life for all Canadians is economic growth.

* * *

The emphasis on economic growth challenges the increasingly-popular notion that quality of life can and should be improved primarily through redistribution of the existing collective wealth.

This Robin Hood approach to social security and equity, its critics maintain, cannot but lead to economic stagnation. Economic stagnation cannot but increase unemployment and decrease the total wealth available for distribution throughout the society. The result would be general depression of the standard of living. The only equity that can be achieved in such conditions is equalization of poverty, which is the exact opposite of this socio-economic philosophy's theoretical goal of higher quality of life for all.

Anyone who doubts the misery produced by economic and social policies based on this philosophy only has to look at the quality of life in the Marxist-ruled countries which boast of having achieved social security and equity. The social security they provide is the security of the slave and their equity which does not apply to the privileged elite of the ruling party is the equity of bare necessities of life.

There is no escape from the deadening combination of equality of poverty and state regimentation because it has killed individual initiative and removed incentive for honest work.

While this graveyard of human aspirations is the result of a totalitarian system imposed on the Marxist-ruled nations abruptly by force and maintained by force, similar effects can be produced gradually in the free society through a series of misconceived legislative measures.

This can happen by accident or by design if such legislative measures are considered in isolation without regard to their cumulative effect, for some of them may, when treated separately, seem reasonable and desirable.

The value of the criticism voiced by the Economic Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Senate committee lies in gauging the probable effects of specific measures the government has taken or proposes to take on the totality of our socio-economic structure.

In its submission to the Commons committee on manpower and immigration, the executive council of the Chamber of Commerce dealt with the government's White Paper on Unemployment Insurance. While endorsing in principle the government's endeavor to improve and extend unemployment insurance coverage, the Chamber warned that some of the features of the proposed new scale of benefits would have the tendency to remove the incentive for seeking employment.

Specifically, the Chamber considers the proposed benefit ceiling of 75 per cent of weekly earnings too high, the qualifying period of eight to 19 weeks of employment too short, and the period of 51 weeks of the increased insurance payments too long. "We seriously question these ratios," the submission says, "as we think to an important degree it removes from the beneficiary the incentive to work."

The Chamber also doubts the wisdom of the proposed inclusion of sickness and maternity benefits into the unemployment insurance program, and perhaps more important questions the silence of the White Paper "about the objective to which we all should be striving namely the buoyant sustained growth of the Canadian economy."

* * *

"In a sense," the Chambers brief says, "unemployment is dealing with the effects of lack of sustained growth." Poverty is partly the manifestation of a sluggish economy . . . Yet we have White Papers in existence and forthcoming on unemployment insurance, on tax reform, on poverty, on social welfare, and no White Paper on growth.

"We submit that for all Canadians, employees, management, government, this is the important objective; this is the goal to which we should all give out best thought and our best effort. Growth is the condition that will create and sustain the good life for all our people."

It's the same point the Economic Council has made in a slightly different context in its latest report. It is also the point the Senate committee makes in its almost total rejection of the government's White Paper on Tax Reform.

What it all boils down to is a fundamental challenge of the Trudeau regime's economic and social policies.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, medical missionary, died 30 years ago today—in 1940—at his retirement home on Lake Champlain. Only 27 years old when he began the Labrador outports' first medical mission, Grenfell treated 900 patients in the first two months. His bravery and the needs of the outport people led to the foundation of the International Grenfell Association to sponsor a hospital and children's home at St. Anthony, on the northern tip of Newfoundland.

1953—Britain assumed control of British Guinea as a state of emergency was declared; Premier Cheddi Jagan was ousted.

Centennial Race Called Squandering

WHO needs another centenary? Or, to be more explicit, who needs a $175,000 air race? To what extent is the expenditure of a million dollars on this and other equally idiotic capers going to alleviate the unemployment and welfare problems in B.C. or the other provinces?

If the aviation-oriented set can afford such expensive pastimes, let them pay the price. This taxpayer objects to the continual squandering of tax money, particularly since there is apparently insufficient money to keep pensions abreast of the cost of living.

DISGUSTED.

Phasing Out

A few days ago a highly respected Central Saanich farmer came to see me to enquire how I and other local nurserymen felt about the intended phasing out of the Saanichton Agricultural Research Station. This was the first I had heard of such intentions and on phoning other horticulturists in this area I found that they were also uninformed about such happenings.

It appears that under the direction of the present federal minister of agriculture it was decided some time ago to phase out the agricultural and horticultural research work at our Saanichton station and to leave in the end stage only a local plant quarantine section.

This is apparently already being pursued by way of attrition, of not replacing research officers who have either died, retired or who are being shifted elsewhere. Two highly respected and productive such officers have recently died and have not been replaced.

Through this action of the Ottawa government, B.C. and in particular Vancouver Island are being deprived of the valuable service which these research men have in the past performed. Many local farmers and horticulturists would be willing to testify that these local research men have indeed performed invaluable service to the agricultural community and our community at large.

I cite for instance the research work done in recent years on the growing of tomatoes in sawdust, etc., which has not only greatly improved the yield per plant but has in fact revived and renewed the local tomato-growing industry. This alone would justify renewal and continuance of such research.

Whatever the reasons, false economy, perhaps, which Ottawa may have for so sneakingly discontinuing the Saanichton Research Station I say they are shortsighted, invalid and an affront to B.C. and to Vancouver Island in particular.

I call upon all my fellow citizens to protest against this action and to induce the Trudeau government to change its mind about this matter.

Even schoolboys know nowadays that research is what keeps agriculture, business and countries ahead of competitors. To curtail agricultural research is equivalent to giving up the struggle for a better product, better production and a better life. Is this what we want? Ottawa, it seems, is ready to give up without even giving us an opportunity to have a say in this matter.

No Accounting

I note with considerable interest that Welfare Minister Gaglardi has challenged the rest home operators to open their books for inspection in connection with their protest against his edict to accept more welfare patients.

The civil servants in the Victoria area are having similar trouble with "books." In order to administer employee parking around the Parliament Buildings precinct, a parking committee was formed several years ago, composed of representatives of government and our B.C. Government Employees' Union. Each civil servant who wishes to park his car on one of the government lots pays $48 per year for space. This money goes into a parking fund which is presumably to be used to acquire further land for parking and improve existing facilities.

Our union has been endeavoring to elicit, for some time now, a statement from Public Works Minister Chant as to how and where our money is being spent, but he refuses to give an accounting of funds.

In view of Mr. Gaglardi's interest other peoples' accounting methods, perhaps he can convince his cabinet colleague that it would not be unreasonable to make these figures available.

Some may say that this is pretty cheap parking, at $4 per month, however, this is just a method of buying up land and holding it for future uses, at which time any lot would be promptly converted to other purposes.

Who knows, in a few more years the civil servants may be able to pay for a provincially donated site for a civic centre for Victoria!

Problem in Britain

Aid Poor or Repair Churches?

By IVAN YATES from London

ONE of the problems an old country like Britain has to face is what to do with its old buildings. Many of them are very beautiful; some of them have great historical value. But modern buildings and roads and the comprehensiveness of modern planning are no respecter of them, and economic developments often make it necessary to change the use that is made of them. Country houses have to be opened to the public and town houses turned into museums. Societies have sprung up to help in the struggle to preserve the best examples of each period of architecture.

Nobody finds this task of preservation more difficult than the Church of England which has many beautiful buildings in its care. Within the city walls of places like York and Norwich you can find as many as 20 old churches, while the population they were built to serve has melted away into the suburbs. A rural, farming country like Lincolnshire is covered with old village churches, sometimes quite large, with only a handful of people now living in the neighborhood.

* * *

More than 700 redundant Anglican churches may become available for other use than public worship in the next 10 years as the Church of England reorganizes its parochial system, and many may be bought for private use, perhaps overseas.

The Methodist Church is plagued with the same problem. Dr. Kenneth Greet, secretary-designate of the Metholdist Conference, says his church has far too many buildings, many of them in a squalid condition.

The Church of England has not much money to spare for the purpose of preservation, and many of its priests and parishioners lament the amount of time they have to devote to the work of raising funds to keep their churches in good repair. They are torn between their obvious responsibility to hand on to posterity the heritage they themselves received and their conviction that what money they have or can raise should be devoted to the relief of the poor and the suffering.

* * *

This particular dilemma faces David Edwards, one of the most brilliant of Britain's younger clergy, who has just been transferred from the charge of the beautiful Chapel of King's College, Cambridge to the combined job of canon of Westminster Abbey and rector of St. Margaret's, the church which nestles under the Abbey walls and is regarded as Parliament's parish church. Canon Edwards is 41. As a publisher, some years ago he brought out the former Bishop of Woolwich's best-selling book of popular, radical theology, Honest to God.

He is sympathetic to the standpoint of today's radicals without wholly sharing it. As an historian and a former Fellow of All Souls' at Oxford he feels the tug of tradition. So when he found that his first task at St. Margaret's was to raise nearly a quarter of a million pounds, the crisis of conscience that confronted him was agonizing.

How could he possibly avoid this responsibility? John Milton, the poet and Samuel Peyps, the diarist, were both married at St. Margaret's. So were Winston Churchill and Harold Macmillan in this century. In Cromwell's time, MPs had to take communion there before they took their seats across the road. In this century, Lloyd George and Churchill both led their fellow-parliamentarians in procession from the Chamber of the Commons to give thanks there for victory in two world wars.

Yet, as a parish church, St. Margaret's has seen better days. It used to be the only parish church in the whole of Westminster. Gradually, as the borough became built-up, other churches were built and their parishes were carved out of St. Margaret's. Then people began to move out of central London, leaving the area to business houses, shops and hotels. Now St. Margaret's has fewer parishioners than there are days in the year.

* * *

The congregations which packed the church to hear Canon Farrer, the author of the sickly-sentimental Victorian children's classic, Eric, or Little by Little, and, later, Canon Hensley Henson thundering his denunciations of Chinese indentured labor in South Africa at the turn of the century, have dwindled away until only 150 is the normal attendance at Sunday morning service.

In earlier centuries the House of Commons used to grant money for the building and repair of churches — particularly St. Margaret's — by parliamentary motion. But in 1913 an act of Parliament exempted churches and cathedrals from both subsidy and state supervision: other ancient monuments accepted both. So when Canon Edwards' predecessor asked for a grant for St. Margaret's he was refused. A church commission is investigating this problem to see if it would not be preferable for the church to accept a measure of supervision of its historic buildings in return for aid with their repair and upkeep.

* * *

Many countries, including France, maintain a system of this kind. But the Church of England, fearing control by the state, has been chary of asking for this system. As a result, vast sums are continually being raised by local communities. York Minister is at present spending £2 million, all raised by public subscription. It is a heavy burden on its clergy — one that many like Canon Edwards grudge. But it has the advantage, many well-qualified people claim, that Britain's cathedrals and ancient churches are better cared for just because so much love and money is lavished on them by those who live in the area and worship or take an interest in them.

There Is No 'Line', Only Enclaves and Splotches

Vietnam Cease-Fire Difficult to Police

By WARREN ROGERS
From Washington

President Nixon's cease-fire proposal for Indo-China poses so many incredibly difficult problems that its chief saving grace is that it is better than the alternative, which is to keep on fighting.

The president acknowledged this in his speech outlining the plan:

"I do not minimize the difficulty of maintaining a cease-fire in a guerrilla war where there are no front lines . . . a cease-fire-in-place would undoubtedly create a host of problems in its maintenance. But it has always been easier to make war than to make a truce."

* * *

Even if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong accept the idea, which is doubtful, nobody here is sure exactly how it would work.

Nixon laid out a few broad principles—it would be internationally supervised, it would allow neither side to build up strength, it would bar bombing and acts of terror, and it would cover Laos and Cambodia as well as Vietnam.

* * *

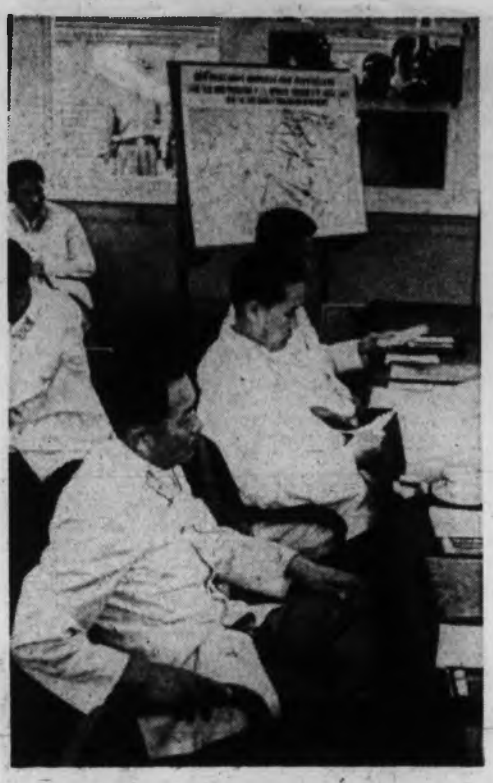

Everything else is up in the air, which is to say it would be the subject of long and tortuous negotiation. The questions to be answered are endless.

For example, who would be in charge where? It is almost impossible to say with precision, in the fluid ambiguity of guerrilla warfare, which side controls which areas.

To whom would the people pay taxes? Who would run schools, deliver food, oversee a hundred and one other minutiae of everyday life?

One thing is practically certain. The Viet Cong are hard to control. Many times in the past orders have gone out from Hanoi to the highlands and jungles of South Vietnam — only to be ignored by the guerrilla leader on the scene.

President Nixon and his advisers are prepared to accept local violations of any cease-fire because they are aware of this disciplinary problem. Within reason, they are ready to take the toll in deaths and injuries that might occur. The rationale again is that it would be better than the war.

North Korean representatives at recent Panmunjom conference. Board in background shows alleged truce violations by UN forces.

* * *

Administration officials have conducted studies to see how a standstill cease-fire would work. But so far there are no quick solutions to such immediate problems as these:

How would surrounded military units receive supplies? How much patrolling could be done by military units without violating the truce? How, in the secrecy of war, could the location of guerrilla forces be pinpointed?

* * *

Negotiators would have to work out procedures for freezing the military, in the case of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese scattered in pockets and enclaves, mostly along the borders and seacoast.

In Laos, the Communists also cling to the border, along the Ho Chi Minh trail tracing down the boundary line from Hanoi to the south.

In Cambodia, they are grouped roughly in the northeastern quarter of the country, otherwise virtually unpopulated.

* * *

Once the diplomats had worked out who controls what territory, assurances would have to be given on both sides not to enter areas under control of the other.

This has been done in Vietnam in the past, the Saigon government tacitly ceding territory and people to the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects and some Montagnard tribes.

In each of the three Indo-China states, the central government would have to acknowledge the authority of the Communists in the areas they control. This authority would extend, of course, to collecting taxes and, presumably, instituting land reform, a burning issue throughout the area.

* * *

No matter what face might be put on such an arrangement, it would still be partition, just as there is partition in Germany, Korea and, indeed, Vietnam itself. But it would be a unique partition, not above and below a line but in enclaves and splotches.

Cyrus R. Vance, who was an American negotiator at the early sessions of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris, refers to such an arrangement as "essentially a form of federation."

* * *

In an interview, Vance said:

"What I believe you would end up with is essentially a form of federation with the various local entities and their people represented in the national legislature, thus giving them a voice in the national government. At the local level you would have control resting in the hands of those who control the territory now."

Vance suggested that, to police the cease-fire in Vietnam alone, an international supervisor body would have to have about 300 posts manned by about 3,000 people. These peacekeepers, he said, would have to have complete freedom to make full, quick inspections of any reported cease-fire violations.

* * *

Gradually, according to Vance, the cease-fire itself would shape the political solution in Vietnam, the country he was discussing. Presumably, it would work the same way in Laos and Cambodia.

Not than anybody in authority here is pushing the idea that it would work anywhere. What they are saying is that, since nothing else has worked, it is time to try a standstill cease-fire, hodgepodge partition and all.

* * *

Even the South Vietnamese seem to be going along. Almost a yer ago, administration officials were quoting President Thieu as saying, of a possible cease-fire, "to preserve the body it is sometimes necessary to give up a leg."

Possible U.S. Troop Withdrawals Give Rise to Fears

Divided Korea Faces Increase in Fighting

By BRUCE KAPLAN, from Panmunjom

North Korea can be expected to significantly increase guerrilla harassment in the South after projected U.S. troop withdrawals.

This prognosis, by South Korean sources not connected with the Seoul government, has been complemented by — rather than being dependent upon — the American pullout, since North Korean Prime Minister Kim Il-sung believes the 1970s to be a highly propitious decade in his plans for reunification.

Nowhere is the rankling wound of Korean division more evident than here, whefe a collection of buildings straddles a demarcation line within the 4,400-yard-wide demilitarized zone.

Panmunjom is a symbol of a war which much of the world has forgotten in the seemingly endless immediacy of Vietnam, but it is likely soon to swing heavily into the limelight in what Kim fervently regards as his decade of destiny.

* * *

Pessimism on the prospects of continuing peace in Korea is founded largely on the idiosyncrasies of Kim, and the probability that partial disengagement of American forces will be misinterpreted by him and his advisers.

If the theory that most wars are begun by one man and a tragic mistake has been overshadowed by the recent rash of "patriotic" wars for which both sides have cogent motives, it may be revitalized by the compulsive yet stonily unemotional Premier Kim.

Korea still is in a state of war because a peace treaty to climax the 1953 armistice has never been signed. When the guns stopped firing on July 27 that year, millions of civilians lay dead: 405,775 persons belonging to the forces of 16 UN members had been killed. Communist casualties numbered 1,700,000.

* * *

Currently, Panmunjom is little more than neutral ground for shouting matches across a conference table bisected by a military demarcation line. But the North Korean representatives at these meetings clearly now are aware of South Korean discomfiture and uncertainty over in the future of the American presence.

At the latest meeting, which I witnessed, Major-General Han Young-ok, People's Army senior member and the official North Korean spokesman, spent most of the six and a half hours lambasting the "puppet" government and the behaviour of U.S. troops.

* * *

Han charged that the Americans shaved the heads of South Korean women before raping them and painting parts of their bodies. He followed this up with the stock demand that U.S. troops get off Korean soil.

The main reason for the meeting was, as usual, propaganda. The following day was North Korea's National Day, and the Communists made the most of the opportunity to address a series of anti-U.S. tirades against Major-General Felix Rogers, the UN command's senior member of the Military Armistice Commission.

This commission supervises the implementation of the Korean truce terms, and has five members on each side. The UN command's senior member position is rotated bi-annually among the U.S. army, air force and marine corps.

South Korean representatives also serve on the commission. Four North Korean People's Army officers, and one officer of the Chinese Peoples's Volunteers, represent the Communists.

* * *

A neutral nations supervisory commission acts as an independent fact-finding body which reports to the armistice commission. It consists of four senior officers, from two nations selected by each side. North Korea and China chose Czechoslovakia and Poland; the UN command chose Sweden and Switzerland.

Warfare between North and South Korea never has been the exclusive drawing-board domain of either side, but the measure of Seoul's own hand in the persistently unhappy border situation now — in the light of the U.S. forces reduction — is becoming increasingly evident.

In a moment of rare candor, a senior official of the South Korean government told me: "There are two sides to every coin. The United Nations and American troops in our country are here as much to stop us invading the North as they are to stop the Communists coming south. The possibility is always there."

* * *

Thus, the predicted increase in operations by the guerrilla-minded Prime Minister Kim is far from likely to be met with restraint by the government of his counterpart in the South, Park Chung-hee.

Most observers are confident that South Korea, however keen its eagerness to "liberate" the North, will not precipitate major hostilities. But the safety valve of overall consideration and restraint, so dearly desired by UN representatives in Seoul, still cannot be counted upon within the government.

To the UN observers, that part of the Korean situation which sets it apart from the Vietnam problem — the determination of not one but two sides to achieve reunification on their own terms — means their task never will be finished.

And to the North Korean government, mistaken interpretation of U.S. pullout plans may have disastrous results which would negate some 17 years of a savage peace.

Agent Describes Buffalo Campus

Lessons in Mayhem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bearded, shaggy red-haired undercover agent showed senators Thursday a bomb in a baby bottle which he said campus radicals had taught him to manufacture as part of his training to kill policemen.

Kevin Caffery, 23, displayed the baby bottle, filled with cherry bombs, razor blades and other metal fragments, as well as chains, an iron bar and chain with a heavy bolt at the end, and several small explosive devices he said were made by students at the New York State University at Buffalo, N.Y.

Caffery was introduced by Michael Amico, sheriff of Erie County, N.Y., who told a senate internal security subcommittee that recent violence on the university campus was caused by a dozen young activists and more than 50 sympathetic faculty members who "lend encouragement and direction to students."

"The groups we are dealing with today are not innocent, misinformed students," Amico said. "They know precisely what they are doing. Their ultimate goal is not reform, but revolution."

The sheriff added: "As the university exists today, revolutionary violence, especially violence against policemen, is supported by the university."

Caffery testified he was "trained to kill police" by members of radical groups on the Buffalo campus. His training, he said, included manufacture of explosive devices and attacks against the university and police.

He described the firebombing of a university building and other disruptions in March as "a well-prepared military attack."

The subcommittee, headed by Senator James Eastland (D—Miss.), is considering a number of bills that would make unprovoked assaults on policemen and firemen a federal crime.

After Amico testified that "an extremely radical minority" of professors at Buffalo had encouraged expansion of student revolutionary activities, Eastland swore in the sheriff, Caffery and two assistants and heard further testimony about faculty involvement behind closed doors.

Amico said 90 per cent of injuries suffered by Buffalo policemen this year were inflicted by radical students at the university.

Dynamite: 400 Pounds

GRANDE-RIVIERE, Que. (CP) — Eight cases of dynamite, each weighing 50 pounds, have been stolen from a construction site in this community at the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Nearly 16,000 sticks of dynamite have been stolen so far this year from quarries and construction sites across the province.

Labor Attack

Senators Take Places

OTTAWA (CP) — Five of the eight new senators appointed this week by Prime Minister Trudeau were sworn in Thursday at the first sitting of the Senate following the reading of the speech from the throne opening a new session of Parliament.

Mme. Therese Casgrain of Montreal, one of two women among the eight senators appointed Wednesday, got her share of desk-pounding applause from her new colleagues.

The other senators who took their places Thursday were Eugene Forsey of Ottawa, Liberal; William McNamara of Winnipeg, Liberal; Gildas Molgat of St. Vital, Man., Liberal; and Edward Lawson of Vancouver, Independent.

New senators who have yet to be sworn in are Ernest Manning of Edmonton, Social Credit; Paul Lafond of Hull, Que., Liberal; and Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Haddon Heath of Nanaimo, Liberal.

In Vancouver, meanwhile, Lawson's appointment to the Senate revived old animosities in the British Columbia labor movement.

"They couldn't have picked a worse spokesman for labor," commented Paddy Neale, Vancouver and District Labor Council secretary. "He has always played footsie with the establishment."

Safer Tows Drive's Aim

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Towboat Owners' Association has launched an industry-wide safety program in the wake of recent contract disputes in which safety was a major issue.

Association president J. H. Gardiner said Wednesday the program will be kicked off later this month with four-day courses for shore-based supervisors and management marine personnel.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow this Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

'Worth 20 Times as Much'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Modest capital investment in the Skagit Valley would result in net recreational values at least 20 times as high as the B.C. government will get for allowing Seattle City Light to flood the valley, the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control said Thursday.

The society says the net annual value of the valley would be at least $586,800 a year with development of a better access road and construction of a 600-acre camping-picnic site.

The provincial government will receive $34,566 a year for the 6,000 acres to be flooded when the city-owned utility goes ahead with plans to add 125 feet to its High Ross Dam.

The society makes the claims in an interim report of a committee studying the effects of the flood plan.

The society describes the Skagit situation as a "Mad Hatter's Teaparty," with the provincial government refusing to act, Ottawa stalling and Seattle claiming it does not need a Canadian permit to flood the Valley.

The report suggests there may be a novel legal way to stop the flooding if it can be proved the provincial government made a witless agreement in allowing Seattle to pay only $5.50 per acre for the acreage it plans to flood.

The society says the law provides recourse in a case where "some witless person, such as an infant, a drunkard or a person of unsound mind . . . . signs away valuable rights for a song."

Tall Equals Intelligence

LONDON (UPI) — Tall people tend to be more intelligent than short people, according to a book just published.

Dr. James Douglas of the London School of Economics said his findings were based on a survey of 5,000 school children.

West Coast Protests 'Russian Threat'

Bid to Extend Fishing Zones

BELLINGHAM (AP) — West Coast fishermen are collecting petition signatures nationwide in an effort to force Congress to extend fishing zones off U.S. coasts as protection against what they see as a foreign threat.

About 1,500 names were collected in the first two weeks of the campaign in this Northwest Pacific port, where fishermen have joined others from Oregon to Alaska in protest of increasing Russian fishing activity off the coast.

The commercial fishermen want Congress to enact into law either a 200-mile limit, protection of waters to the end of the continental shelf, or whatever is necessary "to stop encroachment by foreign fishing vessels on American fishing stock."

The present limit is 12 miles.

There have been numerous reports from Canadian and American fishermen of gear damage and disputes over the past three seasons.

Fee-Hike Delay on Doctors' Ballots

Corbett explained it provided for fee increases every two years based on cost-of-living and weekly wages and salaries indexes.

Dr. E. C. McCoy, BCMA executive director, said this has meant average annual increases of about 3.4 per cent, but the increases were always two years behind the rate of growth of the B.C. economy.

Corbett said B.C. doctors as long ago as 1941 accepted prepaid medical care insurance schemes and have tried hard to make medicare work, including agreeing to accepting as payment 90 per cent of their schedule of fees for care given medicare subscribers.

"However, we now recognize an exceedingly difficult condition — the dual problem of inflation and recession side-by-side in the economy.

"Some responsible segments of society will say, let's stop this wicked treadmill." Corbett said. "Our board or directors accepts that a moratorium (on fees) is desirable, but we believe a decision on this should be by our general membership.

"That is why every member of the association will be provided with a ballot by which, after quiet and thoughtful consideration, he can express his personal convictions."

Corbett said the ballot basically will ask each doctor whether he favors a moratorium of not more than one year.

"It will not be easy for doctors to say 'no,' especially after looking at some of the tremendous wage and salary increases granted other groups."

* * *

He said it might be six or eight weeks before the results of the referendum are known. The question on the ballot will be scientifically prepared in consultation with experts on opinion surveys.

The problems of the medical services commission were outlined to the doctors Thursday morning by their representative on that body, Dr. P. J. Banks of Victoria.

Banks, former president of the Canadian Medical Association, was a co-author of the pioneering agreement that was signed with the B.C. government in 1965.

It was learned that he retraced the discussions held with government and pointed out that the government has simply said no more money is available for doctors' fee increases.

* * *

The fees discussion was the convention highlight, and the topic has been in the spotlight since Wednesday, when about 150 doctors suddenly arrived in town. One group of 43 from the Surrey-Delta area, flew here on group rates.

Registration stood at about 390 Thursday.

Many of the late-arrivals represented the militant group within the profession — those doctors who feel BCMA should press ahead with negotiations for a fee increase.

If the province-wide referendum produces a "no" response, the BCMA directors have few alternatives other than a return to the bargaining table.

* * *

If there is still no hope of money from the government, they could resort to "balance billing," a suggestion made Wednesday in Vernon by Dr. Douglas Kippen of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Medical Association, as one method of avoiding a confrontation with Victoria.

"Balance billing" would involve the patient paying the difference in the fee set by the doctors and the benefit set by government.

Speech 'Empty'

in all my life. It was pretentious in language and empty in content."

Stanfield said the speech could have put more emphasis on the big problem of unemployment.

* * *

New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas was also critical. The speech, he said, was full of frivilous platitudes and failed to deal with the main problems facing Canada, including unemployment.

Never had a throne speech devoted so much time to "the moralizing of motherhood."

"The government has not dealt with credit rates," he said. The policy papers promised for the new session would do nothing to solve the problems of Canadians.

It was the problems of the "new age" that were referred to frequently in the 3,600-word speech, as the government outlined its broad legislative plans for the new session, including the creation of a new department to deal with pollution and a new rank for ministers who will deal with specialized areas, including urban affairs.

Legislation to help the consumer was promised. Measures would be introduced "to protect Canadians more adequately from the results of combines, mergers and unfair trade practices, to regulate the labelling and packaging of consumer goods, and to protect further the users of consumer credit."

* * *

There would be more emphasis on urban problems.

Under a new government reorganization bill, a position would be created for a minister of state for urban affairs and housing, and the job is slated to go to Robert Andras, now minister without portfolio in charge of housing.

The challenge of the new minister would be to "foster co-ordination of the activities of all levels of government and to contribute to sound urban growth and development."

* * *

There would be "sweeping changes" in the Unemployment Insurance Act "designed to widen considerably both the benefits offered and the persons who are qualified to take advantage of them."

There would be new pollution measures, both for the air and ocean; there would be a revised legal framework for labor-management relations; there would be the long-promised tax revision legislation; white papers would be presented on income security, defence, communications, citizenship and immigration; a special debate on abortion would be held.

Deadline

ment said it had received no reaction from the FLQ following the broadcast.

He also said the government had received no assurance Cross would be safely released before it decided to go ahead with the reading of the manifesto.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday the government would arrange for the broadcast if it got assurances that "without the imposition of unacceptable conditions, Cross will be delivered safe and sound."

Earlier Thursday, the FLQ rejected the idea of a mediator to establish communications between the government and the kidnappers.

In a written communique in which it set the "last" deadline of midnight, the terrorist group warned authorities to broadcast the manifesto and to suspend police investigations of the kidnapping.

Juan de Fuca College is for YOU!

Eight other areas of our province are now served by this type of new and different college for students of all ages.

Juan de Fuca College will provide the first and second years of Arts and Science. Students with satisfactory records will be able to transfer into universities. The student load at UVic can be relieved—and the college student get his or her first two years of tuition at a greatly reduced fee.

But the great story of this new type of college lies in the vocational-technical area. Many of the courses offered are "tailor-made" to suit our businesses, organizations and industries. Juan de Fuca College will be prepared to offer courses in any field of study in which the residents desire instruction.

To the high school "drop-out" — often for reasons beyond his or her control — the new college will say "our door is open if you want further education — there IS hope." Our college will provide special counselling and upgrading courses for students with problems.

At present in our secondary schools, unless you are university bound, most students come to a dead end on graduation. Employment for these pupils lacking further vocational-technical training is scarce.

In other areas of our province — across Canada — throughout the U.S.A. — this new type of flexible post secondary education is opening up new avenues for their students. Victoria students also (young and adult) should have the benefits of this integrated technical-vocational and academic training.

The need has been amply demonstrated and it is the aim of your school board to fulfill this need.

VICTORIA IS FORTUNATE

No money by-law is required in the foreseeable future to provide the campus, buildings and equipment. All other colleges in B.C. (except Selkirk) started in make-shift premises. Many are still running afternoon and evening classes in high schools. Sooner or later these other college districts will have major building money by-laws. Victoria has its ready-made college campus — the Young Building (former Victoria College).

Juan de Fuca College is for the young or adult student who:

—has the capacity for a university education but prefers to complete the first two years in a college.

—desires a university education but who failed for one reason or another to complete the necessary courses in high school.

—needs technical, vocational or semi-professional training for entry into the world of work.

—is not certain of his career goals but who wishes to continue education beyond the high school level.

—wishes to take "up-grading" and "refresher" courses related to his or her own occupation.

—wishes from time to time to take short courses or seminars for enrichment and interest.

The college area itself will benefit from the up-grading of the education of its residents.

Industry, too, will benefit in that more highly trained and specifically skilled workers will be available.

Datsun announces the 1971 economy drive

When it's time to economize — one of the first things to think about is your transportation. But nobody wants to give up power, performance and flair just to save money on gas mileage and maintenance. And now, nobody has to. Datsun's rally-proven stable announces two new economy cars: Datsun 1200 2-door Fastback. And Datsun 1200 2-door Sedan. They're fast, they're functional, they're easy to handle and easy to afford. So if you're planning an economy drive — drive one of ours. See them at any of 250 Datsun dealers across Canada. Datsun 1200. Economical doesn't have to mean ugly.

Datsun 1200 Sedan from $1975*

Economical Economy

The biggest little bargain on the road, with more space inside than anything in its class. More no-cost extras, too. Check the list: bucket seats, padded dash, cigarette lighter, 2-speed heater, 2-speed anti-lift wipers, whitewalls, locking gas cap and steering lock, all standard. You get front disc brakes, independent strut-type front suspension, telescopic shock-absorbing steering column and unit-body construction for peace of mind. And you get up to 40 miles from a gallon of gas, which is what an economy car is all about.

Datsun 1200 Fastback from $2170*

Extravagant Economy

Just because you're economizing, you don't have to let everybody know. And if you're driving the Datsun 1200 Fastback, they'll never guess. Look what you get: the same 69 hp 5-main-bearing engine and all the no-cost extras the Sedan carries. PLUS reclining buckets, carpets and a fold-down back seat. You get from 0 to 60 in just 14.8 seconds, and you get to look really good while doing it. Datsun 1200: It's not very much money, but it's a whole lot of car.

the more-for-your-money car

Rally Short Lived

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices gyrated sharply in a tug-of-war between profit-takers and buyers, with the profit-takers finally taking the day.

A quick 4-point decline in early morning trading was followed by an almost complete recovery and then another fall.

Analysts noted that investors were disappointed by the negative reaction of the Communists to Nixon's proposal for a ceasefire in Vietnam. They also added investors are concerned about third-quarter earnings reports which should be lower than last year's.

Among Canadians, Granby advanced ⅝ to 25¼ and Hudson Bay ⅛ to 21⅝. Inco was off ⅝ at 44⅝, Alcan ⅝ at 22, Canadian Pacific and Dome ¼ at 62½ and 59¼, respectively, and Massey ⅛ at 11⅝.

Low Car Sales Accent Drop in Lead Price

The movemnet toward leadless gasoline is not the main cause of a recent drop on the price of lead or the 10 per cent cutback in production by Cominco — Canada's largest lead-zinc producer.

The reason is the general slowdown in the economy and lower automobile sales according to officials of Cominco, which has recently moved its head offices from Montreal to Vancouver.

Howard Bailey, general supervisor of Cominco public relations said in Victoria Thursday the loss of the gasoline market might never be total, and, even if it was, the loss would be spread over a number of years.

"There are, however, expectations that new attachments to auto engines will be installed which will effectively remove any air pollution that leaded gasoline may cause," he said.

"As the use of lead is growing at about 5 per cent a year, and as gasoline accounts for about 20 to 25 per cent of the market for lead, the gradual loss of this market would more or less be balanced out with the normal overall increase in lead demand."

He added, however, that Cominco's product research division was coming up with new uses for lead, and he felt the long-term outlook for the metal was fairly good.

As Cominco refines mostly its own lead concentrates, the 10 per cent outback in Trail lead production would be felt mainly by Cominco's own lead-producing properties of which the chief ones are the Sullivan mine at Kimberley and the Pine Point mine at Great Slave Lake, Bailey said.

This outback, together with the loss on currency exchange for exported products and the drop in price of lead would probably lower the current net profits of Cominco and its principal subsidiary, Pine Point. But Bailey believed that with an upturn in the economy and new uses for the company's metal products, the setback would be a short one.

NEW CHIEF

A former president and chief executive officer of one of the major U.S. life insurance companies has taken over the presidency of Investors Overseas Services Ltd., the financially-troubled international mutual fund operating out of Switzerland.

Robert Slater will take over as chief executive officer from Sir Eric Wyndham White, who will retain his position as chairman of IOS.

DOLLAR'S RIVAL

European Common Market finance ministers are to meet in Luxembourg on Oct. 26 to consider a long-term plan for a common currency.

Announced this week by Luxembourg Prime Minister Pierre Warner, the plan would be in stages over the next 10 years starting early in 1971.

The plan calls for stabilization of the existing currencies of the six countries by cutting inter-currency fluctuations from the present 3 per cent to 1½ per cent.

If the plan is accepted, it would lead to the full economic and monetary union envisaged by the ECM.

How it would affect sterling if Britain eventually joins the community is not yet clear.

At the moment, the U.S. dollar and the pound sterling are the only true international currencies, but the new European currency would undoubtedly have to be considered in the same light.

Some monetary experts feel that the creation of another major currency would tend to draw the Canadian dollar into a closer affinity with the U.S. dollar or the new metric system pound.

Trudeau Cited In Civil Action

TORONTO (UPI) — A writ suing the federal government for damages has been issued against Prime Minister Trudeau and Energy, Mines and Resources Minister J. J. Greene on behalf of Roman Corp., principal shareholder in Denison Mines Ltd., it was reported Tuesday.

The writ, asks for a declaration that the prime minister and Greene committed "wrongful procurement of breach of contract between Roman Corp. and Hudson's Bay "without legal or constitutional rights."

It also asks that the sale agreement between Hudson's Bay and Roman Corp., of last Feb. 24, be declared a valid existing contract. The sale involved the exchange of 1.6 million Denison shares for about $104 million.

Denison, Canada's largest uranium producer, also issued a writ against federal Attorney-General John Turner, asking for a declaration that the Atomic Energy Control Act, as amended, be declared ultra vires, or beyond the law.

Engineering: what price the craftsman?

Mercedes-Benz looks at the diminishing role of the craftsman in industry—but remains adamant as to his value

Mercedes-Benz Model 250, from $5,998 Other models from $5,392* to $31,456

MODERN automated industrial techniques have largely replaced individual craftsmanship. This has certainly lowered prices, but the results are often not to the high standard set by the craftsman — who takes pride in producing a perfect article.

However, for the manufacturer, craftsmanship and perfection are expensive. Thank heaven for the owners of Mercedes-Benz automobiles.

Our recent survey shows this breed of man is intolerant of imperfection. He buys a watch with the expectation that it will remain accurate, month after month. He buys hand-crafted furniture because it is well built, beautiful, and will last for years.

Men like this can improve the future of the craftsman. For only when consumers are prepared to pay for his work, will manufacturers include him on their production lines.

Without scores of individual craftsmen the Mercedes-Benz would not be possible. For engineering skill alone is not responsible for one of the most precisely built cars in the world.

The actual building is up to craftsmen in the factory. Cabinetmakers carve and fit the wood trim. Former dressmakers sew the upholstery. And 4,000 inspectors are willing to lower a day's output by rejecting a car that is less than perfect.

This comes as no surprise to the Mercedes-Benz owner. He gains satisfaction from knowing there are thousands of individual body welds. That engine bearings are machined to 4/10,000 of an inch. The same kind of satisfaction that he gains from his own business. Perhaps diagnosing a rare disease, submitting a clear research report, or untangling the complications of corporate law.

A suggestion. If you appreciate fine craftsmanship, and have never driven a Mercedes-Benz, do so.

We invite you to test drive the 250 — or any model in our showrooms. You'll realize the art of the craftsman, and his future, is far from dead at Mercedes-Benz.

Send for the free, full-colour brochure that tells all about the new cars from Mercedes-Benz.

Stockton vs. Trevino— —Jacklin vs. Nicklaus

Match-Play Golf Down to Four

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, the American who has won just about everything in golf, fired two eagles Thursday to defeat Gene Littler of San Diego, Calif., 5 and 4, and move into the semi-finals of the Piccadilly world match play championship.

Lee Trevino, former U.S. Open champion, survived a late charge by U.S. Masters champion Billy Casper, sinking a seven-foot putt on the 18th hole for a one-up victory.

Tony Jacklin, British holder of the U.S. Open, defeated Gary Player of South Africa, three-time winner of this tournament, 2 up.

Thursday's matches were decided on a 36-hole basis over Wentworth's 6997-yard, 36-37—3 layout, 30 miles outside of London.

Ready for Halloween

A timely click of the shutter gave photographer this photo of a University of Rochester soccer player who appears to have exchanged his head for the ball as he charges downfield during a game Wednesday with Syracuse. Rochester won, 5-1.

ALEC MERRIMAN

It doesn't really matter what the weather turns out like this holiday weekend because some outdoorsmen will be happy. Saturday seems the opening of duck shooting on the Island and waterfowl shooters will be happy to see blustery weather.

Deer hunters and north island elk hunters will be happy to see wet weather, like the opening weekend of deer season.

Fishermen on both the lakes and saltwater will be looking for calm weather with just a little wind to riffle the water to make ideal bucktailing conditions.

River fishermen would like to see a little rain to bring up those rivers.

In any event there are plenty of outdoor opportunities available at this time of year.

Lake fishing is now at its best with the trout in prime condition.

Pete Edwards reports Cowichan Lake fishing good with schools of cutthroats on the move all over the lake and some fine wet fly fishing among the reeds in Marble Bay.

Little Qualicum and Big Qualicum estuaries have been providing fine sea-run cutthroat fishing, with a tinsel fly preferred lure. Other rivers like the Cowichan and Oyster are also producing well.

There has been some good fly fishing at the mouth of the Elk River and in Upper Campbell Lake, especially on dry fly in the evenings.

We have had reports of diseased fish from Buttle Lake and fish and wildlife biologists say that yellow grubs which cause small cysts are fairly common in Buttle Lake and even more so in some of the shallower Sayward Lakes. But they don't harm the eating qualities of the fish.

Salmon fishing areas are starting to narrow down, but where the fish are runnelling through and schooling on their way to their spawning rivers some fantastic fishing is reported.

There are plenty of big coho still showing in the Campbell River area and Buzz Bombing and mooching with a Deadly Dick has been productive in the Oyster River, Miracle Beach area.

Bates Beach, all the way down to Little River, has been good for early morning bucktailing, just on the outside of the kelp beds, but you have to be on the water early.

Deep Bay has a good showing of northern coho, from nine to 18 pounds between Denman Island and Deep Bay, around the black spar and the red can buoy, and they have been taking anything from Tom Mack spoons, to strip, bucktails and Flashtails.

French Creek bucktailing for good-sized coho has been described as "fantastic" but it is an early morning show, just around daybreak, after which it is scratch fishing by strip casting or mooching with Deadly Dicks, Buzz Bombs and the like. The biggest flies you can get seem to be the answer with blue and white one of the favorite colors.

Cowichan Bay locals report "the biggest schools of coho they have ever seen in Cowichan Bay," but that doesn't mean they are easy to catch. That is the frustrating thing about Cowichan Bay . . . the fish jump all around you, but they are often hard to catch.

Thursday morning there appeared to be a fresh school moving in around Separation and Musgrave Points and another new school around Cherry Point. Flies have been taking fish on the surface and down as deep as two ounces when there is no riffle on the water. But strip, no flasher, eight ounces of weight and 40 feet of line has been the best combination, although remember bait is outlawed for this weekend's three-day Cowichan Bay derby. Fluorescent U 2-0 Flatfish has also been taking coho, with the hook setup changed to single treble hooks, back and front, instead of the harness setup.

Porlier, Thetis, Tent and Kuper are all producing coho and jacks. Trial Island, Fiddle Reef and Brotchie Ledge waters are producing some chinooks and a few big coho. Pedder Bay has had some hot fishing for smaller chinooks, intermingled with coho, and there are still some very big coho to be taken in Race Rocks, Church Island, Beechey Head, Secretary Island and Otter Point waters.

Saanich Inlet is still quite good with limits of chinooks and jacks reported from Willis Point to McKenzie Bay, Bamberton and Misery Bay waters, the latter producing the odd very large coho. Hatch Point and Whiskey Points have been good coho spots.

Port Renfrew waters are still a good bet for large coho. In last Sunday's derby, Brian Hart of Victoria hit a tremendous double-header in San Juan Bay off Thrasher Cove, landing an 18.2-pound coho and a 15.6-pound coho, either one of which would provide the thrill of a lifetime. They hit at the same time on two different kinds of lures.

Canucks, Kings Launch NHL Schedule Tonight

Some of the questions developing from the most recent expansion of the National Hockey League might be answered tonight when Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles open the new season in Vancouver.

More likely the answers will emerge gradually as the expanded 14-team, two-division league proceeds through its record 546-game schedule and some may not come for six months less five days when that schedule ends.

The biggest interest may be in the ability of the Canucks and Buffalo Sabres to cope with the five established clubs in the East Division.

Chicago Black Hawks, champions of the East Division, have moved to the West but Canucks and Sabres still are left with Montreal, Toronto, New York, Detroit and Boston.

BIG TICKET SALES

Even if Hal Laycoe, Canuck coach, is having trouble finding the right combination for tonight's opener, the Canucks' owners will cry all the way to the bank regardless of where the team finishes.

With more than 12,000 season ticket holders, the Canucks can expect to play home games before at least 90-per cent capacity crowds at the 15,553-seat Pacific Coliseum.

They are Ned Harkness at Detroit, Tom Johnson at Boston, Al Arbour at St. Louis, Jack Gordon at Minnesota and Larry Regan at Los Angeles.

Veteran coaches are Emile Francis at New York and Billy Reay at Chicago. Fred Glover at Oakland and Claude Ruel at Montreal are entering their third season while Red Kelly at Pittsburgh, John McLellan at Toronto and Vic Stasiuk at Philadelphia are second-year men.

OTHER QUESTIONS

Among the questions needing answers are:

How will Ted Green make out after his near-fatal injuries kept him out of hockey for a year with the Boston Bruins?

What can Bruins' Bobby Orr do for an encore after setting scoring records and how will Gordie Howe make out on defence with Detroit Red Wings?

After tonight's single game the answers will start coming more quickly. Four games are scheduled for each of Saturday and Sunday.

WEEKEND GAMES

New York is at St. Louis, Oakland at Detroit, Buffalo at Pittsburgh and Minnesota at Philadelphia on Saturday. Sunday, Toronto is at Vancouver, Montreal at Philadelphia, Detroit at Boston and Oakland at Chicago.

As the clubs prepared to find the answers on the ice, executives were busy in the meeting rooms.

The league's board of governors came up with a new way of breaking end-of-season ties. They have ruled that ties in the standings at the end of the regular schedule would be settled by giving the advantage to the team with the most wins.

If the clubs have won the same number of games, the tie will be broken by the highest points total earned in games between affected clubs.

Should the tie still exist, it then would be broken by the team with the best record in its own division.

In other action the governors decided to ask all league executives to vote on whether to raise the roster to 19 players — two goalkeepers and 17 others — from the present 18.

The NHL also settled its indemnification dispute with the Western and American Hockey Leagues over the annexation of the Vancouver and Buffalo territories. The AHL will receive $750,000 from Buffalo Sabres and the WHL the same amount from Vancouver Canucks.

The league also increased its draft claiming price to $40,000 from $30,000 but kept its waiver price at $30,000.

Unsigned Players Ruled 'Injured'

The board of governors of the NHL has agreed that all unsigned players may be considered as "injured", allowing clubs to use replacements from the minor leagues, it was announced Thursday.

The ruling was welcomed by several clubs, particularly Vancouver Canucks, who still had five players unsigned on the eve of their opener.

NHL player representative Alan Eagleson of Toronto offered Thursday to another attempt at settlement between the Canucks and Ted Taylor and John Arbour, who walked out of the Canucks' camp earlier this week when they were unable to reach terms with general manager Bud Poile.

Rookie defenceman Jim Hargreaves, veteran rearguard Howie Young and forward Len Lunde were others who had not signed late Thursday night.

Coaches, Players Fined by Butlin

CALGARY (CP) — Three Western Canada Hockey League coaches were fined Thursday by league president Ron Butlin, two players were suspended and a third was placed on probation.

Scotty Munro, coach and general manager of Calgary Centennials, was fined $750 for pulling his team off the ice for 15 minutes during a game in Edmonton Oct. 4.

Coaches Pat Ginnell of Flin Flon Bombers and Nick Mickoski of Winnipeg Jets were each fined $250 after fights erupted during an exhibition game in Winnipeg Sept. 25.

Butlin said the coaches were "directly responsible for the atrocious conduct of their players" and it was amazing no one was injured.

Doug Kerslake of Edmonton Oil Kings and Ron Momeniuk of Calgary were each suspended for the next three games between the two teams because of stick-swinging in the Oct. 4 game.

Blaine Stoughton of Flin Flon was placed on probation because of conduct in recent games which included throwing a stick at spectators in the stands.

Butlin said if Stoughton was involved in any further incidents he could face a lengthy suspension.

Harper, Merrell Lead Senior Golf

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Charles Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and Hans Merrell, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, shot three-under-par 68s Thursday for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the 14th annual National Seniors Open golf tournament.

Harper, winner of the National PGA Championship in 1950, carded 32-36 over the par 36-35—71 Bonanza Country Club course. Merrell, who finished 28th in last year's seniors tourney, had a 37-31 over the shorter 35-36—71 Winterwood County course.

The 56-year-old Harper and Merrell, 53, lead the field of 463, including eight player tied for second with 69s, into today's second round at three courses — Bonanza, Winterwood and host Tropicana Country Club.

Amont those tied for second are former PGA tour regulars Smiley Quick, Los Angeles, and Marty Furgol, Moorestown, N.J. Chuck Kocsis, defending amateur champion, also had 69, low round for amateurs.

Tommy Bolt trying to become the second player to win this 72-hole tournament three successive years, shot even par 71 at Bonanza.

Buy Guard

PORTLAND (AP) — Pat Riley, a three-year veteran in the National Basketball Association, has been sold to Los Angeles Lakers for an undisclosed sum by Portland Trail Blazers.

Riley, a reserve guard, had been drafted by Portland from San Diego where he averaged nine points a game. He was an all-American at Kentucky.

Recreation Supermarket Offers Computerized Golf

By DON SHANNON
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

TOKYO — Japan's first "recreation supermarket" has opened in a $4,500,000 building equipped with a computerized golf course, automatic scoring bowling alleys and a machine to wash cars while customers try to eliminate their slice.

The computerized golf game was the obvious hit at the formal inauguration staged by Nippon-Brunswick, a joint venture of the U.S. Brunswick Corp. and the giant Japanese trading firm, Mitsui and Co. Guests crowded around to watch foursomes "play" a mythical nine-hole course made up of famous holes from U.S. links.

A FLUB IS A FLUB

With a movie-sized screen giving a full color view from the tee, players hit real balls into the screen, made of tapes, and the flight of the ball can be seen on the screen, with direction and distance determined and shown by computer. A flub without enough force to penetrate the tapes leaves the player as embarrassed as a dribble off a real tee and a computerized flight into the water hazard on the eighth hole of Chicago's St. Charles Country Club leaves him equally frustrated.

If the ball lands in the rough, it must be hit from a deeper carpet surface than that representing the fairway. Each player's lie is recorded so that the screen shows his position at the touch of a button on the console.

CHANGEABLE CONTOURS

When a foursome approaches the green, they move outside the screen room — called a "shell" — to an adjoining 60-foot artificially turfed green which has not only a sand trap but a surface which can be varied to 18 different contours by random selection.

The game has been in operation in a Chicago suburb for two years and another was installed more recently in Woodhaven, N.Y., with a third planned for Buffalo.

NO TIRED FEET

"It's been developed to the point that it gives you everything a real game can give you except wet or tired feet and something a real game can't give you — a computerized score that nobody can cheat on," a Brunswick official commented.

Prices are not cheap at 4,000 yen ($11) per hour for a foursome but green fees at Japanese golf clubs frequently cost this much per person. And the closest course in Tokyo is at least an hour from the city, so that a game becomes an all-day affair.

Brunswick also hopes to spur demand for its latest automatic scoring machines for bowling, installed on 34 of the 46 lanes in the five-storey building. More than 300 bowling centre managers from all over Japan were invited to the opening to see the new equipment, designed not only to make the game easier for people who don't like scoring but, more importantly for operators, speeding up the game appreciably and thus increasing revenues.

John L. Hanigan, president of Brunswick's parent U.S. corporation, said Tokyo offered the ideal testing ground for such a combined sports centre because of its high population density and established interest in golf and bowling. The price of the site in the Ikebukuro district of Tokyo was a shock for the Americans, however: $1,200,000 for approximately a quarter of an acre.

"That's the highest-priced real estate we own anywhere in the world," Hanigan said.

Brundage Welcomes 'Dare' But Finn Denies Report

PARIS (CP-Reuters) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has taken up the reported challenge of Pauli Nevala, Finnish Olympic gold medallist, to reveal the earnings of top international athletes, but Nevala has denied ever throwing down the gauntlet.

"It will eliminate some dishonest athletes," Brundage, 83-year-old American defender of amateurism in Olympic competition, commented in an interview on a published report that Nevala had earned between $7,700 and $9,200 a season as an athlete.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet quoted Nevala, 30-year-old Olympic javelin champion in 1964, as saying he was paid at least 800 crowns ($254) each time he competed in a track and field meet, which was about 50 to 60 times a season.

The Aftonbladet story, which Nevala said in Vasa, Finland, was "completely wrong," quoted the athlete as saying the payment for each meet "is known as 'compensation for travel costs and lost working hours'."

"But this double morality has got to end. Call it 'payment for a job.'

"Certainly Brundage can disqualify me," the newspaper claimed Nevala said in an interview. "But I do not think he will dare. If I am disqualified, I will bring out figures on how much the stars in the East and West earn from their sport."

Brundage said that even if Nevala carried out alleged disclosure of the names of top athletes taking illegal payments for amateur competition, the Olympic movement would go on despite their possible disqualification by the International Amateur Athletics Federation.

On the contrary, it would be wonderful, he said, "because we would have more honest and purer Olympic Games that way."

'Inner Conceit' Drives Bench to Perfection

Others Say Temptations Are Most Important Challenge

By JOHN WEIBUSCH
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

There are three things — and only three things — that could prevent Johnny Bench from perpetuating the greatness he has attained in this, his third full season with the Cincinnati Reds.

The three things are blondes, brunettes and redheads — and not necessarily in that order.

A man who knows how it is, a man who works for another team, says, "The single most important challenge to any ballplayer who makes it are the temptations which present themselves.

"Here was a kid (Bench) who was 19 when he was brought to the big leagues. At 20 he was a star, not just a bordering player, not just another rookie, but a star, an all-star. And more than even a star, he's got looks and charm going for him, too.

"It's tough, really tough, and when you are a bachelor on top of it all, well, then it's tougher yet."

It is a word that is not applicable to the rest of the baseball life of Johnny Lee Bench. It has been easy, not tough, and the men who call him the boy with the golden arm now say that soon he will be the man with the golden wallet.

FIRST TO $200,000

Rube Walker, the New York Met's pitching coach, says, "Bench will be baseball's first $200,000 player. And the way he's going that might be low."

The advancement has been breathtaking, indeed:

— In 1967, at 19, he was named player of the year in the minor leagues.

— In 1968, he was the National League's rookie of the year and a member of the all-star team.

HOME-RUN LEADER

— In 1970, he is a three-time all-star, the major-league leader in home runs (45) and runs batted in (148) and, along with teammate Tony Perez, the co-favorite to become the league's most valuable player.

"It's just pitiful that one man should have as much talent as Johnny," says Sparky Anderson, the Reds' manager.

The evaluation is more than just patronage from the home team. It is the same in all of the rest of baseball.

THEY'RE IN ACCORD

"He is the best young catcher I've ever seen," says Los Angeles Dodger manager Walter Alston.

"If I had my first pick of any player in the league, then Bench would be my first choice," added Gene Mauch, the Montreal Expos' manager.

Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals: "He has the greatest hands I've ever seen."

"A guy like this doesn't come around very often," agreed Leo Durocher, manager of the Chicago Cubs. "I've been around awhile, and I can tell you that."

WILLIAMS WROTE IT

The praise was ephomized, though, by the words that were written on a baseball by a man whose name is in the hall of fame. When Ted Williams autographed a baseball for Bench, the inscription said: "To Johnny Bench, a hall of famer for sure."

The man who has heard nothing but praise for four years admits it is difficult to separate fantasy from reality.

"I know that a lot of what I say might sound cocky," he said, "and there are people who might think that Johnny Bench is in love with himself. This isn't true.

INNER CONCEIT

"I have developed what I call 'inner conceit.' You have to have that. It's the feeling I have that I can throw out any base runner alive or that I can get a hit in a clutch situation off any pitcher. No matter what you do in life you've got to believe in yourself and know that you can do it.

"Sure, I've been flattered by all those things I've heard and read. I mean comparing me to Mickey Cochrane and Gabby Hartnett and Roy Campanella.

IT'S HAPPENED FAST

"All I hope is that they're saying the same things 10 years from now. That's when they'll really mean something to me."

He shook his head wondrously. "Things have happened to me in the last five years that most people don't experience in a lifetime.

"And then I realized the adulation there is with the kids and I get a really funny feeling. It was just a few years ago that I was one of those kids. My idol was Mickey Mantle."

Johnny Bench has won two golden gloves and a third is a certainty but he believes there is room for improvement.

"I'd like to improve defensively," he said and, when his audience recoiled in mocking disbelief, he added:

"I don't care if you're a consistent leader in every area, which for me would be catching, throwing, handling pitchers and hitting. Even if you attained that, then there would be some things that could stand improvement, something that somebody else might be doing a little better.

LEARN BY MISTAKES

"The big thing is to examine your mistakes and then never make the same one again. You really can learn by your mistakes and in order to do that you must realize exactly what's happened.

"There's never a time when you should feel that you can be anything but the best. You've got to do everything you can to make people say, 'he's the best catcher in baseball.' "

For Johnny Bench it is now largely a matter of making people say it next year and the years after that.

Johnny Bench and Tony Perez

Bench Figures He's 'Due'

CINCINNATI (AP) — It's power against power, Jim Palmer's blazing fastball against the free swinging Cincinnati Reds in a classic matchup here Saturday in the world series baseball opener.

Palmer, a 20-game winner this year for Baltimore Orioles, relies on his fastball. And it's the fast ball that the big Cincinnati hitters such as Johnny Bench, Tony Perez and Lee May thrive on.

STRUCK THEM OUT

The Orioles right-hander, who fanned 198 batters in 305 innings during the regular season, struck out Bench and Perez the only time he faced them in the July All-Star game this season.

"I got both of them with a slider, a pitch I don't use anymore," he said. "When I stopped throwing a slider, my fast ball got better."

IT'S HIS TURN

Bench, the major league home run leader in 1970, thinks the odds may be in his favor this time. He's batted against Palmer three times before.

"The first time he struck me out and the next time I hit a grand slam homer off of him when we were both in the International League," the Reds' catcher said.

"Then he struck me out in the All-Star game. I guess I'm due for a hit the next time.

"He throws very hard," Bench said. "You don't win 20 games without something."

Palmer will be opposed by Gary Nolan, also a hard-throwing righthander.

Perez, the Reds' third baseman who slammed 40 homers and drove in 129 runs during the season is looking forward to facing Palmer again.

LIKE CHALLENGE

"He's a challenge with his fast ball, that's what I like," Perez said. "He threw me a couple of fast balls and struck me out on a slider in the All-Star game."

"We're aggressive hitters," Reds' manager Sparky Anderson said of the matchup. "We strike out a lot and we don't walk very much. We're a 3-0 hitting team."

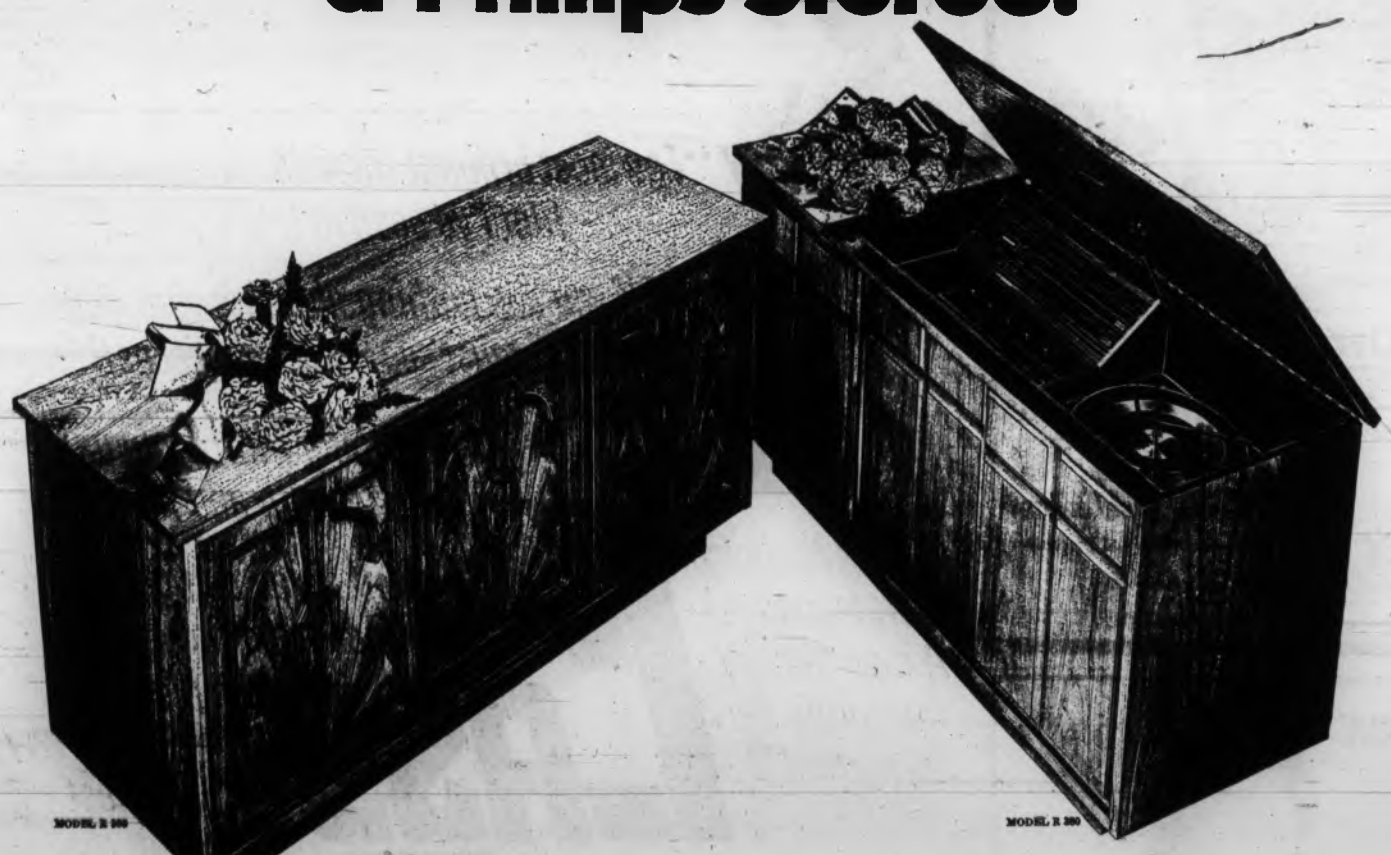

Both teams will work out today in Riverfront Stadium.

Film Vote Protested

Producer Wants Check

TORONTO (CP) — Terry Dene, co-producer of the Canadian-made but United States-financed movie Homer, has demanded a full investigation of Canadian Films Awards voting procedures.

He said in an interview Wednesday that he has information that someone instructed the awards jury not to nominate or to vote prizes to any Americans who helped to make or act in Homer.

Homer was one of 12 feature movies competing in the 22nd annual Canadian Film Awards held in Toronto last Saturday.

It was the only one financed by a U.S. company, Palomar Productions of New York, but it was filmed in Schomberg, north of Toronto, by Toronto director John Trent.

Gerald Pratley, awards jury chairman, said Dene's charges were "utterly absurd."

"It has been the practice of the awards committee not to allow any film made by non-Canadians into competition, but in this case an exception was made, and because of the exception, everyone in the film was eligible for awards," Pratley said.

Holdup Men Flee in Boat

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (AP) — Two masked robbers made off in a motorboat on the St. Lawrence River Tuesday with an estimated $100,000, after locking five bank employees in a record vault. The stolen boat later was found abandoned on the United States side of the river.

King Fisherman

Mixed Bag Makes Pedder Bay Lively Place

Pedder Bay waters are providing some of the liveliest fishing in local waters these days with a mixed bag of coho and smaller winter chinook providing the sport.

Wednesday, Pedder Bay guide Gerry Gieskens took out Jack Hutton of Calgary and Bill Phillips of Victoria, and 2½ hours later they returned with their limit of 12 salmon — three coho 11 to 15 pounds and nine winter chinooks to 8½ pounds.

They got them all in the sheltered waters off both sides of the kelp beds in the Deep Hole area near Fossil Point. They were using Super Strip Teaser, no flasher, and small planers and Harrison Trippers with heavy weights — bottom bumping.

Family Picks Up Tracking Honors

Members of the Bates family of 3824 Epsom Drive, Saanich, made winning a family affair Sunday when they represented the Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club at the Canadian Kennel Club tracking test in Vancouver.

Lord Balfour is a hyacinth.

He's purplish violet, as befitting his title. Or let fancy lead you to any other Dutch variety of tulip, crocus, daffodil, or hyacinth for spring. We have them all. But choose and plant now! Our prices are most unaristocratic.

Water Polo Players Needed

Victoria Water Polo Association will begin league play Saturday at Crystal Gardens starting at 5 p.m.

The league was a four-team operation last year and, if enough interest is shown, it will expand this season.

Davenport To Manage At Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) — Infielder Jim Davenport, who completed 12 years with San Francisco as a coach the latter half of the season, has been named manager of the Phoenix Giants in the Pacific Coast League.

The former third baseman succeeds Hank Sauer, who took over the field job at midseason when Charley Fox moved up to the parent San Francisco Giants. Sauer asked to return to his old job as a Giant scout.

General manager W. D. 'Rosy' Ryan announced the appointment of Davenport, who has been managing the San Francisco entry in the Arizona Instructional League.

Championship Confirmed

PARIS (AP) — The late Jochen Rindt of Austria was officially declared world champion racing driver Thursday by the international sporting commission of the International Automobile Federation, the controlling body of the sport.

Rindt, who won five Grand Prix races this year—Monaco, Holland, France, Britain and Germany—had scored 45 points when he was killed in a crash while practising for the Italian Grand Prix at Monza Sept. 5.

His closest rival was Belgium's Jackie Ickx, who now has 31 points. But with only the Mexican Grand Prix still to be run, Ickx cannot overtake Rindt's total.

American Motors 1971.

At American Motors we feel that in our 1971 product line, we've achieved our major objective. That is, to build a complete line of cars for a broad range of car buyers. Sports, sub-compacts, compacts, intermediates, full-sized cars . . . we've engineered them all with one thought in mind . . . that every car represent real, demonstrable value in its size and price range.

I invite you to see and drive the American Motors car which comes closest to fulfilling your requirements. See if you don't agree with us when we say: "We give wheels to greater value".

L. G. RICE
President, American Motors (Canada) Limited.

IMPORT SIZE IMPORT PRICE SIX CYLINDERS

In the first place, Gremlin is the only sub-compact with a 6 cylinder engine. Moreover, it's a very powerful 6 cylinder engine delivering 135 active horsepower. To go even further, it's a very reliable engine, thanks to the efforts we've put into proving and improving it over a long period of time.

Yet with all that power, it still delivers up to 27 miles per gallon. And the super-big fuel tank remains, so you can still get over 400 miles between gas stations.

The other big difference in Gremlin lies in the area of acceptability. Gremlin was introduced in April of this year and its sales and owner-satisfaction reports have skyrocketed. Conclusion: A sub-compact with 100% proven acceptability.

Matador is the best value bar none in the mid-size field.

Matador gives you more car for your money. With its headroom, hiproom, legroom and 118 inch wheelbase it's the biggest car in the mid-size class.

For power there's a choice of 13 great teams made up of six engines and 4 transmissions. That way a Matador can be an economical car or a full-blown muscle car.

If you've got a practical nature that likes a little excitement, you'll find Matador your kind of car.

Javelin is completely new this year

Javelin has gone longer, lower, wider, and more beautiful. We've raised the fender panels, sculptured them into the fast sloping hood. We've lowered the roof to give you a twin-canopy panel.

What makes Javelin go? A big choice of 15 power teams that range all the way up to a 401 4-barrel V-8 power package.

With 3 great models, Javelin, Javelin SST and Javelin AMX, the 1971 Javelin says it all. And you can bet a lot of people will be listening.

AIR CONDITIONING & AUTOMATIC STANDARD EQUIPMENT

Ambassador offers luxury options as no-extra-cost items.

Ambassador now offers an automatic transmission at no extra cost on all models. First air conditioning and now automatic transmission available as standard equipment. Put them together with Ambassador's distinctive styling and that's luxury!

And this year we have a larger and more powerful range of engines including the big 401 cubic inch V8 optional on SST and Brougham models.

Sportabout is a 4-door station wagon that has top-of-the-line features as standard equipment and slant back styling that sets it apart from any other wagon.

The big window tailgate swings up to simplify loading and unloading. And on the inside . . . plenty of room for a family on the go. Sportabout—a beautiful new addition to the Hornet family.

Parkinson: politicians are busy propagating ideas from 18th century

Government Waste Theory Truer Than Ever—Author

By HUBERT BEYER

Parkinson's Law, the theory of ever-increasing waste and extravagance in governments everywhere, still holds true.

That's the word from the man who laid down the law 10 years ago.

"In fact, the only thing I have to apologize for seems to be the speed with which my predictions are materializing; it seems I have underestimated the time factor," said Dr. C. Northcote Parkinson, world-famous British historian, educator, author and humorist, who told the world 10 years ago that work in government expands to fill the time available for its completion.

(Popularly, Parkinson's law has come to be quoted as applying everywhere, but Parkinson himself was referring chiefly to government bureaucracies.)

Sitting in his hotel room, sipping on a drink—Parkinson proceeded in an interview Thursday to tear governments apart for throwing the tax-paying masses into the abyss of financial poverty.

He predicted that the British Navy would soon reach a point where it didn't exist at all as a fighting force while its civilian members swelled to a colossal body.

He stated that civil services are running the show the world over while politicians are busy propagating 18th-century ideas.

★ ★ ★

Computers, he said, are supposed to save money and work, but in reality they create more work and more waste.

Parkinson is in Victoria to address the annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Management Association today.

"No, sir," he said slowly, "I have no reason to withdraw any of my predictions. I will have a book published next month entitled The Law of Delay; it is a book of essays, Parkinson's Law revisited if you like. The law still stands."

Government spending will increase, Parkinson predicted. More and more people will be employed by the governments until the major voting block consists of government employees.

"The answer to the problem is really simple," he said.

"You simply cut down on the money to be spent by the various government departments by 10 per cent, and probably another 10 per cent the following year. In case of overspending, the deficit is to be made up by salary reductions on the senior level."

★ ★ ★

"Quite simple, isn't it?" Parkinson said.

"But unfortunately impossible because it seems that the civil service is in control of government affairs and not the politicians."

The reason for this state of affairs, he said, is to be found in the speed with which technology has progressed.

"Decisions to be taken become more and more technological. There has not been a comparative development in the field of politics.

"The U.S. is governed by an antiquated constitution. The communist world still adheres to a doctrine set down in 1847 by Marx who never even claimed to be a politician. There is simply no progress in politics.

"Politicians are people with mental processes going back to the time of horse-drawn carriages; they are now given all these marvellous technological toys to play with and they can't keep up with the miracles of modern science," said Parkinson.

The public has completely lost contact with government, he warned.

"Just imagine the ... devaluation of the pound. The BBC proceeds to send people into the streets pushing microphones into people's faces.

"They ask some wretched citizen what he thinks of the devaluation and the answer is something like 'bad show.' It's obvious the ordinary citizen hasn't the remotest idea of what's going on."

The same ordinary citizen, Parkinson said, has also no control over his country's destiny. In Britain, he can at best choose between two parties which are in collusion regarding waste and extravagance.

"A good point is decimalization in Britain. It's stupid. The decimal system is fantastically obsolete. Why spend millions on something that will be of no use whatsoever?"

Computers, which themselves have contributed to government waste, don't work on the decimal system, Parkinson pointed out.

"In fact, the bloody things haven't got the faintest interest in it," he said.

What lies ahead for the "ordinary citizen" who doesn't seem to be able to control his destiny?

Parkinson now lives on Guernsey Island, one of the Channel Islands between England and France. He writes books and goes on occasional lecture tours.

★ ★ ★

After leaving Victoria, he will hold several lectures in the U.S. and in Mexico. He will return to Britain early in November.

Harbor Commission

'Massive' Group Will Tap Ottawa

Victoria will send "a massive delegation" to Ottawa soon to tell the transport minister that the city wants a harbor commission.

Victoria city council decided Thursday to delegate Mayor Courtney Haddock, Aldermen Peter Pollen, Harold Olafson, Clyde Savage, City Manager Dennis Young and City Solicitor Terry O'Grady.

Council was told there will be no reference in the brief to city-owned waterfront property, but O'Grady said council would expect the federal government to ask whether the city would be willing to turn such land over to the commission.

Ald. Tom Christie said he didn't "see why we have to send such a massive delegation."

The mayor replied it was necessary because the formation of a harbor commission "is a very important matter."

The proposed commission will pursue improvement of existing harbor facilities and construction of new ones, promotion of increased commodity shipments and encouragement of improved land use in the harbor area.

No date has been set for the trip to Oattawa.

Trustees Reassure

Voters Fear Cost 'Catch' For College

By NANCY BROWN

Greater Victoria school district voters are being offered something for nothing (or for next-to-nothing), but trustees fear the offer will be turned down.

"I think they're afraid there has to be a catch in it somewhere," school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson said Thursday.

Some 35,000 electors in the school district are eligible to vote in today's plebiscite, which asks if they are in favor of the "establishment, maintenance and operation of a college."

The two-year institution, to be known as Juan de Fuca College, would replace the present Institute of Adult Studies, offering academic, vocational and technological training to all students, regardless of qualifications, with transfer courses to university and other institutions.

School board officials have maintained that if there is a tax increase to pay for a college, it will be minimal.

The average taxpayer, with a home of about $20,000 market value, is now paying $3.78 to support the institute. Estimates show a college could raise that amount to $4 a year at the most. But it may not even be anything. Trustees won't know for sure until the college is actually set up.

At present, the provincial government contributes 47 per cent of institute operating costs. The change to a college would draw a 60 per cent contribution from the government.

There is a possibility, Jameson said, that capital would be needed in another three or four years for equipment, — up to about $200,000.

He also said if demand is sufficient, a capital referendum would be needed for new buildings, though not in the foreseeable future.

In any case, he said, the public would be protected from such unexpected costs by the board's need to go to referendum for capital expenditures in each case.

"We've had very little opposition to the college idea," Jameson said. "But what we have seen is an underlying mistrust — an idea that there must be some money involved somewhere that we're hiding.

"The fact of the matter is that we already have half a college at the institute — we have the buildings, the equipment, the staff and the students.

"It's also a fact that the institute as such will cease at the end of this year because of a provincial discontinuance of Grade 13 courses.

"If we're to continue to offer the courses that have been so well accepted, we have to change to college status."

Where To Vote

Polling stations will be open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. in the following locations:

Victoria — Central Junior high school.

Oak Bay — Oak Bay municipal hall.

Gaglardi Refuses Welfare Request

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock says he was told Thursday by Rehabilitation Minister Philip Gaglardi that Victoria can't count on immediate financial assistance from the provincial government to help meet soaring welfare costs.

"No, we didn't get a firm commitment from the minister," Haddock said in an interview following his meeting with Gaglardi at the Empress Hotel.

The city will support the provincial government's attempts to get more welfare assistance from the federal government, the mayor said.

Asked what chance of success such an appeal to the federal government might have, Haddock replied:

"Well, I don't know, but I've been called a pathological optimist. I won't quit trying. I won't give up."

He was asked if he thought the provincial government was the logical power to help municipalities meet rising welfare costs.

"I think the most important thing right now is that we are working together with the province," he said.

British Columbia, especially Victoria, has a relatively high welfare roll, he said.

The provincial government announced last Friday that it has raised the municipal share of provincial welfare costs from $1.15 to $1.58 per capita for the last months of 1970.

It has been estimated that the increase will cost Victoria and Saanich $100,000 each. Oak Bay and Esquimalt have estimated additional welfare costs at $30,000 each.

Meanwhile, the Union of B.C. Municipalities has also pledged its support of the provincial government's intention to request more federal welfare aid.

Longer Road Wanted

Victoria Council decided Thursday to ask the provincial government to consider extending Blanshard to Patricia Bay Highway.

Council also decided to ask the provincial government to purchase the Hudson's Bay warehouse site at Cloverdale, a 3.8-acre parcel of land, offered for sale at present.

Injured Boy Out of Hospital

Anthony Medeiros, 12, of 3830 Quadra, Saanich, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after being treated for head and shoulder injuries received when he was hit by a car at the intersection of Tattersall and Quadra about 7:15 p.m. Thursday, Saanich police reported. Driver of the car was Janet Hockin of 3498 Lovat, Saanich.

'What's It All About?'

Ald. Peter Pollen called it "recognition to the Empress Hotel," Victoria's greatest landmark.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said it could be expanded to become "the Calgary Stampede of Victoria."

The confusion arose at the end of Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council when Pollen introduced a motion to declare Empress Hotel Week starting Nov. 3.

"I think it's time the city give recognition to one of its great institutions. The Empress has played an important part in Victoria's history," Pollen said.

Haddock took it from there.

"It would be celebrated once a year and eventually all the merchants could participate in it," he said.

At this point, Christie asked what it was all about.

"I don't know what the devil is going on. What's this all about? In my opinion it's the most nebulous thing I've ever heard of," he said.

When Pollen started to explain the details, someone moved that the matter be referred back to a committee.

Ald Hugh Ramsay objected. "I don't like referral motions. We either like something or we don't. We should approve it or turn it down," he said.

The matter, however, was referred back for further discussion.

It was later learned that Empress Hotel Week "should be celebrated with street dances, concerts and other types of public entertainment," according to the proposal.

The association, formerly named the Canadian Good Roads Association, is holding its annual conference this week in conjunction with the sixth World Highway Conference.

Yates Plan

Stores Submit Walkers' Mall

Plans for a $386,000 pedestrian mall behind the north side of the 700-block Yates were submitted to Victoria city council Thursday.

The proposal, approved by council in principle, was made by the Victoria Downtown Merchants' Association.

It calls for construction of a large mall on the property now called Mac's parking. The scheme involves the widening and improvements of sidewalks on both sides of the 700 block Yates. Entrance to the mall would be from Yates.

Speaking for the merchants, Tom Denny told council the proposed scheme would be "of general public benefit."

Jack Lacterman, another merchant, said it would be impossible for the property owners adjacent to the proposed mall site to pay the entire cost of the scheme.

The city of Ottawa, Lacterman said, had shared half the cost of a similar project.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said he didn't know if the city would be able to share in the cost, but he promised the merchants he would form a committee of aldermen, merchants and administrators to study the matter further.

"The plan is wonderful and ingenious. It's what the downtown city needs. If we don't have a good downtown, we're in trouble," the mayor said.

Special Debate On Abortion Key to Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Whether the law on abortion is changed in the current session of Parliament will depend on whether any consensus emerges from a special debate — mentioned in the throne speech — on abortion planned by the government.

However, officials emphasized that the government has no plans for new abortion legislation unless the debate indicates widespread acceptance in Parliament.

Creditistes launched what amounted to a filibuster against the present law on therapeutic abortion when it went through Parliament in 1969. Passage took weeks.

The women's liberation movement last spring demonstrated in the Commons for free abortion on demand. The women chained themselves to the seats, chanting, and forcing the House to adjourn briefly.

Despite this spectacular demonstration, and much criticism of the operation of the new law, there is also strong opposition to any relaxation of the law on abortion.

Best of Times, Worst of Times . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1970s will be a decade that "we dare not assume will be a continuation of the past," the Trudeau government says in setting out the philosophy of Thursday's speech from the throne.

Canadians in the "new age" will be "subject to forces not all of which are yet comprehended or understood, forces which will proceed from external as well as internal origins."

American influence in Canada, the influence of multi-national corporations, Canada's position in the world power structure—these are some of the external forces.

"It is a new age not so much because of changed circumstances, but new because of changed values and attitudes.

"Because of the clash of these new values and the old, because of the quest by the young and disillusioned for some resolution of attitudes, we live in a period of tenseness and unease.

"It is an age frequented by violence as desperate men seek ill-defined goals: an age of frustration as gentle men impatiently question old assumptions. . . .

"It is an age in which the forces of science and technology now in motion are so massive, so swift, and so comprehensive that man may be facing his last opportunity to control his own destiny rather than be subject to it."

If Canadians want it, they can have a society in which:

- "Human differences are regarded as assets, not liabilities."
- "Individual freedom and equality of opportunity remain as our most cherished possessions."
- "The enjoyment of life is measured in qualitative, not quantitative terms."
- Imagination and daring, ingenuity and initiative are encouraged "not coldly and impersonally for the sake of efficiency, but with warmth from the heart as between friends."

End of Two-Year Campaign

Urban Affairs Ministry Product of 'Bloodshed'

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's decision to create a ministry of state for urban affairs and housing was described in the throne speech Thursday as a response to the need for "coordination of the activities of all levels of government."

To former Toronto mayor Philip Givens (L-York West), however, it was the end of a two-year campaign.

"For me, the battle is over," Givens said after the announcement in congratulating Robert Andras. As minister without portfolio in charge of housing, Andras is slated to take over the new ministry when it is created by law early in the new parliamentary session.

To reporters, Givens added:

"If you could only imagine the fights we've had in caucus, the put-downs. From my point of view it's only too bad there had to be so much bloodshed."

Last winter, Givens was reluctantly backed into line to vote with the Liberal majority against an opposition proposal for a Commons urban affairs committee.

Andras, whose officials are already well into the planning for the new ministry, was more cautious in his outline of what will be involved.

First of all, he told reporters at a news conference, the new portfolio will not be a "super ministry" with a veto power over all programs affecting cities put forward by other departments. It would have no similarity to the giant housing and urban development branch of the U.S. government.

Instead, he suggested, the function of the new ministry will be to develop the over-all scheme into which other government programs will be fitted.

Andras
. . . more cautious

Givens
. . . 'battle over'

Most of the "goodies" — transport and health and welfare programs, measures to assist immigrants, industrial development projects — will continue to be delivered by existing departments. The one big exception is the inclusion in the new portfolio of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., already administered by Andras with a budget this year of more than $800 million.

The other main function, and even more delicate, will be to negotiate implementation of urban policies with provincial governments which have constitutional jurisdiction over the cities.

Andras said he hopes before the end of the year to have met the municipal affairs minister of each province to win agreement on establishment of a national urban council. It would have representation from the federal, provincial and municipal levels of government.

An independent study recently completed for his department, he said, projects a population by the year 2000 of more than six million people for each of Toronto and Montreal and more than three million for Vancouver.

Uncontrolled growth of these cities could be disastrous for their citizens as well as for the national identity of Canada, he said.

Constitutional limits and political niceties would determine the extent to which the federal government could effect such growth. But, he added, one part of Ottawa's role may be to act as a counterforce to the cities on behalf of the less-developed regions of the country.

Throne Speech Promise

Buyer Protection Stiffened

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has promised to introduce legislation this session to give greater protection to the Canadian consumer.

"Measures will be introduced to protect Canadians more adequately from the results of combines, mergers and unfair trade practices, to regulate the labelling and packing of consumer goods, and protect further the users of consumer credit," the throne speech said.

Included will be bills making amendments to the Interest Act — requiring that interest terms on loans be made more clear — and to the Small Loans Act — probably setting maximum interest rates on small loans above the present ceiling of $1,500.

Also expected are amendments to the Bankruptcy Act that would make it easier for an overcommitted consumer to work out terms with his creditors, and packaging and labelling legislation to make it easier for the consumer to make shopping comparisons. The latter will contain measures to standardize package sizing.

No New Light Shed On Drug Penalties

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has given Parliament no hint of how it will resolve the debate about criminal penalties for possession of drugs.

The speech from the throne said simply that a report of the Le Dain commission on non-medical drug use is expected in the next few months and will require careful study and discussion.

It made no reference to the commission's interim report, delivered last June 19, in which temporary changes in drug possession laws were proposed.

Health Minister John Munro told the Commons Wednesday that the cabinet has reached no decision on the question of possession of marijuana.

However, Munro is reported to have proposed that the government put legislation before Parliament to shift marijuana from the Narcotic Control Act to the Food and Drugs Act.

Under the Narcotic Control Act, marijuana possession on summary conviction carries a maximum fine of $1,000, six months in jail or both for a first offence. For further offences, the maximum rises to $2,000, one year or both.

If the conviction is registered by indictment, the more formal procedure of trial in county or supreme court, marijuana possession carries a maximum penalty of seven years. No option for fine is provided.

Shifting marijuana possession to the Food and Drugs Act provides two possibilities.

If marijuana was classed as a restricted drug, possession penalties on summary conviction would be the same as under the Narcotic Control Act. But conviction by indictment, carries a maximum $3,600 fine, three years in jail or both.

If marijuana was classed as a controlled drug under the Food and Drugs Act, the offences and penalty structures would change.

These drugs, which include most of the amphetamines or methamphetamines known as speed, are not subject to penalty for ordinary possession.

White Paper Flurry: At Least Five More

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has reinforced its preference for the white paper approach to legislation, promising at least five policy papers in the new parliamentary session in "such diverse fields as communications, citizenship, immigration, national defence and income security policy," says the throne speech.

The approach, whereby the government submits a series of proposals on a subject to scrutiny by the public and Commons and Senate committees before introducing legislation has been a favorite with the Trudeau government. It replaces the royal commission and will continue to do so.

During the last session, government proposals on changes in the federal income tax structure and unemployment insurance law have been considered in committee.

The last white paper on defence, presented six years ago under defence minister Paul Hellyer, proposed the controversial unification of Canada's armed forces.

Female Father Freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A miniskirted navy veteran who fathered a 15-year-old daughter was divorced Wednesday after telling the judge she had become a woman and wanted to marry a man.

Grounds for the divorce were abandonment.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Aurelio said he had never heard of a similar case in 39 years on the bench.

* * *

Austin Hartin was also granted the right to change her name to Deborah "in the interest of your child."

"So now your child has two mothers," said Aurelio.

Miss Hartin, 37, told the court she had undergone a sex-change operation last April because "the desire was too overwhelming to do anything about."

She said that through her years as a male she had felt female "psychologically and physically."

* * *

Miss Hartin said she had married a woman identified only as Patricia while serving in the navy at Pensacola, Fla., in 1954. She said her wife told her, "I can't live with you any more" and left her in September, 1957.

The custody of the daughter was granted to Patricia.

Gypsy 'Mama' Of 3,000 Buried in U.S.

DENVER (UPI) — A gypsy queen in a red bandana and a gold chain was buried Thursday surrounded by flowers, incense and $100 bills. A hard rock band pounded out the beat as the 102-year-old "mother" of 3,000 was carried to her grave.

Gypsies from throughout the United States and several European countries attended the last rites for their "Mama," Mrs. Katherine Marks, queen of the 3,000-member Marks gypsy family.

She died in Denver Saturday following a brief illness.

Members of Reign, a group of four high school youths, played heavy rock music as Mrs. Marks had requested in her will. The temperature was well below freezing as members of the family gathered to pay their last respects.

* * *

Floral arrangements surrounded the casket. Several $100 bills were placed inside along with several pieces of gold. A family member said the money would help her on her way.

One floral tribute read, "For the boss of Denver." Another bore the title "Gypsy Queen of Denver." A tray of incense burned near the casket.

The mourners' dress ranged from conservative suits and ties to costumes depicting a long heritage of gypsy life. They spoke in what was described as a Yugoslav dialect understandable only by fellow gypsies.

As the mourners left St. Elizabeth's Church, Denver, a member of the family said, "Mama was always the best in Denver." And the band played, "When you dance, I can really love."

Charlatans Move In

Sensitivity Group Suspect

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have confidence in you. I'm sure if you don't know the answer you'll get it from someone who does. Question: What about these Sensitivity Groups? Are they on the level? Do they do anybody any good? Can they be harmful?

These groups seem to be springing up all over the country. My husband is interested, but I have serious doubts about such intimacy. Our friends who have become involved are full of raves. But these friends are too far out for my taste and I wonder where these group experiences will lead them. Please deal with the subject in your column.—Zorba.

Dear Z.: Most Sensitivity Groups do a lot of good — for the guy who is running them. He gets rich. This is not to say they are all phony. The early "T" Groups were legitimate. They helped inhibited people who needed to learn to shed their hang-ups and open up to others.

In the past year, however, a staggering number of charlatans have gotten into the act. They saw a good thing and wanted part of the action.

Unfortunately, anyone can set himself up as a "T" leader, run an ad in the paper and rent a hotel room for the "meeting." These fakes prey on lonely people, sick people — anybody who has the price.

I am highly suspicious of most "T" groups since I do not believe in instant honesty, instant truthfulness or instant recovery from life-long anxieties and complex problems.

My psychiatric consultants tell me they are seeing a disconcerting number of people who have broken down emotionally because they could not tolerate the intimacy, exposure and brutal bearing of the soul demanded by The Group.

The word from here is nix, unless the group leader is a person of impeccable reputation with a long-time record of integrity and competence.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't tell me to ask my pediatrician. I'm ashamed to admit I don't know the answer. It's a simple question — but it's driving me nuts.

I have an 11-month-old baby. I would like to start frying his breakfast eggs in butter along with my husband's and mine. My mother says No, it will hurt his stomach.

Yet when we go to her house she gives the baby chunks of bread with globs of butter. I'd like to know the difference between eating eggs fried in butter and eating globs of butter on bread.—Back Burner.

Dear Back: Butter is butter — whether you fry eggs in it or put globs of it on bread. If the child has a normal digestive system, butter won't hurt him. If he is too chubby you should cut down on all fat — butter included.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm always surprised when I read letters from women who form romantic attachments to their doctors. My doctor is a very attractive man but I view him as someone who performs a service for me — like the electrician or the cop on the corner.

My women friends consider their doctors a cross between Sir Gallahad, Houdini, and Elliott Gould. What turns them on? Is something wrong with me, or them?—No Pitty Pat.

Dear Pat: To many women the doctor is a symbol of healing, help and hope. He is gentle, supportive, kind and all-knowing, patient controlled and responsive to her needs unless, of course, he happens to be her husband, in which case he is never around when she needs him and pays attention to everyone but her and the kids.

Overdraught Aids Charity

COFTON, England (CP) — Devon landlady Olive Baskerville will make gifts to charities because last summer she overcharged customers by mistake. Olive charged four shillings for a pint of draught lager when it only cost three shillings. Although the correct prices no one complained.

Bursting Bowl Sprays Salad

MELBOURNE (AP) — A distributor has recalled a type of glass salad bowl because the bowls exploded like grenades when scratched or cracked. One Australian housewife said hers went off with such force she had to scrape shredded lettuce off the lampshades.

Hospital Targets Picked

Four hospitals had been earmarked for a selective strike Monday but plans have been changed because of an extension of mediation, the Colonist was told Thursday night.

Edward Callan of Victoria, an international representative with the International Union of Operating Engineers, said the hospitals — two on Vancouver Island and two on the mainland — had been picked from among 28 involved in a contract dispute as strike targets.

He declined to identify them. The dispute involves both of Victoria's major hospitals — Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's, as well as three others elsewhere on the Island.

The union had served 72-hour strike notice earlier, but under B.C. law this cannot take effect while a mediation officer is actively involved.

Government mediator Ed Sims' first appointment in the dispute began July 14 and his second extension of service ended Thursday at midnight.

This would have allowed the union to legally strike by Monday, but Callan said he had been informed the Mediation Commission had authorized a third extension of service. It is to last until Nov. 1, he said.

He said he expects Sims to arrange new talks with the negotiators for the B.C. Hospital Association and union.

Callan also said an earlier report that his union was not affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress or B.C. Federation of Labor was partly wrong. The union is affiliated with the CLC, although nearly all locals have no hookup with the federation.

School Alters 'Private' Role

Designed for maximum use by the community, Arbutus junior high school was officially opened Thursday night.

The $1,500,000 twin structure at Arbutus and Finnerty was built to serve the fast-growing Gordon Head area northeast of the University of Victoria. Capacity of the building is 750 students, and 605 enrolled there last month.

"This is your building — do the best you can with it," Greater Victoria school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson told the audience at the opening ceremonies.

"Some years ago schools were regarded as private places, and people were not encouraged to enter them," he said. "All this has now changed."

Superintendent A. J. Longmore said later he hopes the community will regard the place as a kind of community hall.

"Students, of course, will have priority in use of the buildings, but after that we hope their parents and neighbors will make full use of the facilities — after all they are paying for them."

He said he expects night school courses to be set up in the school soon.

Classrooms and administration offices are in one block, while the other houses an auditorium - gymnasium lunchroom with kitchen facilities, art and music rooms.

Coach Lines Wait

Vancouver Island Coach Lines will continue to provide service between the Island and the Mainland pending the outcome of a provincial government hearing, company president R. N. Dalby said Thursday.

A cabinet hearing is planned for next Wednesday of a company appeal against a Public Utilities Commission ruling that rejected a proposal for higher bus fares between Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo.

Hit-Run Driver Helps, Leaves

Mrs. Flora Macdonald, 76, of 1655 Chambers, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday afternoon after receiving treatment for leg and back injuries suffered in a hit-and-run accident earlier in the day.

City police reported Mrs. Macdonald was hit by a car at the intersection of Blanshard and Pandora about 12:15 p.m. The driver of the car stopped to assist her to the curb, but then left.

Personnel Managers Meet

Labor Told: Correct Or Decline

By DON COLLINS

"The great danger with the North American labor movement is that it has concerned itself almost exclusively with the problems of the belly to the exclusion of those affecting the soul. My point is simply that the decade ahead should be used within the labor movement to redress the present imbalance."

This was a sentiment expressed Thursday by one of the new breed of scholarly labor leaders — John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

"The idealistic concept behind collective bargaining has failed to pass the test of time." — Lloyd Hemsworth of Toronto, a Canadian industrial relations official.

Two-Man Panel

Fryer and Hemsworth, appearing as a two-man panel at the 32nd annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association, left little unsaid about labor relations.

Hemsworth, vice-president of industrial relations at Kimberley-Clark of Canada Ltd., said he was going to "tell it like it is" and took verbal strips of the labor movement.

He sees it as being powerful to the point of creating a serious imbalance, but losing control from the top.

Of No Use

Hemsworth, who is also chairman of the national industrial relations committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, thinks collective bargaining has been rendered useless in its present form, but hopes that something can be done to save it.

Fryer, of Vancouver, was a member of the reform lobby that tried to guide the Canadian Labor Congress along a new course at its convention last May in Edmonton.

On Wednesday he repeated some of the goals his group sees as needs for labor: work with underprivileged groups, native people, unemployed; establishment of aid and information centres for the poor; support of equal rights for women; elimination of jurisdictional conflict to make multi-union organizing of the unorganized possible.

In Defence

In defending the labor movement in its present structure, Fryer said it is interested in materialism as people say, but that this is only part of the story.

"The labor movement has always regarded itself as a missionary for a better world and the support that organized labor has given to a host of social movements is, I submit, evidence of this," he said.

He believes now that American labor intellectual Sol Barkin was correct when in 1960 he forecast a decline of the trade union movement.

"Furthermore, many of us within the trade union movement today, are making similar predictions," Fryer said. "That is that the overall influence of the trade union movement will continue to decline in the 1970s unless something pretty drastic is done about it."

One of the main problems is that the movement has become irrelevant to large sectors of the populations as well as to an alarming percentage of union membership.

This is why he sees the need for increased involvement in social issues during a time of rapidly changing environment.

Meaney Attacked

He attacked top U.S. labor leader George Meaney as being completely out of touch with the times.

He noted that Meaney, president of the AFL-CIO, is violently opposed to long-haired youth and the movement for women's rights.

Hemsworth said unions have grown into "a new institution of great power — probably more powerful than anything modern society has seen."

As a result, he said a "new and positive approach to collective bargaining must be forthcoming if we are to improve our relationship."

No Bargaining

He said there is such an imbalance of power, unions no longer actually have to go through the process of bargaining, but simply give the employers ultimatums.

He also warned: "A continuing failure on the part of government to protect public interest will surely mean the disappearance of collective bargaining. This must not be allowed to happen."

AL LANG, president of Eugene, Oregon, chapter of Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association, Wendy Taylor, personnel assistant of Eugene Water and Electrical Board and Leslie Pearson, board safety supervisor of the same firm chat during president's reception Wednesday at McPherson Theatre.—(Ellis Shipman)

Attempted Murder, Rape

Charge Goes to Jury

A 12-man jury will deliberate shortly after 10:30 a.m. today in Victoria B.C. Supreme Court in the case of Carl Jens Hansen, 24, of Hillside Avenue, who is being tried on a two-count charge of attempted murder and rape.

The trial opened Monday in the Victoria Law Courts and court was told that day by a 13-year-old Victoria girl who entered the courtroom on crutches that on June 2 she had been thrown from a bridge, about 15 miles west of Sooke, after she had been sexually attacked by the accused. She was 12 at that time.

RCMP Cpl. C. W. Potter told court the distance from Jacob Creek Bridge to the creek bed is approximately 58 feet.

Acting for the crown is Alan Bigelow assisted by Don Farquhar. Defence counsel arranged by the legal aid service of the Victoria Bar Association is Robert Hutchison, assisted by Dean Wilson.

In summing up the crown's evidence Thursday afternoon before the jury, Bigelow emphasized that the girl's testimony had remained unchanged even after cross-examination by competent counsel.

Hutchison, in his summary, told the jury the injuries the girl received did not seem serious enough, considering the height of the alleged fall.

Court was told earlier the girl had suffered a fractured thigh bone, a broken knee cap, multiple bruises and scratches and a broken tail bone.

Hutchison suggested she had slipped down the bank into the creek bed.

He said the whole case for the crown was developed on supposition and asked the jury to consider how much of the girl's evidence was remembered and how much was reconstructed.

Owners Expect Rest Home Rise

B.C. rest home operators emerged from a meeting with a cabinet committee Thursday confident that they will obtain an increase in rates paid by the provincial government for welfare patients.

Spokesman John Hanrahan, a director of the B.C. Rest Homes Association, said the cabinet committee made no promises that it would agree to the group's request for a minimum rate of $185 a month. But he added the delegation received "the fullest co-operation."

"There will be an increase in rates," Hanrahan said, "but I wouldn't like to say what the amount will be. We'll know that in about three weeks. But for the moment we are satisfied."

The assiciation is protesting the basic $135 a month rate paid by the government for welfare patients. It also wanted to discuss with the government a new regulation that up to one-third of all rest home beds be made available to welfare recipients if required.

Rehabilitation Minister Philip Gaglardi said he has asked his department's rate board to study "whatever figures we've been able to get" on the financing of rest homes and to advise whether the present rates are sufficient.

A department spokesman said in some cases, though not many, the government now pays up to $195 a month for welfare patients in rest homes.

Gaglardi, who sits on the committee with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, said it will give the case of rest home operators "every bit of consideration we can give" before taking their recommendation on to the full cabinet for its decision.

"But the operators still quarrel with us, saying that it's really not right that we should get those figures. It's for their benefit, not ours. I could care less what profit they make. But I say it should not be reflected in exorbitant costs to the government because we're spending public money.

"When we make a recommendation to the cabinet (on the rate question) it must be based upon a positive case of need if there is one."

Millions Approved

The provincial government gave final approval Thursday to $6 million in capital spending for schools and another $6 million for hospitals in B.C.

The cabinet established an interest rate of 8.08 per cent on the sale of the debentures.

Among school spending approved was $100,000 each for Sooke and Saanich districts, $250,000 for Nanaimo, $200,000 for Alberni, $100,000 for Campbell River, and $200,000 for Vancouver Island North.

* * *

In hospitals the amounts approved included $450,000 for the Capital Region Hospital District, $375,000 for the Nanaimo Regional Hospital District, and $25,000 for Alberni-Clayoquot Regional Hospital District.

Five Easy Pieces

Film Lives Up to Plaudits And Shot in Victoria, Too

By GRAHAM BOARDMAN

Flawless is an adjective seldom used in describing a motion picture, though some critics persist in spouting the old cliche that "movies are better than ever."

But Five Easy Pieces, playing at the Haida, is that rare thing — a film that actually lives up to all the glowing phrases and adjectives that the critics and the public lavish upon it.

The movie stars Jack Nicholson as Robert Dupea, a drifter trying to come to terms with himself but who will inevitably remain a drifter simply because he lacks the "guts" to see that life is a series of ups and downs and not the Utopia that he is vainly trying to find.

About 50 per cent of the film was shot in the Victoria area using local people in bit parts. Part of the fun in watching the film is identifying various landmarks when they appear on the screen, and watching for familiar faces.

Five Easy Pieces has scenes that are hilarious and scenes that are truly sad without the artificiality so obvious in many films.

The people on the screen are not actors and actresses merely mouthing lines, they are characters with whom the audience can identify.

The secondary roles in the film are played to perfection. Karen Black plays Nicholson's "dumb-blonde" girlfriend and particularly funny is Helena Kallianiotes as a hitch-hiker who admits that she has had it up to there with the world as it is, but who can't stop talking about it.

A tried and true method of judging a film's worth is to sit through it twice and see if you can get as much out of it seeing it a second time. Five Easy Pieces is the kind of film that is made to be seen twice.

Saanich Fills Offices

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis announced three municipal staff appointments Wednesday in accordance with recommendations of a recent organization study by the Vancouver firm of Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co.

John Tribe has been appointed municipal administrator; Roy Broughton has been appointed assistant controller-treasurer, and Kenneth Middleton has been appointed collector.

* * *

Tribe, who is 57, joined the municipality as a clerk in 1941. In 1945 he was made municipal clerk. In 1956 he was appointed comptroller-treasurer and collector, positions he has held until the present time.

Broughton, 37, came to Saanich in April, 1967, from the B.C. municipal affairs department as senior accountant, a position he has held ever since.

Middleton, 44, joined the municipality in May, 1948, as a clerk. In 1960 he was made chief cashier of the tax department. Since 1964 he has been supervisor of tax collections.

Pool Money Transfer Earns Okay

Transfer of $38,000 from the McPherson estate fund to the Central Park swimming pool project contingency fund was approved Thursday by Victoria city council.

Council was told the original $25,000 contingency fund for Victoria's $1.75 million pool complex has been exhausted.

The complex should be decorated in bright, cheerful colors, architect John Di Castri told a special recreation and community services committee Wednesday.

Other recommendations were:

● In the lower lounge, which has observation windows looking into the deep end of the pool, a royal blue carpet and stained cedar board finish on the walls.

● In the women's locker room, pastel shades. In the men's locker room, buff and brown.

● The ceiling of the pool area would be off-white special ceramic acoustic tile, used to cut down noise.

● In the children's familiarization pool at the east end, which goes from a depth of six to 15 inches, circular concrete lily pads would be bright yellows and reds.

● All doors would be golden ash plywood, stained grey-green to counterbalance the buffs and browns.

A First for Ecology

An introductory ecology course, the first of its type at a less than university level in the province, will be offered at Victoria's Institute of Adult Studies beginning in February.

The course, conceived by members of the Institute's biology department, will be conducted at the Grade 11 level.

The first part of the five-month course will be a study of the basic concepts of ecology and will include laboratory work.

The second part may take the form of on-the-spot studies of various aspects of environmental problems in the Greater Victoria area.

"Everyone is aware of the increasing deterioration of the environment and an increased public knowledge of ecological principles would allow people to make more informed decisions," said Michael Corry, one of the Institute's biology teachers.

"At the present time, most of the information is only available through the news media, so people have to pick things up piecemeal.

"This area of knowledge is perhaps the most relevant type of information that can be dispensed by educational institutes," he said.

Administrative details have yet to be settled, but it is hoped the course will be offered both for day and evening students as well as for persons wishing credit or not.

Corry also observed that if the institute were to become part of the two-year college, for which a vote is being held today, a greater flexibility in curriculum planning might mean that more courses of this nature could be offered.

South Vietnam Abandons Base

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops have abandoned artillery base O'Reilly near the Laotian border after three months of heavy Viet Cong and North Vietnamese pressure, allied military sources said Thursday.

The base was shut down because monsoon rains will soon make air support and supply almost impossible.

Doctors Eye Care:

Quality Suffers From Demand

VERNON — A confidential report circulated at the B.C. Medical Association convention this week indicated doctors are alarmed over the high incomes of certain members of their profession.

A committee was set up in May to look into the "unexpectedly high gross payments" received from medicare by some doctors, and it started with a list of 16 names.

The BCMA committee said its first concern was that the quality of care would not be eroded by the pressure of demand when the patient load was much greater than a physician normally would be expected to manage.

"In almost every case (of the 16) the committee has felt that there is indeed cause for concern that the quality of care provided must inevitably suffer because of the enormous volume being handled."

Besides seeing that the quality of care is not decaying, the committee says it was set up because both the government and the patients have the right to the assurance that money for health care is wisely and properly spent.

The committee also notes it is important to patrol the schedule of fees, especially any part of the schedule that has the potential of generating a high income.

★ ★ ★

"Evaluation of quality of care is a responsibility which the association cannot ignore," says the committee. "For this reason, the association must take and maintain the lead in this interesting but difficult aspect of evaluation of medical care."

Hospital Clamps Will Hold

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

VERNON — Doctors, hospitals and other components of the health system who are outraged over spending cutbacks will have to deal with forces more formidable than those of the B.C. government.

★ ★ ★

Health Minister John Munro indicated this week in Vernon that there is a unanimous concern among the governments of Canada and the 10 provinces over health costs that are now doubling every five years.

Despite Ottawa's financial interest, the federal government "is not giving any ultimatums to the provinces," said the minister. "It's a very common concern, and they are every bit as concerned as we are."

He said that within a couple of years there would be radical changes in health care delivery systems. For example, some provinces already were clamping down on the construction of hospitals in small communities that adjoin large medical centres.

Munro was asked whether the misuse of existing, acute-care hospitals was so apparent that Ottawa might totally withdraw from any new construction programs.

"Without being specific, there are some provinces that could put a freeze on that type of construction," he said. "We are developing statistics that will show there are some reasonable normals for the acute-bed per capita ratio."

Earlier this year, the federal government dropped its traditional $2,000-a-bed contribution to the cost of new acute-care facilities.

Munro was asked if Ottawa might instead start contributing to intermediate care, which is the level below extended care.

Doctors complain that acute-care hospitals would not have as many patients needing minimal care if there were intermediate-care centres that would care for persons who are not confined to bed.

The B.C. government has declined to build such institutions because of the lack of federal participation.

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, has said that a glaring deficiency in the present health system is intermediate care.

He says intermediate-care institutions, where care would be provided on the same financial basis as it is in existing acute and extended-car hospitals, would relieve the congestion in general hospitals and get the provincial government out of its present quarrel with private hospitals over the rates paid for welfare patients.

Athletics Priority Wanted

VERNON — The athletics and recreation committee of the B.C. Medical Association says the B.C. government should at once lift its freeze on the construction of school sports facilities.

"The premier recently said physical education facilities should get a low priority," Dr. Doug Clement of Richmond told the BCMA convention here. "The committee of which I am chairman feels this is a serious mistake."

The BCMA decided not only to urge the government to get on with construction of gymnasiums and activity rooms but also will ask local school boards to open those facilities for the evenings, weekends and holidays.

During a forum on sports medicine, Dr. Ray Duncan of Simon Fraser University said physical fitness tests of SFU students revealed 40 per cent of them could not tolerate even moderate exercise.

How to Do It

In my last column we were kicking around the problem of just when to dig up the gladiolus bulbs for winter storage, and if you remember, I suggested the period between Oct. 15 and Oct. 31 is about as good as any — weather permitting, of course. Having settled the "when," I think we might go on today to the "how."

I don't think it is such a hot idea to go down the row yanking the plants out of the ground by the scruff of the neck, so to speak, for such rough treatement isn't good for any living bulb or tuber which must be stored rot-free through the winter months.

It is much better to ease them out of the ground with the flat-tined digging fork, pulling gently on the topgrowth at the same time. Try not to scatter the "spawn" or bulblets all over the place.

Leave your dug-up plants outdoors for the balance of the day — possibly on the lawn — for the sun and wind to dry the soil clinging to them. Later in the day, shake off any dirt that will fall away naturally, then cut away the tops to within an inch of the bulb.

I find a small pair of pruning shears ideal for this job. The tops should be stacked loosely to dry out, and then burned, for they are not much good in the compost heap, rotting to a slimy, evil-smelling mass.

When I first started gardening it was considered good practice to leave the tops on, simply bundling up the plants and hanging them from the rafters in the basement to dry out.

I think we had some cockeyed idea that the "goodness" in the leaves would run down into the bulbs, plumping them up a bit more.

We know now that it isn't the sap that runs down into the bulbs, but bugs and blights seeking a comfortable winter home, hence the immediate amputation of the tops before the sap-sucking thrips and the spores of rot diseases can move to the bulbs.

It isn't necessary to clean up the bulbs at this stage — that comes later. All you need do is stack them in shallow boxes, trays or seed flats, not more than three bulbs deep, for they need plenty of air circulation between and around them. It is a good idea, though, to give them a thorough dusting with any garden dust you happen to have handy — ideally one that contains both a bug killer and a fungicide.

Almost any of the modern packaged combination dusts will do — rose dust, bulb dust, evergreen dust, fruit tree dust, potato dust. I have some slight preference for a formula that contains captan, as this particular fungicide seems to put a little extra sparkle into the flowers the following year. At a pinch, when I didn't have any garden dust handy, I have dusted my bulbs with ordinary yellow sulphur, and with very good results.

At this point, a lot of gardeners go wrong by placing their bulbs in cold storage immediately. This isn't good, for glads need quite a bit of warmth for a period of two weeks to ripen and cure the bulbs properly. Temperature during this curing stage should be 75 to 85 degrees.

I find the cosy furnace room in our basement is about right for this drying-off and curing period. To help things along, I rig a small portable electric fan, and when I think of it — which isn't often — I turn it on to run for perhaps an hour or two a day to blow a current of warm air across the trays of bulbs to speed up the curing. The fan stunt is by no means necessary — just an added refinement.

After about two weeks in the warmth, you can test your bulbs to see if the curing process is completed. You do this by trying to twist off the old, withered, last-year's bulb from the bottom of the new one.

If it comes away easily and cleanly, your bulbs are ripe and ready to be transferred to cool winter storage. However, if you have any difficulty in separating the old bulb from the new, give them another week in the warmth and try again.

The cleaning and storage of gladiolus bulbs will be dealt with in this column at the appropriate time.

JACK SMITH

What Would You Do?

An executive whose company makes family albums asked me what possession I'd try to save first if our house were threatened by fire.

At first it seemed to me there was nothing at all worth rushing into a burning house to save, or even into a house that was in immediate danger of catching fire.

Yet when their houses are burning, people do risk their lives to rescue trifles, objects that in their panic they irrationally think they can't part with.

In the Bel-Air, California, fire of 1961 people showed a grotesque sense of values. One woman left her furs and jewels to the flames but saved her trading stamps; another left everything but her girdles; a man left all his clothes but dashed out with an armful of neckties.

After that fire I remember holding a family council in which we all thought about what we would try to save if the fire ever got to us. We have seen a dozen fires on our hill, and the danger is real.

One of our sons decided he would save his track shoes, as I remember, and the other his tropical fish. My wife said she'd like to save her sewing machine, if I'd carry it out, and I said I'd take The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. I had my place marked and didn't think I could ever find it again in another copy.

"You see," I pointed out after all had spoken, "there's really nothing worth saving but our skins."

We have lived in our house nearly two decades, and it is clogged with the flotsam and jetsam of the years. If it were a ship it would sink.

If a fire wiped us out most of our precious items could never be remembered. I doubt if I could recall one in 10 of my toys, or my wife one in 10 of her baubles.

We long ago reached the point where our possessions are more a burden than a blessing. Yet the hoard grows. I spend hours going through drawers and boxes, looking for something, some object of only passing interest, a letter, an old photograph, a clipping.

The search becomes frantic. Drawers are yanked open, files are tumbled, step ladders are set up for searches on high shelves, until finally I sink into my chair, frustrated and out of sorts, and say, "oh, the hell with it. It wasn't important anyway."

The other night, after seeing some film of the recent fires on TV, my wife and I were reviewing our situation with our younger son and his wife.

"There's nothing," I said, "absolutely nothing worth singeing an eyelash for. If I had to run out naked I'd just take a leaf from a tree and start all over again. Naked I came and Naked must I go."

There was a sound from the bedroom; a wail, not unlike the cry of an owl.

"What's that?" I said.

"My baby," said my daughter-in-law. "He wakes up."

I'd forgotten all about him. Let's see. If he's her baby, and she's my daughter-in-law, then he must be my — good Lord!

Life is a series of adjustments to new facts, new values. Just when you think you're obsolete, it gives you something to go through fire for after all.

While I'm at it, I might as well grab The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.

Helen Hayes to Visit Welby

Expect Helen Hayes, that grand dame of the theatre, to pay a visit to TV's Dr. Marcus Welby soon. Robert Young and Miss Hayes go back a long way, to the time Bob made his film debut in 1930 in The Sin of Madeleine Claudet, for which she won an Oscar. Now she's let Bob know she'd very much like to guest on a segment of his top-rated TVer. And Bob has instructed the show's writers to don their thinking caps. For Helen Hayes, it has to be something special.

★ ★ ★

Tony Franciosa's playing the let's-wait-awhile game again with Rita Thiel, the cutie who has waited so long to become Mrs. Franciosa. First there was his divorce from Judy Balaban to be signed. Now he's telling her October doesn't seem like the right month for marriage, that November sounds better. And don't be surprised if, when November leaves fall, those plans fall through, too.

★ ★ ★

Judy Carne insists those reports, printed elsewhere, of the end of her marriage to bridegroom Robert Bergmann are absolutely untrue. They're still happy together, or at least would be if the rumormongers would leave them alone. I wish Judy well. Certainly she hasn't had the most tranquil of personal lives.

I remember shortly after she and Burt Reynolds, her first husband, divorced several years ago, Judy talked about the rough path she had walked since her teen years. At 16 she was the star of a London stage play. And was already trying to act way too adult for her age.

"I went very loose very quickly, far too quickly," she said. "You know, morally loose. I freeked out. I was everybody's Little Miss Sunshine."

I hope she gets her wish and remains Robert Bergmann's exclusive Little Miss Sunshine for a long, long time.

Norma Crane sends word from Yugoslavia that she's been bombarded with letters of congratulations from home since a filmland columnist mistakenly reported that she and Robert Dozier were engaged. "We're very close," Norma assured me, "but he's not my fiance." Not yet.

In the same letter, Norma describes the Lekenik, Yugoslavia, location where Fiddler on the Roof is being filmed. "If you never heard of Lekenik, its 45 minutes away from Zagreb, and it has no conveniences. No hot water, no running water, 100-degree heat. It's beautiful!"

Sandra Smith and Chris Stone, two of the newcomers on CBS's new Interns, wish that people would stop insisting they're competing for the star spot on the series.

"It's so foolish," said Sandra, who pointed out that she and Chris have quite a romantic thing going. "Actually," she insisted, "I wish that Chris would get the bigger and better lines. That way I could just bring him coffee while he's studying his scripts, and wait on him. Besides, I know it would make him happy to have a bigger role, and I don't care that much for myself."

Sandra sounds like a remarkably well-adjusted actress. She admits it has taken a while for her to get that way. "I was the product of a split family and nearly cracked up. I barely make it through high school. I dropped out for a year, lived in the Village, the whole thing."

Sandra credits psychoanalysis with saving her life. She started sessions at age 17, now can't be bothered with matters as trivial as fighting over career. She just wants to make her guy Chris happy.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HOULIHAN—In loving memory of my sweet sister, Maimie Houlihan, who passed away Oct. 9, 1968.

No one knows how I miss you,
Life has never been the same.
In my heart your sweet memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
Resting peacefully with God in Heaven.
A beautiful angel, sweet Maimie,
I always think of you.

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter J. W. Wilson, who passed beyond sight on Oct. 9, 1956.

And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which I have loved long since and lost awhile.

Bruce Lowther

Anyone who thinks the Canadian networks will help Greater Victoria viewers if the blackout rule goes into effect should know now: their thinking is wrong.

I mean the rule blacking out any show on a U.S. channel within a week of its appearance on a Canadian channel, due here about Jan. 1, 1972. The CBC and CTV will do everything they can to take viewers from U.S. networks, and as proof, I offer the fact that CTV often changes scheduled prime time movies so it can beat a U.S. network.

To explain: CTV may not be sure when it makes out a week's schedule what, say, NBC will show that week. When CTV finds out NBC plans to show a certain movie on a Monday, it schedules the same film for the preceding Friday or Saturday. Ottawa's proposed rule would mean the Monday movie would not be shown on cable-television.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — Best-movie Oscars were the topic again this week, with All About Eve the winner in 1950, George Sanders the supporting-actor champ for the same film and William Holden both murder victim and narrator in Sunset Boulevard. Some good films that year.

Today's question knocks off the Oscars for a while and, apropos of nothing, we switch to guitarists. Kindly name Benny Goodman's pace-setting guitarist who died young, and Peggy Lee's former husband. And what's Segovia's first name? Answers Saturday.

"It's the 9th round, but there's been a break in the action since round 2."

Friday Highlights

C-12:00 noon — Spiro Agnew debates with five U.S. campus leaders. A repeat, I think—12.

● C-8:10 — The first Vancouver Canucks NHL game, with Los Angeles Kings in the Coliseum. Voices are Ted Reynolds, Jim Robson, Babe Pratt, Jack Dennett and young Bill Good. This is being shown only in B.C., but would the CBC confine the first Quebec City NHL game to Quebec?—2, 6.

● C-8:30 — NET Playhouse salutes Helen Hayes, who will be 70 on Sunday—9.

Friday Movies

C-9:00 a.m.—Lone Star (entertaining 1952 Texas action), Gable, Ava Gardner, Broderick Crawford—4.

C-9:00—Great Race (often funny 1965 comedy), Natalie Wood, Tony Curtis, Peter Falk, Jack Lemmon. Part two—7.

C-9:00—The VIPs (only fair 1963 airport drama), Margaret Rutherford earned her Oscar, beating Liz and Dick. Maggie Smith, Orson Welles and many more—12.

11:30—Saint Strikes Back (1939 George Sanders). And misses—7.

11:30—Notorious Landlady (unfunny 1962 comedy), Kim Novak, Jack Lemmon, Fred Astaire. She's a neat miss, but the movie's a messy miss—12.

C-11:50—Yankee Buccaneer (silly 1952 Jeff Chandler). As I've said before, the price for pirates was a buck an ear—2.

C-12:00—Night of the Following Day (see 8:00)—6.

C-12:00—Night Walker (routine 1964 suspense), Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck. The one that "reunited" them, i.e., bad taste city—8.

1:00 a.m.—Madeline (so-so 1950 costume melodrama), Ann Todd. Even her fine bones can't flesh out this skeleton—4.

Friday Radio

8:05 p.m.—Have a ball with Gala Performance: turn the 1812 Overture up on your stereo—CFMS (98.5).

11:30—Hot Air features Bunny Berigan. If you don't know about him, you can't get started with me—CBU (690).

●—Recommended; C—Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

Bridge expert Barry Crane of Los Angeles is associate producer of the network program, "Mission—Impossible." And a very appropriate title it is too.

For, impossible as it may seem in this age of the professional, Barry, who plays bridge only at weekends, and then only when TV assignments permit, is the top masterpoint winner of all time.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	3 ◇	3 ♠	4 ◇
Dbl	Pass	6 ♣	All pass

Opening lead: Three of spades

Master points are awarded by the American Contract Bridge League for success in major tournaments and Barry added to his formidable total when he won the Open Pair event at a recent Nationals in partnership with Dr. John Fisher of Dallas. This deal, reported by Richard Frey in Bridge World magazine, shows Barry at work.

He won the spade opening, drew a round of trumps, ruffed a diamond and ruffed a spade, finding — when West showed out — that it was not going to be possible to establish that suit.

The situation now was that South could count on six trump tricks in his own hand, three ruffs in dummy, and the A-K of spades — eleven tricks in all. To make the contract he had to to establish one of his red kings.

It would have been easy — and fatal — to bank on West to hold the ace of diamonds for his three-diamond bid. Instead, declarer followed a line of play that gave him two shots.

He ruffed another low diamond, ruffed a spade and ruffed the queen of diamonds, dropping the ace from East and solving all problems. It was then a simple matter to discard a heart on a spade, get back to hand with a spade ruff, and draw East's last trump.

If the ace of diamonds had not fallen when the third diamond was ruffed, declarer would have pitched the king of diamonds on dummy's remaining spade winner and would then have led a heart from dummy, confidently expecting East to hold the ace. It was virtually certain that East would hold one of the red aces in view of West's preemptive bid.

Ahousat

Diphtheria Outbreak —Two Cases

NANAIMO — A diphtheria outbreak has been reported in the small Indian community of Ahousat, on the west coast northwest of Tofino.

Dr. P. J. Reynolds, medical director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said there is one confirmed and one suspected case. Both patients are hospitalized, he said.

In co-operation with the medical health services the source of the infection of the two cases in being sought.

Reynolds said, "Meanwhile, I would strongly recommend that those who wish to visit Ahousat should postpone their visits until the situation has resolved itself."

Village population is about 400.

"Outbreaks of this nature do emphasize the necessity for continuing our immunization programs, and the danger of staff shortages."

He reported that the board has now run out of its supply of rubella (German measles) vaccine. It had 8,280 doses for a school population of 8,994 covering Grades 1 to 6.

Boy Hurt

Car Kills Girl

PARKSVILLE — Nine-year-old Tracy Pepper was killed instantly Thursday afternoon when she was struck by a car on Highway 4, three miles west of Parksville.

Tracy's brother, Richard, 7, seriously injured in the accident, was taken to Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital, where authorities say that he has multiple injuries.

The children, according to Parksville RCMP, were running across the highway at approximately 3:40 p.m. when struck by a car driven by Roger Moxley of Errington. The children had just been dismissed from school.

The girl's body was taken to Nanaimo hospital. Nanaimo coroner Dr. M. Smart said he will announce an inquest date next Tuesday.

Last May the parents protested to the B.C. government, airing their concern over school board budget restrictions that resulted in curtailment of school bus facilities as they stood at that time.

Spokesman Mrs. Florence Dorland of Nanoose told The Daily Colonist Thursday night that the accident did not concern a school bus, as the children had just been let out of a private car before the accident.

However, Mrs. Dorland said, if the bus routes had not had to be changed, fewer children would be on the highways exposed to 60 miles-an-hour traffic.

"Our district is the only one on the Island that is bisected by two major highways," said Mrs. Dorland. "Any cutback in bus service is to be regretted."

Children are bussed to Errington, French Creek and Qualicum. But 30 or 40 young children are on those highways twice a day, stated Mrs. Dorland.

Parents of the district have been urged to drive to French Creek school this morning, and a protest will be formed and sent to the provincial government, Mrs. Dorland said.

She said that the education department has had the budget cutback protest on its desks for some time now, and the entire district has been hoping for a satisfactory solution.

Up-Island Beach Report

They're Clean —Relatively

COURTENAY — Beaches from Union Bay to Campbell River and the surrounding lakes are relatively pollution-free.

A report released Thursday by the Upper Island Union Board of Health contained the good news.

Volunteers assisted in this health board-sponsored survey which covered a total of 15 of the most commonly-used swimming areas.

Health officer, Dr. G. A. Gibson, said the results of such use of volunteers were "very good," and while the information obtained from this program was of value today it would be even more of value in the future.

In order to maintain vigilant observation of local water conditions, the senior health inspector, Hugh Hart, depends upon the voluntary aid.

Drinking water in the area covered is also of good quality and where problems occurred formerly, such as at Tsolum, none exist at present. However, it was pointed out that wells were always liable to be contaminated and municipal supplies alone could be depended on.

Quarterback In Hospital

CALGARY (CP) — Quarterback Jerry Keeling of Calgary Stampeders has been placed in hospital "for a few days observation," the club announced Thursday.

Keeling suffered a cracked rib and bruises in the kidney area when hit Wednesday night by a defensive back during the fourth quarter of a Canadian Football League game against Montreal Alouettes. Calgary won, 11-4.

Fishboat Burns, Crewman Safe

The only man aboard a fishboat that caught fire and burned to the waterline in Georgia Strait Thursday night was taken off safely, Victoria Air Sea Rescue reported.

Post Office Couple Faces $2,520 Count

Police said William Albert Dolezsar, 55, and his wife, Irene, 26, were charged after the post office in their store was discovered to be short $2,250.

Mrs. Dolezsar also pleaded guilty to making false entries in post office books.

They were remanded to Oct. 27 for sentencing.

□

COURTENAY — Clifford Wilson Crowe, 20, of CFB Comox, was flown to hospital at CFB Esquimalt Thursday afternoon after a car accident on the Island Highway, two miles south of here. Courtenay RCMP said Crowe lost control of the car he was driving and went off the road, rolling the car over. A police spokesman said Crowe suffered leg injuries in the accident.

□

WHITE ROCK (CP) — An eight-acre island in the Strait of Georgia has been offered to the provincial government as a marine park by Mrs. I. M. Nelson of White Rock. She said she has received several good offers for the island from Americans, but wanted it kept for the enjoyment of Canadians.

Nanaimo Cadets The Best

NANAIMO — The 75 cadets of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Amphion are walking a little taller today. They've just won the national award for proficiency for cadet corps of fewer than 100 members.

Fake Cash Buys Jail

"People who produce counterfeit money on a large scale need people like you," Judge William Ostler told a 27-year-old Kamloops man in Victoria Provincial Court Thursday, "but very often you're the people who get caught."

He added to Ronald James Cole: "They're the ones that profit. You're the one that takes the chance."

Cole replied: "I realize that now."

Cole pleaded guilty Sept. 30 to a three-count charge, with one count being possession of 67 counterfeit U.S. $5 bills and the others being uttering of similar money. Police testified three bills were passed at two stores for items including a pair of slacks.

The judge sentenced Cole to a six-month jail term and a one-year probationary term that will begin when he leaves jail.

□

Thomas Arthur Emmerson, a Vancouver Island jail inmate, pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretences in obtaining two $42 tires a year ago at Vermilion Bay, Ont., through use of a stolen credit card. Emmerson, due for release in November, 1971, after several B.C. mainland frauds and thefts, was sentenced to 18 months starting Thursday.

□

A three-month jail term was ordered for William Nolan, 42, of 536 Johnson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretences involving less than $50. He admitted writing a bad cheque Wednesday for an $8.95 toy ship model and two 15-cent tubes of glue received from a store at 554 Johnson, and blamed this and his criminal record on liquor.

□

Steven George Ashton, 19, of Craigflower Road, was fined $250 after he was found guilty following a trial on a charge of possession of LSD. The charge was laid after seven tablets were found when Ashton was checked by Victoria police Sept. 24 at View and Government.

□

In traffic court, Judge E. F. N. Robinson levied a $300 fine against Manuel V. Moniz, 34, of 861 Pendene, who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving Sept. 26 in Saanich.

Two drivers who pleaded guilty to separate charges of driving with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent were fined $250 each. Darrel Douglas Aune, 19, of 1435 Elford, was stopped Sept. 25 in Saanich, while Arthur Bordon Kilgore, 53, of 5046 Lochside, was stopped Sept. 19 in Saanich.

Thieves' Way Cheaper But Lot of Hard Work

Thieves who wanted automobile accessories went to a lot of trouble in Oak Bay early Thursday.

Police said one or more persons entered a garage at 3250 Ripon where a 1965 Chrysler was parked. They pushed the car around a corner to a spot on Norfolk Road, about one-half block away, and stole all the wheels, tires and hubcaps.

Age Changed

Youths Enter Adult Court

Two youths Thursday became the first 17-year-olds to face charges in Victoria Provincial Court since the legal age for juveniles in B.C. was lowered to 17 from 18 last Tuesday.

Antoine Leon Berthelette, a resident of a Langford trailer park, was remanded to Oct. 20 for a pre-sentence report and sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of five items worth a total of $3.74 Wednesday from The Bay.

* * *

Robert George Ker, address not known, was fined $250 for driving without insurance and $25 for driving without a licence. He pleaded guilty to both offences, which occurred Wednesday in the Colwood area.

* * *

Until Tuesday, anyone charged before his or her 18th birthday was either dealt with in juvenile court or appeared there before transfer to adult court. The change to the 17th birthday started in B.C. after a recent national change ordered by Ottawa.

Plywood Case Closed

One man was sentenced Thursday to a one-year jail term while two other men received one-year suspended sentences following two recent trials in Victoria County Court.

Judge M. L. Drake ordered the jail term for David Manhas, 29, of Saanich, who was found guilty by a county court jury Sept. 16 on a charge of theft involving more than $50. The charge, laid Feb. 11, concerned about 500 sheets of plywood owned by Victoria Plywood Co.

One of the suspended sentences was given to Keith Clark, 20, of Saanich, who was also found guilty Sept. 16, on a charge of possession of stolen goods worth more than $50 in the plywood case.

The other went to Stephen Jossul, 58, of 2414 Millstream, who was found guilty by a county court jury Sept. 30 on a charge of arson laid after a $5,000 fire at his home last April 17.

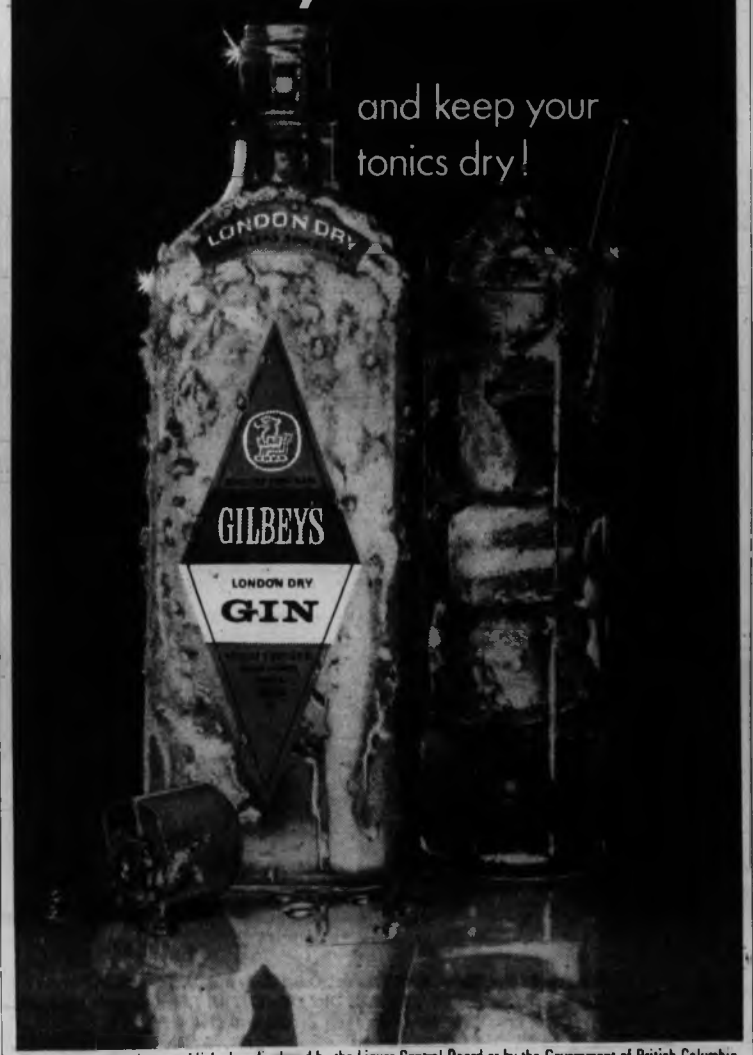

Nine Killed By Twister

SHAWNEE, Okla. (UPI) — A tornado struck without warning in the downtown section of Shawnee Monday, then skipped 15 miles northeast and hit the small town of Prague, killing nine persons and injuring at least 40. Eight of the dead were at Shawnee, the Red Cross said.

'Fall Offensive' Beginning?

Bombs Rock West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bombs rocked a courtroom, a national guard armory and an ROTC building on the west coast Thursday. Another explosive was disarmed at the University of California before it went off.

Attorney-General John Mitchell called the bombings the work of "psychopaths" trying to destroy American institutions.

* * *

Three days after a statement purportedly from the militant Weatherman group predicting a "fall offensive . . . from Santa Barbara to Boston and back to Kent and Kansas," explosives went off in the middle of the night in San Rafael, Calif., Santa Barbara, Calif., and Seattle, Wash.

There were no injuries.

At the UC campus at Berkeley, police and army bomb disposal crews found and disarmed another bomb in a heating duct of the university research building.

Campus police said they received an anonymous call at 3:03 a.m. from a woman who said a bomb would go off within 5 minutes.

In San Rafael, a powerful bomb in a ladies' restroom wrecked a courtroom in the Frank Lloyd-Wright designed Marin County hall of justice, near where a judge and three others were killed in an abortive convict escape attempt two months ago.

Senate Unscathed

OTTAWA (CP) — "Well, we got through it without a bomb," remarked one senator following the reading Thursday in the Senate chamber of the speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament.

A source said that as well as an increased complement of Senate staff, eight plain-clothes police were seated in each of the two crowded galleries overlooking the floor of the chamber.

In Montreal the visitors' gallery of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges was closed to the public as a result of the kidnapping of James Cross.

Charles Neapole, president of the Montreal exchange, said: "The simple truth is that the floor traders have been through this once before (a bomb blast in 1969) and many of them are pretty jumpy."

Manifesto Aired

Deadline Past, No FLQ Word

CBC French telecaster reads manifesto —CP

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the government's first concession to kidnappers of British diplomat James Richard Cross Thursday night, a midnight deadline for meeting other conditions set for his release went past without word from his abductors.

The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec had vowed to assassinate the 49-year-old trade commissioner unless its conditions were met by midnight.

The federal government Thursday night broadcast the FLQ's "political manifesto" on CBC French-language radio and television stations in Quebec province.

The broadcast was followed by a statement saying the manifesto was read "for humanitarian reasons" with a view "to save if possible the life of James Richard Cross."

* * *

CBC president George Davidson issued a statement saying the broadcast was made because it was in the public interest.

Meanwhile, Le Devoir reported in an Ottawa story that the federal government had partially acceded to a second FLQ demand — that police suspend their investigation.

The newspaper says that without making this public, federal authorities asked police to reduce to the minimum their inquiries and other investigations.

* * *

Cross is the British trade commissioner in Montreal, kidnapped Monday from his home. The Front de Liberation du Quebec, which has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, warned earlier that Cross would be executed if conditions set for his release were not met by midnight Thursday.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said following the broadcast he had "no comments to make."

FLQ Manifesto Demands End To 'Slavery'

MONTREAL (CP) — A political manifesto issued by the terrorist group claiming responsibility for the kidnapping of James Cross and read Thursday night over the CBC French-language television network calls for the freeing of an "enslaved society" in Quebec.

Full publication and broadcasting of the 1,400-word manifesto throughout Quebec was one of the ransom demands of the Front de Liberation du Quebec for the release of the British diplomat.

The 10-minute reading of the complete text at 7:30 p.m. PDT was done in a sober manner by Gaetan Montreuil, one of the French-language network's best-known announcers.

In its ransom demands, the FLQ had suggested that the text might be read by Claude-Jean Deverieux.

The manifesto said:

"The FLQ wants the total independence of Quebecers, reunited in a free society forever purged of its clique of voracious sharks, the patronizing big bosses and the lackeys who make Quebec their protected domain of cheap labor and unscrupulous exploitation."

* * *

The FLQ describes itself as "the answer to an aggression" which is spearheaded by almost every existing institution, including the Roman Catholic Church, in Quebec.

The manifesto refers to several labor, language and political disputes in the province.

The document also states that the FLQ had at one time considered throwing all its support behind the separatist Parti Quebecois, but this plan died when the PQ failed to win widespread electoral support last April 29.

* * *

"Consequently, the British parliamentary system is really finished, and the FLQ will never again allow itself to be distracted by the electoral crumbs the Anglo-Saxon capitalists throw into the Quebec barnyard every four years."

The document speaks of "100,000 worker-revolutionaries, organized and armed" in the coming year, a sneer at Premier Robert Bourassa's pledge to create 100,000 new jobs in Quebec by 1971.

"We are fed up, and so are more and more Quebecers, with a spineless government which makes 1,000-and-one somersaults to charm American millionaires while begging them to come and invest in Quebec . . ."

VERNON — B.C.'s doctors will decide by a referendum if they will have a one-year moratorium on fee increases, it was announced Thursday in Vernon.

Dr. J. W. Corbett of North Vancouver, newly-elected president of the B.C. Medical Association, said the decision on a referendum was made in a closed session Thursday morning.

* * *

The board of directors of the BCMA, he added, is recommending that members do not seek a fee increase from the provincial government, which administers the prepaid medical care plans in B.C.

The association ended its four-day annual convention here Thursday.

Corbett said the B.C. medical profession will study its schedule of fees to get rid of some inequities that exist in earnings in some specialties, including general practice.

* * *

He said the need for such adjustments became apparent earlier this year when the medical association started receiving detailed reports on earnings from the B.C. Medical Services Commission, the over-all agency for medicare in B.C.

Dealing with the five-year agreement the doctors signed with the government in 1965,

Plans for New Department Unveiled

Ottawa to Battle Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal government department will call the shots in future efforts to control pollution of air, water and soil.

The new environmental department will also have charge of federal fisheries and forestry responsibilities. Agriculture, at least in some of its aspects, will be a further concern.

Plans for the new department were unveiled in the throne speech at Thursday's opening of a new session of Parliament.

The program may become the responsibility of a cabinet minister with a new portfolio designation, although a final decision awaits the results of a study of the Senate science policy committee.

* * *

Treasury Board President Charles Drury is being touted as the man to head a cabinet science committee on a full-time basis, without dividing his time between scientific affairs and treasury board which controls spending.

Immediate speculation is that the new environment department will be headed by Jack Davis, the tough fisheries minister who has been outspoken in his concern about environment protection and renewable resource conservation.

* * *

The government served notice that legislation to deal with ocean and air pollution will be introduced. Both have been under preparation for some time and subject to a certain amount of public discussion.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson's department has been working on anti-pollution measures since last winter's major oil spill from the grounding of the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay in Nova Scotia.

Health Minister John Munro has said his department has a clean air act draft in preparation for this session.

Responsibility for water pollution in other respects rests with the department of energy, mines and resources under the Canada Water Act passed last summer.

The new agency will have at least a co-ordination and consolidation which were described in the throne speech as more pressing needs than any other step or steps.

Specialists' Pullout: Little Effect

QUEBEC (CP) — The health department reported little change Thursday in occupancy of Quebec hospitals despite medical specialists' withdrawal of all but emergency services.

The specialists withdrew their services to support demands for changes in Quebec's medical care insurance plan.

Empty in Content, Stanfield Asserts

OTTAWA (CP) — With emphasis on the new decade and a "new age," Parliament began a new session Thursday and the traditional speech from the throne zeroed in on the environment, urban problems and the economically deprived.

Some of the pomp of the past was missing this time as Governor-General Michener, dressed in a dark suit, officially opened the third session of Canada's 28th Parliament. The throne speech, prepared by the government, concentrated on problems of the future.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was unimpressed with the speech.

"I've never heard such guff

Captains, Pilot Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two captains and a B.C. marine pilot were blamed by federal transport department counsel Thursday night for the Aug. 2 ferry-freighter collision in Active Pass in which three ferry passengers were killed.

The Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin sliced into the port side of the B.C. government ferry Queen of Victoria at noon in clear visibility in the narrow pass between two islands.

Commission counsel Norman Mullins, in his closing address to a federal commission of inquiry, recommended that the licence of Canadian pilot aboard the freighter D. G. Crabbe, be suspended, that the certificate of competency of ferry captain R. J. Pollock be suspended and that Captain N. G. Khaustov of the Soviet ship be admonished or censured. He said the pilot was the most culpable.

Mullins said it was his opinion that Crabbe had made the gravest error of anybody involved. It arose out of Crabbe's handling of wireless communications.

Crabbe, he said, had signalled the Russian ship's approach to Active Pass using radio channels that the ferry could not receive.

"He knew very well," said Mullins, "that the ferries could not receive transmissions on channels six or 16; the fact was notorious among the pilots."

Bolivian Unit Revolts

From Reuters-AP

LA PAZ — A 500-man regiment revolted Thursday against Bolivia's new left-wing president, Gen. Juan Jose Torres, only one day after he took power by defeating right-wing rebel troops.

The commander of the important Ingavi regiment based in La Paz announced his opposition to the government of Torres, formed Wednesday after a two-day conflict.

The rebel officer said he counted on support from general headquarters.

The right-wing commander, Col. Miguel Ayoroa, announced in a communique he will oppose Torres. He said he had the support of another La Paz garrison.

But Torres responded by saying he would not put up with any opposition.

Nobel Prize Offered to Russia's Solzhenitsyn

By HARRY TRIMBORN
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — Novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn said Thursday he will go to Sweden — if the Kremlin lets him — to personally accept the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature.

And therein lies the makings of a plot worthy of the talents of the 52-year-old mathematician and former artillery officer and inmate of Stalin's labor camps who is considered Russia's greatest living writer.

For the decision may trigger a repetition of the ferocious government propaganda attack that forced another Russian, Boris Pasternak, author of Doctor Zhivago, to decline the same prize in 1958.

* * *

Like Pasternak, who died in 1960, Solzhenitsyn has incurred the wrath of the Soviet government for his eloquent attacks against the policies and practices of the Kremlin.

In his first public comment on the prize awarded earlier Thursday by the Swedish academy, the author of A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich," declared:

"I am grateful for the decision (to award me the prize). I accept the prize. I intend to go and receive it personally on the traditional day (Dec. 10) insofar as this will depend on me."

Solzhenitsyn made the comments to a Scandinavian journalist who said he was given the writer's telephone number by friends.

* * *

"Consider me unreachable," he said. "I am not receiving any Western correspondents."

The Soviet press has made no comment on it yet — just as there was no immediate Soviet comment to Pasternak's selection 12 years ago. The propaganda campaign then was not launched until about a week after the announcement and continued unremittingly for three weeks until Pasternak changed his mind about accepting the prize.

In its attack 12 years ago, the Soviet government did not specifically prohibit Pasternak from going to Stockholm to collect his prize. That

Search for Balloon Produces Little

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI) — An air-sea search for traces of the missing American balloon Free Life turned up nothing but bits of old fishing net and a skein of orange rope, search and rescue co-ordinators said Thursday.

Searching in 30-knot winds and high seas, the Coastguard cutter Bartlett covered an area where a chartered search plane had reported seeing colored objects.

Nixon Indochina Plan

Praise at Home But Viets Balk

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon's five-point Indochina peace plan received almost unanimous support here Thursday but raised only faint hopes of an early halt to the fighting.

U.S. officials were not surprised or dismayed by initial Communist denunciation of the plan. Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief delegate at the Paris peace talks, said the basic issues of the war should be settled before any ceasefire, such as proposed by the president, could be considered.

Most observers here believed Washington had expected the Communists to reject the president's proposals, made in a major television appearance Wednesday night, at least for the time being. This is regarded here as a standard Communist negotiating tactic.

Speaking in Savannah, Ga., en route to his Florida home for a weekend of rest, Nixon said he hoped the almost unanimous approval of his plan in the U.S. would be noted by Hanoi, which he said counted on dissension in America to force Washington's hand at the negotiating table.

The administration line in the wake of the president's address appeared to be that the country was again on the road to peace and that domestic differences over the war were beginning to heal.

The two party leaders of the Senate, Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said the Communists' cool reaction to the Nixon plan was to be expected and that they believed there was hope for serious negotiations leading to a settlement.

Mansfield joined Scott in playing down speculation that Nixon's speech had political overtones and was drafted with an eye to the Nov. 3 U.S. elections.

Egypt Will Launch Campaign For Israeli Censure in UN

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt will launch a major diplomatic offensive aimed at winning condemnation by the UN General Assembly of Israel for refusing to resume the Middle East peace talks.

In Jerusalem, meantime, Israel filed its 22nd complaint with the UN Truce Supervisory Organization against cease fire violations by Egypt of the 90-day cease-fire. Israel charged more SAM-2 and SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles had been moved into Egypt's side of the Suez Canal standstill zone. Soviets Thursday denied the charges.

'Facade' to Dodge Rules

Air Licences Lifted In Wake of Tragedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government lifted the licences Thursday of the company that owned the ill-fated Wichita State University charter plane and the firm that supplied the crew. It claimed their business arrangement apparently was a "facade" to duck air safety regulations.

Federal aviation administrator John Shaffer announced the action against Jack Richards, Inc., owner of the Martin 404 that crashed last Friday, and Golden Eagle Corp., which provided the crew. Both are Oklahoma City companies.

Shaffer told a news conference of the grounding of all 16 planes owned by Jack Richards, and the revocation of the air taxi certificate held by Golden Eagle, as questions about both operations mounted in the wake of the tragedy.

Worms Might Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists who investigated a Hawaiian "old wife's tale" about an ancient cancer treatment reported Thursday there is something in tropical sea worms that protects mice against at least one kind of tumor.

They did not propose sea worms be enlisted in the fight against human cancer, but they said the protective effect on mice of sea worm extracts, "considered together with their reputed ancient use in human cancer therapy, is a striking coincidence certainly worth further study."

Flight Took 10 Days

"The journey was made through uncharted skies without radio or accurate weather information. It took 10 days and seven aircraft."

Nuclear Pack To Run Light

Gaglardi:

Taxpayers Abused Worse Than Poor

VANCOUVER (CP) — Taxpayers in British Columbia are more abused than welfare recipients, P. A. Gaglardi, the provincial minister responsible for welfare, said Wednesday.

Gaglardi was commenting on a proposal made in Ottawa earlier Wednesday by the National Welfare Council that an inquiry be launched into cases of failure to provide welfare assistance to those in need.

"As far as I am concerned, I think we have been far too lenient in welfare payments in B.C.," Gaglardi said.

The council has accused provinces and municipalities of excluding certain eligible categories of persons from receiving assistance under the Canada Assistance Plan, of which the federal government pays half.

Craft Lost Off Island

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States naval research and development centre, Pasadena, Calif., has put up a $5,000 reward for help leading to the recovery of an unmanned underwater craft missing off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The 12½-foot-long, five-foot-by-five-foot controlled underwater research vehicle, Curv III, was seen last Sunday in heavy seas in the vicinity of Nootka Sound.

We shall overtake.

Big long transport trucks tend to look down on small cars. Especially if the small car hasn't got the power to pass him on a two-lane highway.

Introducing the Toyota Corolla 1200 with "overtake".

We've added 13 more horsepower to an already powerful engine, giving us a grand total of 73. All the power and speed you need to overtake the biggest rigs is there. Top speed is over 90 mph, cruising speed is a smooth 75, and you still get up to 35 miles to the gallon.

The extra horsepower is another good reason why Corolla is considered to be the best all-around small car around.

But can the Corolla handle all that power?

You bet your bug it can. We realize that a car that can go has to be able to stop. For that, the Corolla has finned brakes and a dual circuit system.

Inside it hasn't changed a bit. Everything is standard except the radio and the fully automatic transmission. It comes with reclining bucket seats, a three speed heater, heavy duty 60 amp battery, a 1.3 horsepower starter motor, and white walls. The trunk is spacious for a small car, safety features are everywhere, and the price tag speaks for itself.

If you're beginning to think it's a pretty good car for the money, you're right it is. We could go on to tell you that it's a fun car to drive, but you really should drive it and discover that for yourself.

Also available in Station Wagon and fastback Sprinter.

Corbett explained it provided for fee increases every two years based on cost-of-living and weekly wages and salaries indexes.

Dr. E. C. McCoy, BCMA executive director, said this has meant average annual increases of about 3.4 per cent, but the increases were always two years behind the rate of growth of the B.C. economy.

Corbett said B.C. doctors as long ago as 1941 accepted prepaid medical care insurance schemes and have tried hard to make medicare work, including agreeing to accepting as payment 90 per cent of their schedule of fees for care given medicare subscribers.

"However, we now recognize an exceedingly difficult condition — the dual problem of inflation and recession side-by-side in the economy.

"Some responsible segments of society will say, let's stop this wicked treadmill," Corbett said. "Our board or directors accepts that a moratorium (on fees) is desirable, but we believe a decision on this should be by our general membership.

"That is why every member of the association will be provided with a ballot by which, after quiet and thoughtful consideration, he can express his personal convictions."

Corbett said the ballot basically will ask each doctor whether he favors a moratorium of not more than one year.

"It will not be easy for doctors to say 'no,' especially after looking at some of the tremendous wage and salary increases granted other groups."

He said it might be six or eight weeks before the results of the referendum are known. The question on the ballot will be scientifically prepared in consultation with experts on opinion surveys.

The problems of the medical services commission were outlined to the doctors Thursday morning by their representative on that body, Dr. P. J. Banks of Victoria.

Banks, former president of the Canadian Medical Association, was a co-author of the pioneering agreement that was signed with the B.C. government in 1965.

It was learned that he retraced the discussions held with government and pointed out that the government has simply said no more money is available for doctors' fee increases.

The fees discussion was the convention highlight, and the topic has been in the spotlight since Wednesday, when about 150 doctors suddenly arrived in town. One group of 43 from the Surrey-Delta area, flew here on group rates.

Registration stood at about 350 Thursday.

Many of the late-arrivals represented the militant group within the profession — those doctors who feel BCMA should press ahead with negotiations for a fee increase.

If the province-wide referendum produces a "no" response, the BCMA directors have few alternatives other than a return to the bargaining table.

If there is still no hope of money from the government, they could resort to "balance billing," a suggestion made Wednesday in Vernon by Dr. Douglas Kippen of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Medical Association, as one method of avoiding a confrontation with Victoria.

"Balance billing" would involve the patient paying the difference in the fee set by the doctors and the benefit set by government.

in all my life. It was pretentious in language and empty in content."

Stanfield said the speech could have put more emphasis on the big problem of unemployment.

New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas was also critical. The speech, he said, was full of frivilous platitudes and failed to deal with the main problems facing Canada, including unemployment.

Never had a throne speech devoted so much time to "the moralizing of motherhood."

"The government has not dealt with credit rates," he said. The policy papers promised for the new session would do nothing to solve the problems of Canadians.

It was the problems of the "new age" that were referred to frequently in the 3,600-word speech, as the government outlined its broad legislative plans for the new session, including the creation of a new department to deal with pollution and a new rank for ministers who will deal with specialized areas, including urban affairs.

Legislation to help the consumer was promised. Measures would be introduced "to protect Canadians more adequately from the results of combines, mergers and unfair trade practices, to regulate the labelling and packaging of consumer goods, and to protect further the users of consumer credit."

There would be more emphasis on urban problems.

Under a new government reorganization bill, a position would be created for a minister of state for urban affairs and housing, and the job is slated to go to Robert Andras, now minister without portfolio in charge of housing.

The challenge of the new minister would be to "foster co-ordination of the activities of all levels of government and to contribute to sound urban growth and development."

There would be "sweeping changes" in the Unemployment Insurance Act "designed to widen considerably both the benefits offered and the persons who are qualified to take advantage of them."

There would be new pollution measures, both for the air and ocean; there would be a revised legal framework for labor-management relations; there would be the long-promised tax revision legislation; white papers would be presented on income security, defence, communications, citizenship and immigration; a special debate on abortion would be held.

Deadline

ment said it had received no reaction from the FLQ following the broadcast.

He also said the government had received no assurance Cross would be safely released before it decided to go ahead with the reading of the manifesto.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday the government would arrange for the broadcast if it got assurances that "without the imposition of unacceptable conditions, Cross will be delivered safe and sound."

Earlier Thursday, the FLQ rejected the idea of a mediator to establish communications between the government and the kidnappers.

In a written communique in which it set the "last" deadline of midnight, the terrorist group warned authorities to broadcast the manifesto and to suspend police investigations of the kidnapping.

Juan de Fuca College is for YOU!

Eight other areas of our province are now served by this type of new and different college for students of all ages.

Juan de Fuca College will provide the first and second years of Arts and Science. Students with satisfactory records will be able to transfer into universities. The student load at UVic can be relieved—and the college student get his or her first two years of tuition at a greatly reduced fee.

But the great story of this new type of college lies in the vocational-technical area. Many of the courses offered are "tailor-made" to suit our businesses, organizations and industries. Juan de Fuca College will be prepared to offer courses in any field of study in which the residents desire instruction.

To the high school "drop-out" — often for reasons beyond his or her control — the new college will say "our door is open if you want further education — there IS hope." Our college will provide special counselling and upgrading courses for students with problems.

At present in our secondary schools, unless you are university bound, most students come to a dead end on graduation. Employment for these pupils lacking further vocational-technical training is scarce.

In other areas of our province — across Canada — throughout the U.S.A. — this new type of flexible post secondary education is opening up new avenues for their students. Victoria students also (young and adult) should have the benefits of this integrated technical-vocational and academic training.

The need has been amply demonstrated and it is the aim of your school board to fulfill this need.

VICTORIA IS FORTUNATE

No money by-law is required in the foreseeable future to provide the campus, buildings and equipment. All other colleges in B.C. (except Selkirk) started in make-shift premises. Many are still running afternoon and evening classes in high schools. Sooner or later these other college districts will have major building money by-laws. Victoria has its ready-made college campus — the Young Building (former Victoria College).

—has the capacity for a university education but prefers to complete the first two years in a college.
—desires a university education but who failed for one reason or another to complete the necessary courses in high school.
—needs technical, vocational or semi-professional training for entry into the world of work.
—wishes to take "up-grading" and "refresher" courses related to his or her own occupation.

The college area itself will benefit from the up-grading of the education of its residents.

Industry, too, will benefit in that more highly trained and specifically skilled workers will be available.

New Senator First Said 'No Thanks'

Pierre Was 'Very Persuasive'

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — It took a phone call from Prime Minister Trudeau to convince Mrs. Nancy Heath she should accept an appointment to the Senate of Canada.

Mrs. Heath, the wife of Nanaimo lawyer Hugh Heath, is one of eight people whose Senate appointments were announced Wednesday.

She said it was a surprise two weeks ago when she was first informed of the appointment, but at that time she turned it down.

"However," she said, "the prime minister phoned a week later and he was very persuasive. For every point I raised he had an answer."

Mrs. Heath, 46, was born in Ottawa and attended McGill University where she met her husband.

During the war she worked in textile research at the National Research Council in the days when waterproofing materials and keeping mildew out of canvas were problems.

Her husband was studying law at the University of British Columbia when their son Ian was born in 1947.

The family moved to Nanaimo in 1950.

Mrs. Heath is currently president of the local Council of Women in Nanaimo and served on a special committee for leadership development on the national C of W. She was chairman of the economics committee in the provincial council She was president of the Women's Liberal Association of B.C. from 1966 to 1969.

Locally, Mrs. Heath started a branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers in 1951 and since 1954 has been involved with the Nanaimo Symphony Society.

Her father, 87-year-old Charles Bowman, was for 35 years editor of the Ottawa Citizen and in the 1930's was a member of the air royal commission which recommended the establishment of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mrs. Heath said, "he brought us all up to feel this was a wonderful country and we had a responsibility to it. He always went out for what he thought was right for the country."

Bowman lives with the Heaths and is still active writing editorials for the weekly Nanaimo Times and in the senior curling club.

Mrs. Heath said to be asked to disrupt her family life is hard, "particularly at this time in our social evolution when the family unit must be very strong and very firmly based."

She said it will take a while to see where she can fit in, in the Senate.

She has a special interest in the arts as a unifying force in Canada and in "trying to make the art scene more relevant to people all over the country."

She also mentioned national radio and television development as a way of tying the country together.

Hugh Heath said he is delighted with his wife's appointment and said, "it is quite typical of the new look the Trudeau government is bringing to the country."

Boy Hurt

Car Kills Girl

PARKSVILLE — Nine-year-old Tracy Pepper was killed instantly Thursday afternoon when she was struck by a car on Highway 4, three miles west of Parksville.

Tracy's brother, Richard, 7, seriously injured in the accident, was taken to Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital, where authorites say that he has multiple injuries.

The children, according to Parksville RCMP, were running across the highway at approximately 3:40 p.m. when struck by a car driven by Roger Moxley of Errington. The children had just been dismissed from school.

The girl's body was taken to Nanaimo hospital. Nanaimo coroner Dr. M. Smart said he will announce an inquest date next Tuesday.

Last May the parents protested to the B.C. government, airing their concern over school board budget restrictions that resulted in curtailment of school bus facilities as they stood at that time.

Spokesman Mrs. Florence Dorland of Nanoose told The Daily Colonist Thursday night that the accident did not concern a school bus, as the children had just been let out of a private car before the accident.

However, Mrs. Dorland said, if the bus routes had not had to be changed, fewer children would be on the highways exposed to 60 miles-an-hour traffic.

"Our district is the only one on the Island that is bisected by two major highways," said Mrs. Dorland. "Any cutback in bus service is to be regretted."

Children are bussed to Errington, French Creek and Qualicum. But 30 or 40 young children are on those highways twice a day, stated Mrs. Dorland.

Parents of the district have been urged to drive to French Creek school this morning, and a protest will be formed and sent to the provincial government, Mrs. Dorland said.

She said that the education department has had the budget cutback protest on its desks for some time now, and the entire district has been hoping for a satisfactory solution.

Elk Falls Extends Mill Odor Fight

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Paper Co. Ltd. announced Thursday it is adding a $318,000 control system to its Elk Falls pulp mill to further combat odor.

The company said it is one of 15 air and water quality improvements scheduled over the next three years at the mill, about 10 miles northwest of this Vancouver Island community.

The new system, described as the first of its kind on the coast, is known technically as a "strong black liquor oxidation system."

"Pending a dramatic engineering breakthrough, this new system, together with our already extensive air quality monitoring and control systems, is the most modern and efficient odor control system known," said Junius Sapp, the mill's resident manager.

The process will oxidize most of the material which produces kraft mill odor and together with existing processes will extract over 95 per cent of the odor-generating compounds, Sapp said.

Up-Island Beach Report

They're Clean —Relatively

COURTENAY — Beaches from Union Bay to Campbell River and the surrounding lakes are relatively pollution-free.

A report released Thursday by the Upper Island Union Board of Health contained the good news.

Volunteers assisted in this health board-sponsored survey which covered a total of 15 of the most commonly-used swimming areas.

Health officer, Dr. G. A. Gibson, said the results of such use of volunteers were "very good," and while the information obtained from this program was of value today it would be even more of value in the future.

In order to maintain vigilant observation of local water conditions, the senior health inspector, Hugh Hart, depends upon the voluntary aid.

Drinking water in the area covered is also of good quality and where problems occurred formerly, such as at Tsolum, none exist at present. However, it was pointed but that wells were always liable to be contaminated and municipal supplies alone could be depended on.

Toastmasters To the Fore

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney has proclaimed the week of Oct. 19-23 as Toastmasters' Week in Nanaimo.

There are three clubs in town: 1338 which meets Wednesday evenings at The Villa; club 738 which meets each Friday evening at The Villa; and Toastmistresses who gather the first and third Wednesday of each month at the Malaspina.

New Voters Won't Sign

NANAIMO (CP) — Only three of hundreds of young people in Nanaimo aged 19 and 20 have taken advantage of the lowering of the age of maturity to register to vote in December's civic elections. Three aldermanic seats are on the line.

One Case, One Suspected

Diphtheria Outbreak Threat to Ahousat

NANAIMO — A diphtheria outbreak has been reported in the small Indian community of Ahousat, on the west coast northwest of Tofino.

Dr. P. J. Reynolds, medical director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said there is one confirmed and one suspected case. Both patients are hospitalized, he said.

In co-operation with the medical health services the source of the infection of the two cases in being sought.

Reynolds said, "Meanwhile, I would strongly recommend that those who wish to visit Ahousat should postpone their visits until the situation has resolved itself."

Village population is about 400.

"Outbreaks of this nature do emphasize the necessity for continuing our immunization programs, and the danger of staff shortages."

He reported that the board has now run out of its supply of rubella (German measles) vaccine. It had 8,280 doses for a school population of 81,994 covering Grades 1 to 6.

Welfare Problem

Federal Action Could Be Saver

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — The federal government may have to be called on to amend the Canada Assistance Act to allow some sort of a residence clause to be added to help control the ever-soaring cost of welfare to municipalities, according to Mayor Fred Bishop.

Recently announced increase in the municipalities' share of welfare costs will set Port Alberni back approximately $50,000 over budget the mayor said.

"How do we get it? We will simply have to steal it from other areas of the budget by curtailing other projects," the mayor said in an interview.

"If we have a revenue surplus, we may be able to squeeze a portion of it out of that, but we will not know until the end of the year just what the surplus, if any, will be."

Bishop was not enthusiastic about a suggestion by Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi that payment by the municipalities might be postponed until after the New Year and the new budget.

"I'd prefer, if we have to pay it, to pay it in 1970 and not have it doubling up on us in an ever greater amount in 1971" the mayor said.

Mayor Bishop said he had been among those who wired

Bishop

UBCM President Ron Andrews to seek an immediate emergency meeting with the cabinet. Meantime Andrews met with Gaglardi, but in Mayor Bishop's opinion a further meeting with the cabinet is still required.

"We have to be concerned with two things," Bishop said. "The first is "what do we do to get people off welfare and gainfully employed. "The second is concerned with the cost sharing increase from 10 to 20 per cent."

"The provincial government is blaming the increase in transients for the surge in welfare costs," Bishop said. "I think we are just going to have to set some sort of a time limit that people have to be resident in an area, before they can get welfare."

"It would be necessary for the federal government to amend the Canada Assistance Act to allow some sort of a residence clause to be put in. Right now, all people have to do is prove need," said Bishop.

Mayor Bishop said in some cases the need did not appear to be what he would call "real". "We have great numbers of transients, wandering like nomads, who walk into Port Alberni for a hand-out today, and into Nanaimo for a hand-out tomorrow. The time has come when authorities will just have to toughen up. It is just too easy for people to come to B.C. and start collecting welfare."

Mayor Bishop expressed concern for those in the community with real need for welfare assistance. "Those who are legitimately our responsibility should have winter works or other form of temporary subsidy while the concentration of effort by all levels of government should be on long-range meaningful employment," the mayor said.

"Things are reaching a critical stage in B.C. and simply can't go on as they are at present. Meaningful work is needed, together with some additional measure of control over recipients." Bishop said.

Hearing

Buses Still Run

Vancouver Island Coach Lines will continue to provide service between the Island and the Mainland pending the outcome of a provincial government hearing, company president R. N. Dalby said Thursday.

A cabinet hearing is planned for next Wednesday of a company appeal against a Public Utilities Commission ruling that rejected a proposal for higher bus fares between Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo.

It could be some weeks before a decision is announced, but Coach Lines president Dalby said Thursday that the bus service will continue until the outcome is known.

The company has warned that it will go into liquidation unless a fare increase is granted. It has also applied to discontinue bus service in the Saanich peninsula.

Post Office Couple Faces $2,520 Count

Police said William Albert Dolezsar, 55, and his wife, Irene, 26, were charged after the post office in their store was discovered to be short $2,250.

Mrs. Dolezsar also pleaded guilty to making false entries in post office books.

They were remanded to Oct. 27 for sentencing.

□

COURTENAY — Clifford Wilson Crowe, 20, of CFB Comox, was flown to hospital at CFB Esquimalt Thursday afternoon after a car accident on the Island Highway, two miles south of here. Courtenay RCMP said Crowe lost control of the car he was driving and went off the road, rolling the car over. A police spokesman said Crowe suffered leg injuries in the accident.

□

WHITE ROCK (CP) — An eight-acre island in the Strait of Georgia has been offered to the provincial government as a marine park by Mrs. I. M. Nelson of White Rock. She said she has received several good offers for the island from Americans, but wanted it kept for the enjoyment of Canadians.

Nanaimo Cadets The Best

NANAIMO — The 75 cadets of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Amphion are walking a little taller today. They've just won the national award for proficiency for cadet corps of fewer than 100 members.

The Nanaimo corps, formed 27 years ago, is commanded by Lieut. Gordon Riddell. The award is the first such honor although it took a national rifle shooting prize two years ago.

Golden Event To Be Marked

Mr. and Mrs. John Grassick of 278 Pine, Nanaimo, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Grassick were married in Victoria in 1920 at the home of Mrs. Grassick's parents. Grassick, now retired, was a prominent jeweller in Nanaimo.

An open house will be held for relatives and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Muschamp, 840 Eberts, Nanaimo, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Oct. 18. Mrs. Muschamp is a daughter of the Grassicks.

Among the guests will be Mrs. Grassick's father, Archibald Clyde, 91, of Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Grassick have one other daughter, Mrs. G. W. Chapman and one grandson.

Somenos Shooting Still Out

NORTH COWICHAN — Mayor Gerry Smith of North Cowichan stressed that new proposed firearms regulations will not be put into effect until the next year's hunting season.

Smith made the statement at the regular meeting of the North Cowichan council Wednesday. This decision will mean that Somenos Lake, one of the most controversial areas, will remain closed to hunting.

Shooting will be permitted of migratory birds, in approved areas only, commencing Saturday.

Island Writers Lauded

RICHMOND (CP) — A $500 award for writing last week went to Herbert Legg, Jr., of the Creston, B.C., Review for a series of articles supporting fruit growers of the Kootenay, Okanagan and Similkameen areas in a campaign against a B.C. Tree Fruit Board regulation.

Union Bay Captures Awards

UNION BAY — The Degree Staff of Union Temple No. 12, Order of Pythian Sisters, has again won the Mildred Beadnell Shield for excellence in their ritualistic drill.

This trophy was awarded to Staff Captain Myrtle McKay after her team's performance at the annual convention of Pythian Sisters for District No. 6 at Powell River, Sept. 26 and 27.

Union Temple also won the Rose Lovell Shield for having the largest attendance from outside the convention area.

Garage $2,000; Car $500

DUNCAN —Police said a car driven by Antonio D'Angelo of Duncan wiped out two walls of a garage on Glenora Road early Wednesday morning.

Duncan RCMP reported that the accident occured as the vehicle was proceeding east on Glenora along a straight stretch. For some unknown reason the vehicle veered to the left, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the garage and $500 damage to the car.

The driver was uninjured and was charged for driving without due care and attention.

Two Weeks on Ocean Floor

Island Tug and Barge tug Island Rocket was raised Wednesday after two weeks on the ocean bed off Macaulay Point. Tug sank Sept. 22 in rough weather while helping to lay new outfall pipe. She lay in 200 feet of water some 1,000 feet from pipeline about a mile offshore and was pulled underwater into 28 feet of water for final raising Wednesday afternoon. Cause of sinking is unknown and under investigation.

Unionists Want Schools To Enter Library Scrap

The Victoria Labor Council, still certain that the city's library board is dragging the library down the road to ruin, is going to ask the school system to help block the way.

At its meeting Wednesday night, the labor council also decided to let everyone concerned know that it is offering its support to chief librarian John Lort.

Lort's resignation is sought by the board in the latest chapter of controversy that began when the board decided to implement a money-saving formula for operating the library.

The board says much of its program isn't being initiated by Lort.

Many of those who work for Lort describe him as a very able librarian, as do some officers of the labor council who make constant use of the library, it was learned.

The school system was brought into the picture by D. R. Miller, and Office and Professional Employees' Union delegate. He won support for a motion that the labor council ask all area school boards and principals to write the library board and complain about curtailment of services.

Labor council secretary Larry Ryan was the only one opposing the motion. He felt the educators should have been among the first aware of the situation.

"If they were doing their jobs properly they would know of this," he said.

Dora Payne, an employee of the library and a Canadian Union of Public Employees delegate, expressed sadness over the whole situation.

"A public service seems to have become a political football, which is a shame," she said.

"Things have been said (during the heat of the library controversy) that reflect no credit on the people who said them."

Of Lort, she said: "He has been asked to do things that his professional ethics don't allow him to do, or encourage him to do, certainly."

Sisters Given Offer

A tentative solution to St. Joseph's Hospital expansion problem was thrashed out during a three-hour meeting Wednesday afternoon between Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and members of the Capital Region's hospital board.

Loffmark said after the meeting he was wiring the Sisters of St. Ann, owners of the hospital, with a proposal for the purchase of land at St. Ann's Academy for an extended-care hospital.

Loffmark said the meeting had been long, amicable and fruitful, and that another meeting would be called as soon as a reply was received from the religious order to his proposal.

He would not enlarge on details of the proposal, but it is understood it suggests a solution to the troublesome problem of who would hold title to the land.

Hospital and hospital district represenatives have both claimed they should hold title, and it is understood the suggested solution would be for the crown to hold title to both the existing hospital and the land to be acquired.

By resolution last December, the hospital district decided to pursue the question of land purchase from the religious order, subject to a referendum on the question.

Loffmark said Wednesday the matter does not have to go to referendum although only $150,000 was set aside for land acquisition in the last referendum. The St. Ann's land would cost $1.5 million.

He said the hospital board could alter the bylaw with his concurrence and purchase the land.

Under the act governing land purchase by referendum, a cabinet minister can interpret the intention of the people who have voted a sum for land purchase and increase that sum.

Fee-Hike Delay On Ballot

● Hospital fund clamps will stay tight. Page 28.

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

VERNON — B.C.'s doctors will decide by a referendum if they will have a one-year moratorium on fee increases, it was announced Thursday in Vernon.

Dr. J. W. Corbett of North Vancouver, newly-elected president of the B.C. Medical Association, said the decision on a referendum was made in a closed session Thursday morning.

★ ★ ★

The board of directors of the BCMA, he added, is recommending that members do not seek a fee increase from the provincial government, which administers the prepaid medical care plans in B.C.

Corbett said the B.C. medical profession will study its schedule of fees to get rid of some inequities that exist in earnings in some specialties, including general practice.

★ ★ ★

He said the need for such adjustments became apparent earlier this year when the medical association started receiving detailed reports on earnings from the B.C. Medical Services Commission, the over-all agency for medicare in B.C.

Dealing with the five-year agreement the doctors signed with the government in 1965,

Plans for New Department Unveiled

Ottawa to Battle Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal government department will call the shots in future efforts to control pollution of air, water and soil.

The new environmental department will also have charge of federal fisheries and forestry responsibilities. Agriculture, at least in some of its aspects, will be a further concern.

Plans for the new department were unveiled in the throne speech at Thursday's opening of a new session of Parliament.

The program may become the responsibility of a cabinet minister with a new portfolio designation, although a final decision awaits the results of a study of the Senate science policy committee.

Treasury Board President Charles Drury is being touted as the man to head a cabinet science committee on a full-time basis, without dividing his time between scientific affairs and treasury board which controls spending.

Immediate speculation is that the new environment department will be headed by Jack Davis, the tough fisheries minister who has been outspoken in his concern about environment protection and renewable resource conservation.

The government served notice that legislation to deal with ocean and air pollution will be introduced. Both have been under preparation for some time and subject to a certain amount of public discussion.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson's department has been working on anti-pollution measures since last winter's major oil spill from the grounding of the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay in Nova Scotia.

Health Minister John Munro has said his department has a clean air act draft in preparation for this session.

Responsibility for water pollution in other respects rests with the department of energy, mines and resources under the Canada Water Act passed last summer.

The new agency will have at least a co-ordination and consolidation which were described in the throne speech as more pressing needs than any other step or steps.

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the government's first concession to kidnappers of British diplomat James Richard Cross Thursday night, a midnight deadline for meeting other conditions set for his release went past without word from his abductors.

The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec had vowed to assassinate the 49-year-old trade commissioner unless its conditions were met by midnight.

The federal government Thursday night broadcast the FLQ's "political manifesto" on CBC French-language radio and television stations in Quebec province.

The broadcast was followed by a statement saying the manifesto was read "for humanitarian reasons" with a view "to save if possible the life of James Richard Cross."

★ ★ ★

CBC president George Davidson issued a statement saying the broadcast was made because it was in the public interest.

Meanwhile, Le Devoir reported in an Ottawa story that the federal government had partially acceded to a second FLQ demand — that police suspend their investigation.

The newspaper says that without making this public, federal authorities asked police to reduce to the minimum their inquiries and other investigations.

Cross is the British trade commissioner in Montreal, kidnapped Monday from his home. The Front de Liberation du Quebec, which has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, warned earlier that Cross would be executed if conditions set for his release were not met by midnight Thursday.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said following the broadcast he had "no comments to make."

FLQ Manifesto Demands End To 'Slavery'

MONTREAL (CP) — A political manifesto issued by the terrorist group claiming responsibility for the kidnapping of James Cross and read Thursday night over the CBC French-language television network calls for the freeing of an "enslaved society" in Quebec.

Full publication and broadcasting of the 1,400-word manifesto throughout Quebec was one of the ransom demands of the Front de Liberation du Quebec for the release of the British diplomat.

The 10-minute reading of the complete text at 7:30 p.m. PDT was done in a sober manner by Gaetan Montreuil, one of the French-language network's best-known announcers.

In its ransom demands, the FLQ had suggested that the text might be read by Claude-Jean Deverieux.

The manifesto said:

"The FLQ wants the total independence of Quebecers, reunited in a free society forever purged of its clique of voracious sharks, the patronizing big bosses and the lackeys who make Quebec their protected domain of cheap labor and unscrupulous exploitation."

★ ★ ★

The FLQ describes itself as "the answer to an aggression" which is spearheaded by almost every existing institution, including the Roman Catholic Church, in Quebec.

The manifesto refers to several labor, language and political disputes in the province.

The document also states that the FLQ had at one time considered throwing all its support behind the separatist Parti Quebecois, but this plan died when the PQ failed to win widespread electoral support last April 29.

★ ★ ★

"Consequently, the British parliamentary system is really finished, and the FLQ will never again allow itself to be distracted by the electoral crumbs the Anglo-Saxon capitalists throw into the Quebec barnyard every four years."

The document speaks of "100,000 worker-revolutionaries, organized and armed" in the coming year, a sneer at Premier Robert Bourassa's pledge to create 100,000 new jobs in Quebec by 1971.

"We are fed up, and so are more and more Quebecers, with a spineless government which makes 1,000-and-one somersaults to charm American millionaires while begging them to come and invest in Quebec . . ."

Specialists' Pullout: Little Effect

QUEBEC (CP) — The health department reported little change Thursday in occupancy of Quebec hospitals despite medical specialists' withdrawal of all but emergency services.

The specialists withdrew their services to support demands for changes in Quebec's medical care insurance plan.

Empty in Content, Stanfield Asserts

OTTAWA (CP) — With emphasis on the new decade and a "new age," Parliament began a new session Thursday and the traditional speech from the throne zeroed in on the environment, urban problems and the economically deprived.

Some of the pomp of the past was missing this time as Governor-General Michener, dressed in a dark suit, officially opened the third session of Canada's 28th Parliament. The throne speech, prepared by the government, concentrated on problems of the future.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was unimpressed with the speech.

Captains, Pilot Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The two captains and a B.C. marine pilot were blamed by federal transport department counsel Thursday night for the Aug. 2 ferry-freighter collision in Active Pass in which three ferry passengers were killed.

The Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin sliced into the port side of the B.C. government ferry Queen of Victoria at noon in clear visibility in the narrow pass between two islands.

Commission counsel Norman Mullins, in his closing address to a federal commission of inquiry, recommended that the licence of Canadian pilot aboard the freighter, D. G. Crabbe, be suspended, that the certificate of competency of ferry captain R. J. Pollock be suspended and that Captain N. G. Khaustov of the Soviet ship be admonished or censured. He said the pilot was the most culpable.

Mullins said it was his opinion that Crabbe had made the gravest error of anybody involved. It arose out of Crabbe's handling of wireless communications.

Crabbe, he said, had signalled the Russian ship's approach to Active Pass using radio channels that the ferry could not receive.

"He knew very well," said Mullins, "that the ferries could not receive transmissions on channels six or 16; the fact was notorious among the pilots."

Bolivian Unit Revolts

From Reuters-AP

LA PAZ — A 500-man regiment revolted Thursday against Bolivia's new left-wing president, Gen. Juan Jose Torres, only one day after he took power by defeating right-wing rebel troops.

The commander of the important Ingavi regiment based in La Paz announced his opposition to the government of Torres, formed Wednesday after a two-day conflict.

The rebel officer said he counted on support from general headquarters.

The right-wing commander, Col. Miguel Ayoroa, announced in a communique he will oppose Torres. He said he had the support of another La Paz garrison.

But Torres responded by saying he would not put up with any opposition.

Nobel Prize Offered to Russia's Solzhenitsyn

Life Creates Plot for Author

By HARRY TRIMBORN
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — Novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn said Thursday he will go to Sweden — if the Kremlin lets him — to personally accept the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature.

And therein lies the makings of a plot worthy of the talents of the 52-year-old mathematician and former artillery officer and inmate of Stalin's labor camps who is considered Russia's greatest living writer.

For the decision may trigger a repetition of the ferocious government propaganda attack that forced another Russian, Boris Pasternak, author of Doctor Zhivago, to decline the same prize in 1958.

Like Pasternak, who died in 1960, Solzhenitsyn has incurred the wrath of the Soviet government for his eloquent attacks against the policies and practices of the Kremlin.

In his first public comment on the prize awarded earlier Thursday by the Swedish academy, the author of A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich, declared:

"I am grateful for the decision (to award me the prize). I accept the prize. I intend to go and receive it personally on the traditional day (Dec. 10) insofar as this will depend on me."

Solzhenitsyn made the comments to a Scandinavian journalist who said he was given the writer's telephone number by friends.

"Consider me unreachable," he said. "I am not receiving any Western correspondents."

The Soviet press has made no comment on it yet — just as there was no immediate Soviet comment to Pasternak's selection 12 years ago. The propaganda campaign then was not launched until about a week after the announcement and continued unremittingly for three weeks until Pasternak changed his mind about accepting the prize.

In its attack 12 years ago, the Soviet government did not specifically prohibit Pasternak from going to Stockholm to collect his prize. That

Government Waste Theory Truer Than Ever—Author

By HUBERT BEYER

Parkinson's Law, the theory of ever-increasing waste and extravagance in governments everywhere, still holds true.

That's the word from the man who laid down the law 10 years ago.

"In fact, the only thing I have to apologize for seems to be the speed with which my predictions are materializing; it seems I have underestimated the time factor," said Dr. C. Northcote Parkinson, world-famous British historian, educator, author and humorist, who told the world 10 years ago that work in government expands to fill the time available for its completion.

(Popularly, Parkinson's law has come to be quoted as applying everywhere, but Parkinson himself was referring chiefly to government bureaucracies.)

Sitting in his hotel room, sipping on a drink—Parkinson proceeded in an interview Thursday to tear governments apart for throwing the tax-paying masses into the abyss of financial poverty.

He predicted that the British Navy would soon reach a point where it didn't exist at all as a fighting force while its civilian members swelled to a colossal body.

He stated that civil services are running the show the world over while politicians are busy propagating 18th-century ideas.

★ ★ ★

Computers, he said, are supposed to save money and work, but in reality they create more work and more waste.

Parkinson is in Victoria to address the annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Management Association today.

"No, sir," he said slowly, "I have no reason to withdraw any of my predictions. I will have a book published next month entitled The Law of Delay; it is a book of essays, Parkinson's Law revisited if you like. The law still stands."

Government spending will increase, Parkinson predicted. More and more people will be employed by the governments until the major voting block consists of government employees.

"The answer to the problem is really simple," he said.

"You simply cut down on the money to be spent by the various government departments by 10 per cent, and probably another 10 per cent the following year. In case of overspending, the deficit is to be made up by salary reductions on the senior level."

★ ★ ★

"Quite simple, isn't it?" Parkinson said.

"But unfortunately impossible because it seems that the civil service is in control of government affairs and not the politicians."

The reason for this state of affairs, he said, is to be found in the speed with which technology has progressed.

"Decisions to be taken become more and more technological. There has not been a comparative development in the field of politics.

"The U.S. is governed by an antiquated constitution. The communist world still adheres to a doctrine set down in 1847 by Marx who never even claimed to be a politician. There is simply no progress in politics.

"Politicians are people with mental processes going back to the time of horse-drawn carriages; they are now given all these marvellous technological toys to play with and they can't keep up with the miracles of modern science," said Parkinson.

The public has completely lost contact with government, he warned.

"Just imagine the devaluation of the pound. The BBC proceeds to send people into the streets pushing microphones into people's faces.

"They ask some wretched citizen what he thinks of the devaluation and the answer is something like 'bad show.' It's obvious the ordinary citizen hasn't the remotest idea of what's going on."

The same ordinary citizen, Parkinson said, has also no control over his country's destiny. In Britain, he can at best choose between two parties which are in collusion regarding waste and extravagance.

"A good point is decimalization in Britain. It's stupid. The decimal system is fantastically obsolete. Why spend millions on something that will be of no use whatsoever?"

Computers, which themselves have contributed to government waste, don't work on the decimal system, Parkinson pointed out.

"In fact, the bloody things haven't got the faintest interest in it," he said.

★ ★ ★

What lies ahead for the "ordinary citizen" who doesn't seem to be able to control his destiny?

Parkinson now lives on Guernsey Island, one of the Channel Islands between England and France. He writes books and goes on occasional lecture tours.

After leaving Victoria, he will hold several lectures in the U.S. and in Mexico. He will return to Britain early in November.

Harbor Commission

'Massive' Group Will Tap Ottawa

Victoria will send "a massive delegation" to Ottawa soon to tell the transport minister that the city wants a harbor commission.

Victoria city council decided Thursday to delegate Mayor Courtney Haddock, Aldermen Peter Pollen, Harold Olafson, Clyde Savage, City Manager Dennis Young and City Solicitor Terry O'Grady.

The delegation will submit a brief requesting the formation of a Greater Victoria Harbor Commission.

Council was told there will be no reference in the brief to city-owned waterfront property, but O'Grady said council would expect the federal government to ask whether the city would be willing to turn such land over to the commission.

Ald. Tom Christie said he didn't "see why we have to send such a massive delegation."

The mayor replied it was necessary because the formation of a harbor commission "is a very important matter."

The proposed commission will pursue improvement of existing harbor facilities and construction of new ones, promotion of increased commodity shipments and encouragement of improved land use in the harbor area.

No date has been set for the trip to Oattawa.

Forceful Campaign

Plaque recognizing efforts of Canadian Armed Forces in Victoria in their campaign for United Appeal is presented to Rear Admiral R. H. Leir by chairman of federal services campaign Hugh Cameron as Lt.-Cmdr. Peter Hunter, armed forces co-ordinator, looks on. Forces soared far over assigned quota of $17,500 to $28,000 within 13 days of campaign start.—(William E. John)

Trustees Reassure

By NANCY BROWN

Greater Victoria school district voters are being offered something for nothing (or for next-to-nothing), but trustees fear the offer will be turned down.

"I think they're afraid there has to be a catch in it somewhere," school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson said Thursday.

Some 35,000 electors in the school district are eligible to vote in today's plebiscite, which asks if they are in favor of the "establishment, maintenance and operation of a college."

The two-year institution, to be known as Juan de Fuca College, would replace the present Institute of Adult Studies, offering academic, vocational and technological training to all students, regardless of qualifications, with transfer courses to university and other institutions.

School board officials have maintained that if there is a tax increase to pay for a college, it will be minimal.

The average taxpayer, with a home of about $20,000 market value, is now paying $3.78 to support the institute. Estimates show a college could raise that amount to $4 a year at the most. But it may not even be anything. Trustees won't know for sure until the college is actually set up.

At present, the provincial government contributes 47 per cent of institute operating costs. The change to a college would draw a 60 per cent contribution from the government.

There is a possibility, Jameson said, that capital would be needed in another three or four years for equipment, — up to about $200,000.

He also said if demand is sufficient, a capital referendum would be needed for new buildings, though not in the foreseeable future.

In any case, he said, the public would be protected from such unexpected costs by the board's need to go to referendum for capital expenditures in each case.

"We've had very little opposition to the college idea," Jameson said. "But what we have seen is an underlying mistrust — an idea that there must be some money involved somewhere that we're hiding.

"The fact of the matter is that we already have half a college at the institute — we have the buildings, the equipment, the staff and the students.

"It's also a fact that the institute as such will cease at the end of this year because of a provincial discontinuance of Grade 13 courses.

"If we're to continue to offer the courses that have been so well accepted, we have to change to college status."

Gaglardi Refuses Welfare Request

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock says he was told Thursday by Rehabilitation Minister Philip Gaglardi that Victoria can't count on immediate financial assistance from the provincial government to help meet soaring welfare costs.

"No, we didn't get a firm commitment from the minister," Haddock said in an interview following his meeting with Gaglardi at the Empress Hotel.

The city will support the provincial government's attempts to get more welfare assistance from the federal government, the mayor said.

Asked what chance of success such an appeal to the federal government might have, Haddock replied:

"Well, I don't know, but I've been called a pathological optimist. I won't quit trying. I won't give up."

He was asked if he thought the provincial government was the logical power to help municipalities meet rising welfare costs.

"I think the most important thing right now is that we are working together with the province," he said.

British Columbia, especially Victoria, has a relatively high welfare roll, he said.

The provincial government announced last Friday that it has raised the municipal share of provincial welfare costs from $1.15 to $1.58 per capita for the last months of 1970.

It has been estimated that the increase will cost Victoria and Saanich $100,000 each. Oak Bay and Esquimalt have estimated additional welfare costs at $30,000 each.

Meanwhile, the Union of B.C. Municipalities has also pledged its support of the provincial government's intention to request more federal welfare aid.

Longer Road Wanted

Victoria Council decided Thursday to ask the provincial government to consider extending Blanshard to Patricia Bay Highway.

Council also decided to ask the provincial government to purchase the Hudson's Bay warehouse site at Cloverdale, a 3.5-acre parcel of land, offered for sale at present.

Injured Boy Out of Hospital

Anthony Medeiros, 12, of 3830 Quadra, Saanich, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after being treated for head and shoulder injuries received when he was hit by a car at the intersection of Tattersall and Quadra about 7:15 p.m. Thursday, Saanich police reported. Driver of the car was Janet Hockin of 3498 Lovat, Saanich.

'What's It All About?'

Ald. Peter Pollen called it "recognition to the Empress Hotel," Victoria's greatest landmark.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said it could be expanded to become "the Calgary Stampede of Victoria."

The confusion arose at the end of Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council when Pollen introduced a motion to declare Empress Hotel Week starting Nov. 3.

"I think it's time the city give recognition to one of its great institutions. The Empress has played an important part in Victoria's history," Pollen said.

Haddock took it from there.

"It would be celebrated once a year and eventually all the merchants could participate in it," he said.

At this point, Christie asked what it was all about.

"I don't know what the devil is going on. What's this all about? In my opinion it's the most nebulous thing I've ever heard of," he said.

When Pollen started to explain the details, someone moved that the matter be referred back to a committee.

Ald Hugh Ramsay objected. "I don't like referral motions. We either like something or we don't. We should approve it or turn it down," he said.

The matter, however, was referred back for further discussion.

It was later learned that Empress Hotel Week "should be celebrated with street dances, concerts and other types of public entertainment," according to the proposal.

Black Heads Roads Group

B.C. Highways Minister Wesley Black was elected president of the Road and Transportation Association of Canada in Montreal Thursday. The association, formerly named the Canadian Good Roads Association, is holding its annual conference this week in conjunction with the sixth World Highway Conference.

Yates Plan

Stores Submit Walkers' Mall

Plans for a $386,000 pedestrian mall behind the north side of the 700-block Yates were submitted to Victoria city council Thursday.

The proposal, approved by council in principle, was made by the Victoria Downtown Merchants' Association.

It calls for construction of a large mall on the property now called Mac's parking. The scheme involves the widening and improvements of sidewalks on both sides of the 700 block Yates. Entrance to the mall would be from Yates.

Speaking for the merchants, Tom Denny told council the proposed scheme would be "of general public benefit."

Jack Lacterman, another merchant, said it would be impossible for the property owners adjacent to the proposed mall site to pay the entire cost of the scheme.

The city of Ottawa, Lacterman said, had shared half the cost of a similar project.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said he didn't know if the city would be able to share in the cost, but he promised the merchants he would form a committee of aldermen, merchants and administrators to study the matter further.

"The plan is wonderful and ingenious. It's what the downtown city needs. If we don't have a good downtown, we're in trouble," the mayor said.
